Marmora—The Men's Club of St. Paul's Church observed ladies' night at their regular meeting held in the parish hall on Wednesday evening. Due to the inclemency of the weather and to other meetings being held on the same evening, the attendance of ladies in general was not as large as had been hoped for. All the ladies present, however, sing all were unanimous in expressing their enjoyment of the evening's program. W. J. Colcrift, President of the Club, was in the chair. Robert Scott, Secretary, read the minutes of the last regular meeting and business was then taken over by Rural Dean A. B. Caldwell. There being little business, the pleasant supply of wholesome and delicious sea-foods. The hardy and courageous men form a highly important asset to our population. For their sake, for your own sake, for the sake of your family, patronize their products. Serve more sea fish and remember that every day may be fish day.

Commodities

Grains

Wheat:—

1. World wheat production in 1936, exclusive of Russia and China, was 88 million bushels below that of 1935.
2. There was a reduction in world wheat stocks amounting to 155 million bushels in the 1935-36 crop year.
3. Reductions in wheat yields in European importing countries is encouraging a moderate increase in world trade.
4. Normal yields on present world wheat acreage would again tend to build up world wheat stocks.

Oats:—

1. The oat acreage decreased by approximately one million acres in 1936 and production was lower by 120 million bushels.
2. Exports of oats and oat products declined 44.5% in the first four months of 1936-37 crop year compared with the same period of 1935-36.
3. Higher prices for oats during 1936 will probably stimulate an increased acreage in 1937.

Barley:—

1. Despite increased acreage, barley production was 9.5 million bushels lower in 1936 than in 1935.
2. Barley exports during the first four months of the 1936-37 crop year were 11,850,536 bushels compared with 2,749,841 bushels during the same period of 1935-36.
3. Barley prices have been relatively high which will encourage an increased acreage in 1937.

Rye:—

1. Total rye production in 1936 was 5 million bushels compared with 9 million bushels in 1935.
2. There has been a marked reduction in the use of rye by the distilling industry since 1930.
3. Despite this short crop, available supplies of rye in Canada for the 1936-37 season were about equal to those of the previous season.

Seed Grain:—

1. A movement of seed grains from areas of plenty to areas of scarcity will be necessary before seeding in 1937.
2. An increase in the practice of growing registered and certified seed grains is advisable.
3. The supply of red clover seed is short. Alfalfa and alsike seed are in demand in the United States market.
4. Timothy seed production was low in 1936, but with the carry-over from 1935 should be sufficient for requirements.

Feed Situation:—

1. Feed supplies for 1936-37 are very unevenly distributed.
2. Drought conditions in certain areas of the Prairies and Ontario left feed supplies very low.
3. Feed prices rose sharply in the fall of 1936.
4. Feed supplies in the Maritime Provinces, Quebec and British Columbia are satisfactory.

Live Stock

Beef Cattle:—

1. The market absorbed the heavy supplies satisfactorily at the close of 1936.
2. Exports to the United States were of substantial volume in 1936.
3. Shortage of feed has led to higher costs of beef production.
4. Store cattle were purchased at lower prices in the fall of 1936 and improved prices are anticipated in the spring of 1937.

Hides:—

1. Improved demand leads to the anticipation of higher prices in 1937.
2. Stocks have been almost all sold.
3. United States government holdings of hides have been materially reduced.
4. The market for sheep skins improved during 1936.

Hogs:—

1. Increased hog production was checked last autumn.
2. The ratio of hog prices to feed prices became unfavorable with the rise in feed prices in the fall.
3. There was a definite expansion in the volume of exports of bacon to the United Kingdom in 1936.
4. Increased marketings are expected in the spring months, followed by decreased supplies later in the year.

Horses:—

1. The horse population remained relatively constant in 1936 compared with 1935.
2. Over 15,000 horses were exported to the United States in the first nine months of 1936.
3. Prices of horses were about 20% higher than in 1935.

Sheep and Wool:—

1. Comparatively good prices for sheep and lambs were paid in 1936.
2. There will be a considerable volume of short-keep lambs available for slaughter early in 1937.
3. Wool production in 1936 was lower than average, but prices were higher than for some years.

Poultry and Eggs:—

1. Numbers of hens and chickens on farms increased by 5% in 1936 over 1935.
2. Prices of eggs averaged higher than during 1935.
3. Exports of live poultry to the United States totalled 311,934 for the first ten months of 1936 compared with 28,328 head during the same period of 1935.

Dairy Products

1. Butter production in 1936 was above that of 1935 and prices also averaged higher.
2. Cheese production showed a substantial increase in 1936 in response to higher prices.
3. Exports of cheese to both the United Kingdom and the United States were higher in 1936.
4. Numbers of dairy cows on farms in 1936 declined slightly.

Fruits

1. Production of almost all types of fruit was lower in 1936 due to unfavourable weather conditions.
2. Little permanent damage to fruit trees was reported during the winter of 1935-36, except to apple trees in British Columbia.
3. Lower production of apples in 1936 resulted in reduced exports to the United Kingdom.

Potatoes

1. Canadian potato production in 1936 was only slightly above the small crop of 1935.
2. Prices of potatoes during 1936-37 will probably average slightly higher than for the 1935-36 season.
3. Export demand for both seed and table stock has been brisk.
4. An average yield in 1937 with anything more than a moderate increase in acreage would probably result in marketing difficulties.

Honey

1. Honey production was again below average.
2. Exports to the United Kingdom for the year ending July 31, 1936, were lower than for the previous year.
3. Prices on the domestic market held fairly constant throughout 1936.

AGED COUPLE LEFT HOMELESS BY FLOODS

ADDINGTON ROAD

Napanee Jan. 23—Lennox and Addington County Council voted that the salary of Harry L. Schermerhorn, the newly appointed Lennox and Addington road superintendent, be $1,800 annually and that he furnish his own car and be allowed five cents per mile while on official work.

The sum of $40,000 was the appropriation named for road expenditure. The estimated capital expenditures for 1937 of $129,800 show a decrease of $30,000 over 1936, when the sum of $230,000 was spent. The debenture debt is not during the current year is debenture principal amounting to $72,000 and interest amounting to $37,000 inland, Ernestown, South Fredericksburg and Sheffield are in for years of taxes totalling $69,500, but the deficit will be shared as only $79. JACK MINER'S APPEAL

Jack Miner, naturalist, who has made a name for himself through his work on behalf of the wild life of Canada and the United States, finds that his efforts in the cause of the sanctuary at Kingsville are costing him much money. Now he discovers that he is facing a deficit of approximately $7,500 which has to be raised in a short time. Accordingly he appeals to the men and women of the United States and Canada to help in this work which means so much for the preservation of the game and other bird and animal life in Canada and the neighboring country.

He says, "My friends are busy trying to raise a trust fund to perpetuate the bird sanctuary. These monies will be held in trust, and only the annual interest derived shall be used, but until the foundation receives large contributions to produce interest, I am compelled to make these appeals for maintenance money, which cheques have to be made payable to Jack Miner, because all cheques made payable to Jack Miner Migratory Bird Foundation Incorporated have to be deposited in trust."

Mr. Miner explains that the sanctuary is not a case of feeding birds alone. "Back of it all is the humanitarian idea. Thousands of children come here, spring and fall, and see kindness shown to birds, animal and plant life here in my backyard. Seeing this these children cannot help having more kindness in their hearts thereafter, not only towards birds but towards human beings as well. In other words it is a case of education instead of legislation."

He makes mention in his appeal that the Hon. Charles F. J. Gott in the House of Commons said that Jack Miner and his bird sanctuary protect more birds than all the game wardens in Canada. He points out that the tagging system carried on since 1909 has brought scientific facts to light in both countries, Canada and the United States.

The man who loves birds, mourning doves, waterfowl, and "dear little song and insectivorous birds which are so valuable to humanity in eating weed seeds and insects," can, being a lover of nature truly pray that "God will speak to some kind heart or some philanthropic trust to perpetuate this place."

The thousands who love Jack Miner for his work and see his devotion to his lifework will wish success to the scheme which will be a monument to the truth of the verse

"He prayeth best, who loveth best
All things, both great and small,
For the dear Lord who loveth us,
He made and loveth all."

Jack Miner has shown the way, has built an edifice which must stand the passage of time.

TAKE IT EASY

Practically universal conviction that it is unpleasant to get up too hastily after waking has received scientific support. In a paper read before the French Academy of Medicine Dr. Maurice Auguste Boigey announced that this practice, so objectionable to the public on the ground of discomfort, is also considered by pathologists to be injurious to health. Dr. Boigey told the assembled savants that it is necessary to remain in bed twenty minutes after returning to consciousness from sleep in order that circulation of the blood, which also has part in slumber, shall gradually return to its waking tempo. Ignorers of alarm clocks and of calls from below that it's time to get up will feel themselves justified by this confirmation from a distinguished source of their instinctive beliefs. For Dr. Boigey is identified in the dispatch from Paris, which communicates this scientific advance, as "a prominent physiologist and physician." Certainly none who cherish the last few moments before stepping from a warm bed to a cold floor will doubt either his title to eminence or his claim to gratitude.

Some of Dr. Boigey's other communications to the learned society may be received, in this country at least, with a certain amount of reserve. For instance, he gives it as his opinion that persons of more than fifty should exercise only between 4 and 6 o'clock in the afternoon. What, then, will become of the army of elderly gentlemen who form the financial backbone of most of the country's golf courses and who still think they should play thirty-six holes on Sunday

Have a heart, Dr. Boigey. While conferring a benefit on mankind, do not afflict it with restrictions impossible to follow. —New York Herald Tribune.

SENATOR ARTHUR MEIGHEN, IN A MILITANT SPEECH IN THE RED CHAMBER, said that the front line of Canadian defence in the event of war is the British Empire. He went farther and took in the whole North American continent as relying on the might of the British navy for protection—the first and mightiest line of defence. All thoughtful Canadians realize this, of course, but we have become so accustomed to the protection of the British navy that it is taken as a matter of course, our birthright, as it were. The fact that the old Canadian navy is to be scrapped and replaced by two new destroyers need not necessarily breed a war scare.

IT'S A SAFE BET YOU HAVEN'T HEARD THIS ONE, told by Ye Editor of the Trenton Courier Advocate, a Mighty Hunter and all-round Outdoor Man:

The best story of the week has nothing to do with the war in Spain the state of affairs in China or the wheat situation in Italy, but to an occurrence in South-Western Ontario.

Three Detroiters motored over to "the wilds of Canada" to have a little hunt for rabbits or whatever they might find in a certain farmer's woodlot. One of the men approached the farmer for permission to hunt over his grounds and this was readily given. At the same time the farmer informed the hunter on the quiet that he had a horse in the back field that should be destroyed but that he didn't have the heart to do it himself.

The three nimrods ran the car down the lane, got out and started across the fields towards the bush.

Standing in the shadow of the woods was a horse, an old decrepit looking animal.

"Let's start at the big game first," announced the hunter in the know, and with that he pointed his gun at the horse. Next moment he pulled the trigger and the animal went down.

He watched the animal for a moment then turned to his companions to see how they were taking it, but they weren't having any. Completely panic-stricken by the sudden trend of events they were racing madly for the car.

"Wait for yourself," they chorused over their shoulders, "and walk home. You've gone nuts."

KLAMAS, A BRITISH COLUMBIA INDIAN, TOLD A STORY at least one hundred years old—so old that it will be new to most lovers of humor. Here 'tis, as resurrected by the Kamloops Sentinel:

Jim Camille, well known Indian of the Deadman Creek reserve, who died a few days ago, aged 68, often told me of an old Indian called Klamas—as near as I could get it—who had told Jim that when he was a small boy (which puts it about hundred years or more ago) he had stolen a sack of beans from a Hudson's Bay brigade and taken them home. There he boiled them and tasted, and boiled them another day, tasted again, and even after some days' boiling and much waste of firewood, still uneatable!

They were coffee beans and this was their introduction to the local tribe.

"ORDERS IS ORDERS"

Regimental headquarters had just been set up and the fussy colonel decided that he must have a flagstaff. "O'Hara," he told his orderly, "go out and get me a tall pole—the tallest you can find."

Ten minutes later O'Hara re-entered with a lanky and embarrassed companion. "Colonel", he explained, "there ain't a Pole in the outfit over five-foot-eight, but this guy's a Lithuanian, and whatever you want him for, I don't believe nobody will ever notice the difference."

Employment of Married Women

"The Editor,
"Ontario Intelligencer,
"Belleville, Ontario.
"Dear Sir—
Being an "employer of girls, I read "Fair Play's" letter in your paper with interest. I might say I have two married women in my employ, and wouldn't change them, if I could help it, for single girls. In the first place the married women are more dependable, in eight cases out of ten. They take more interest in their work. They also need the money. Of course all single girls are not the same, I will say that, but I have employed some who have been a downright worry from the time they started. They are looking in the mirror every five minutes, they will not take an interest in customers especially middle aged or old people, and they are running to the dressing room every few minutes for a cigarette. One married woman whom I employ has had very bad luck, her husband was out of work for sometime, and when he did find employment it was at very low wages. Her wages are going towards clearing up the debts contracted when he was out of work. The other married woman I employ needs the money too, and puts her wages to good use.

I will say it is discouraging to single girls trying to find work, but it would be to their advantage to go looking for work as if they needed it, not looking like an advertisement for make-up.

Another thing, if an employer wants experienced help at once, it's a relief if he can get an old hand back for a short time. Lots of times we need experienced help for just a short time, and it is a waste of time to teach a girl the work and then have to let her go.

"A fellow merchant once told me it gave him the jitters to see the way some of these young girls met his customers, especially elderly people. They didn't seem to care if they waited on them or not or gave them service. He also said his store was a meeting place Saturday night, the girls' friends hanging around waiting for them to get off to go to a dance or some place, and customers were neglected, just ignored. Bad for business.

"Fair Play" must realize there are two side to every story. Personally I believe a woman's place is in the home, after she is married, but if it depends a number to help keep the home, that is a different story.

"Fair Play No. 2"

"I might add that I hardly think married women like to work unless it is necessary. If they have to work all day then go home and do their housework it isn't very pleasant I'm sure.

SCOTT'S SCRAPBOOK by R. J. SCOTT

Big Canadians of Yesteryear

No. 2

By

J. Lambert Payne

The Man Who Should Be the Railway Age in Canada—How He Figures Missed the Iron Trail—Success Comes to Determined and Strong Personalities—a Period of Total Crop Failure

At Confederation Canada had 2,278 miles of railway. The first little line of 16 miles had been built between Laprairie and St. Johns, in the Province of Quebec. Just one hundred years ago. Then came the pioneer Grand Trunk and the Great Western. By 1860, when the Canadian Pacific was begun, the Dominion had 7,231 miles of line. Now we have 43,400, the greater part of which was built between 1900 and 1917. In 1851 not a mile of railway was in operation west of the Ontario boundary. The western provinces now have 59 per cent of the total mileage of the country. This has created a grave problem; but I shall not touch on nothing of that. I am immediately concerned with the men which did all this railway building. I propose to write here about them the side of vast courage, of ingenuity, of skill and of adventure, making one of the most fascinating chapters in the story of our mental, moral and material growth.

In that picture of the driving of the last golden spike, the great profile at Fort Moody, in 1886, to which reference was made in a preceding article, are the two central figures in Sir William Van Horne, although Lord Mount Stephen was there. He was a Scotsman, both physically and mentally. Derived from one of the Loyalist families that resettled in New Masterdam, on Manhattan Island, he was actually born in a log house at Joliette, Illinois, in 1843. Early in life he went to work as an errand boy in the local railway offices, and soon he began to show the wonderful energy which helped to carry him later to high station.

A Restless Dynamo

The boy always talker of the man. One night in 1867 I was sitting in the library of my first chief, Sir John Abbott, when Van Horne came in. Shortly afterward a telegram was delivered, and Sir John always free-handed, sent a quarter to the boy. A moment or two later Sir William said to me: "If John Abbott is not of a confidential nature, would you tell me the time of the day?" Sir John handed it to him. "Just as I though when I saw that quarter go out," said Van Horne, "it was magnate. "It is now 9.30, and here will see the telegram you have actually received in Ottawa at 8.10. I suspect that I was the originator of this scheme. He has aggravated most of knowledge boys. There was an old school in Joliette to which they gave a quarter to the boy who brought to him a telegram after nine o'clock. I saw to it that a message was never delivered to him between six and eight. I let them accumulate if there were more than one, and got one of my cousins to help me out. He's dead now, but I went to his long home believing that his quarter got him speedy service." I think Sir William was less a living proof of the old Semonstration of resourcefulness.

Sir William Van Horne did all his thinking in his terms. He had vision, and it was that prescience which had enabled to do more than development of the Canadian Pacific to be one of the great railway systems of the world. John A. Roebeller has said many times that he owed everything to the men he had chosen to help him; and that is true of all his life. His genius was to pick the right men for physical places is scarcely secondary to creative genius. Another example of his gift. Hence he surrounded himself with men like Shaughnessy, Thomas Drinkwater, Olds, Oaker, Spencer, Nicol, Whyte, Hosmer, Baker, Spencer, and Judge Harkin. I know them all. Giants at work, they were like a lot of school youths at play.

I remember travelling one night with a group of these railway administrators between Montreal and Quebec, in one of the C. P. R. official cars. For diversion six of them played hearts at five cents a heart, and at the end of the game drew dice "Dey" Ogden, the late Sir Cosmo Dave McNicol, then the General Manager of Canadian Pacific their language and conduct one would have thought it was a million. They fought like bandits over making the change for "Dey". The air fairly shuddered with their sulphurous abuse of each other. What a great group they were! Only one or two surving.

Sir William MacKenzie and Sir Donald Mann were associated in private players. So was J. Pierpont Morgan. So are all brain workers who have learned the art of mental relaxation. God bless the Canadian saint who invented cards says II

Van Horne was one of the most dynamic personalities I have ever known. His capacity for work was enormous. On the private train his hobby was painting — probably an startele reflex from some Dutch ancestor. The man of big affairs loved to paint. In the end some of his work was really good. Many scores of times I have been amazed at the difference between the man in their offices and at their fireside, or at any other time of relaxation. One night, about twenty-five years ago, I had started for my room in the King Edward Hotel in Toronto when some one sang out: "What's your hurry?"

It was Sir Donald Mann, whom everybody called "Dan". We went over and sat down in a card room. In came Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, Then Sir Edmund Osler. What a party! We knocked off at 3 a.m. and while my memory holds I shall not forget the salivary reminiscences of that three and a half hours.

Men Who Did the Building

The addition of more men to the railway series is due to our national railway equipment. Between 1900 and 1917 was directed by three great groups, the Mackenzie and Mann, MacKenzie and Mann. Then Charles M. Hayes, the Grand Trunk, who went down on the Titanic in 1912. The third was the Canadian Pacific, already under the control of a vast network of branch lines. The Canadian Northern, by the way, at first transcontinental systems and ment was largely psychological. It was a period of one-continent, ocean system, had brought about such immense national expansion. Mackenzie and Mann were the first precise radio that we went on after the Great War. Mackenzie did the work out that way; but that was the philosophy of the period, I do not propose to discuss it. Here is my sole purpose is to write about men who did the building.

As private secretary to two Ministers of Railways for ten years—Hon. A. G. Blair for seven and Hon. H. R. Emerson for three — I can claim to know Sir Wm. Van Horne and the men who were back of all this work. I knew Sir William MacKenzie and Donald A. Mann, both of whom were subsequently knighted. They have been described by the historian as great railway builders, and that is true. They negotiated the plan of governments giving guarantees, rather than cash subsidies, for the building of the line now there; but they were the chief contractors. Their profits on this are actually received in Ottawa at 8.10. I suspect that I was the originator of this scheme. He aggravated most of knowledge boys. There was an old school in Joliette to which they gave a quarter to the boy who brought to him a telegram after nine o'clock. I saw to it that a message was never delivered to him between six and eight. I let them accumulate if there were more than one, and got one of my cousins to help me out. He's dead now, but I went to his long home believing that his quarter got him speedy service." I think Sir William was less a living proof of the old Semonstration of resourcefulness.

Sir William Van Horne did all his thinking in his terms. He had vision, and it was that prescience which had enabled to do more than development of the Canadian Pacific to be one of the great railway systems of the world. John A. Roebeller has said many times that he owed everything to the men he had chosen to help him; and that is true of all his life. His genius was to pick the right men for physical places is scarcely secondary to creative genius. Another example of his gift. Hence he surrounded himself with men like Shaughnessy, Thomas Drinkwater, Olds, Oaker, Spencer, Nicol, Whyte, Hosmer, Baker, Spencer, and Judge Harkin. I know them all. Giants at work, they were like a lot of school youths at play.

I remember travelling one night with a group of these railway administrators between Montreal and Quebec, in one of the C. P. R. official cars. For diversion six of them played hearts at five cents a heart, and at the end of the game drew dice "Dey" Ogden, the late Sir Cosmo Dave McNicol, then the General Manager of Canadian Pacific their language and conduct one would have thought it was a million. They fought like bandits over making the change for "Dey". The air fairly shuddered with their sulphurous abuse of each other. What a great group they were! Only one or two arving.

Sir William MacKenzie and Sir Donald Mann were associated in private players. So was J. Pierpont Morgan. So are all brain workers

The Big Contractors

MacKenzie and Mann,' let few words suffice, were railway builders. On the other hand, the Canadian Pacific and the Grand Trunk Pacific followed the contract system, and this spelled opportunity for many who were both fame and fortune. I know them nearly all, and, speaking broadly, they were in the period prior to the Great War, for example, Rory McLennan, the giant Highlander of Glengarry, who sat for years in Parliament. Ross and Isbester were of the same type. Ross, I think, was the first fellow, he exemplified sartorial perfection. He was a dandy, wearing his spats, his kid gloves and his Malacca cane. All he lacked was a monocle. He had a fine head to work with him, and once he told me about his big gift for organization. "I decided to employ Chinese labor," he said, "and I made all-my contracts with Chinese. The Chinese, He brought out seven thousand Chinese, housed them in the shacks for them, supplied their food, paid them their wages, and handled them under one head. No one of them died from natural causes. Not one of them died from the bodies shipped back to the Celestial Kingdom." Ross, I think, made to hand him so many thousand dollars each month. When the job was finished he would leave again for Pekin to China. From the labor point of view, Ross made a most satisfactory contract I ever handled."

During the ten years I served two Ministers of Railways I had private secretary the department carried on construction of the Welland and the canals, and this gave me an excellent opportunity of seeing the contractors at close quarters and on a large scale. Some contractors made good money, and others failed. The successful contractors seemed to me to have the genius of handling men. I am getting ahead here, but that did not always account for success. Thomas Peck, the engineer made a difference. Intuition seemed to count for as much as did knowledge. Take the case of contractor, whom I shall not name, although he is dead. He was a man who had his own system of mathematics. When going over his estimates he would say, loud, something like this: "seven times nine is sixty-three, and eight times nine is seventy-two—I'll do the job for two hundred and fifty-seven dollars and seventy-one cents," and he was always right. In all events, he always made money.

A Big Canadian Abroad

James J. Hill, of the Northern Pacific system, was a Canadian. He was born at Rockwood, near Guelph. As a youth of eighteen he built the first railway north of California in 1848. When I asked him how he got there, his answer was: "I walked most of the way."

He didn't find much gold. On the way he stopped off at St. Paul, liked the place, and remained there until his death at a ripe old age. His first job had something to do with stage coaching, and that paved the way for his subsequent interest in transportation. For years he was known as "Jim" Hill, was the greatest railway builder of the Middle West. Many men on the prairies they spoke of him as "the railway builder", and those who liked him, affectionately called him "Jim Hill". He opened up a vast virgin territory for the first time, and just to keep in touch with his native country he built four or five spurs into the Northern Pacific to-day our western provinces.

It was once my privilege to spend a couple of days in the company of James J. Hill, and from that experience I wrote down as one of the most interesting men I have ever met. He was a philosopher, with a keen brain, and a natural shrewdness that made him seem wise. In his knowledge of human nature he was like Sir John Macdonald; but he looked a little like Sir Mackenzie Bowell, especially to whiskers. His rugged common sense impressed me deeply. If that is lacking, little else counts in a man of affairs. Over and above that, he was warmly companionable, with a story to fit almost every turn of the conversation. He did not put on a trace of side. I loved him for that. No national man was ever a snob.

Although James J. Hill was very wealthy, that fact never turned his head. Indeed, he frankly told me that it hid been as per as when broke. In the course of a casual chat he told me that he had been offered $1,000,000 for his railway. Naturally, I wanted to increase it. There came a time how- when Hill's head looked black. He walked the floor the whole of one night, and by morning I had definitely resolved to do a certain thing that I hoped would save something for me out of the wreck. I started at once.

"This involved a journey by train. I had to reach another city by a certain hour and then take a certain action. On the way the train broke down. I consulted a time table, and found only one train the country I could catch a train that would get me to my destination in time. I had not a minute to lose. So I offered a farmer $100 if he would convey me by sleigh in an hour. If he lifted his horses, I was to pay him $500. On they went. The horses were fast, faster. I was in a terrible state of mind for fear I should lose my faith. At last the horses were galloping. Suddenly we were in the ditch.

"When I waked up I was lying in a room with a stove. The door opened and a nurse came in. I asked her where I was. She replied: "Saint Hyacinthe." I had been and had a bad fracture of my left thigh. Then I remembered what I was. She said Thursday. I groaned, for that told me I was ruined. I had been unconscious for a week. There was six weeks before I could leave the city. My chance was gone. It was as clear as daylight later that if I had been able to carry out my plan I would have saved more than a million in the world; but, as the result of not having done so, I lost a million and a quarter of dollars. Don't tell me it isn't all luck!"

The Passing of Van Horne

The names of five men who achieved fame as railway builders bracketed in the years when the C. P. R. was being built. They were James Worthington, James Ross, John Ross, Thomas G. Shaughnessy and Herbert Holt. Worthington, forty years later Lord Shaughnessy was president of the Montreal Board of construction. Rob, then twenty-six, now Sir Herbert Holt, the financier, was chief engineer. James Ross, John Munro Osborn, in his "Rest of Empire", says of Holt:

"He arrived penniless in Canada seven years before.

"He has quite a flock of pennies now."

"Major A. B. Rogers, the engineer, who discovered the pass which bears his name, was a man of genius. The Canadian Pacific gave him a check for $5,000 as a bonus for making the find; but he framed it instead of cashing it. One day Van Horne showed him a very big gold watch, with Rogers' name engraved on it. Rogers reached for it.

"No, no," said Van Horne; "you get it when you cash that cheque."

He fell from a horse and died of his injuries in 1887.

The Passing of the Years

The big railway builders are nearly all dead. Their names are more huge contracts for an industrial empire. These men met the demands of the time, and the work well and heroically and passed on. We cannot blame them, or praise them. They were trail breakers. Looking backward, railway construction has greatly changed in the years when the pioneer Grand Trunk was pushing from Montreal Levis to Sarnia. It was then all hand and horse labor. The steam shovel had not been invented. Sir Collingwood Schreiber told me that when the Canadian Pacific was being built through Ontario the prevailing pay for men was $1 a day and board. The Canadian Pacific was built on a wage rate of $1.50 a day. And in the years $5,000 a mile was constructed, 1904-12, men were paid $4 a day.

Canada passed through the stagecoach era, and now has more miles of railway per capita than any other country under the sun. What about the future? Many railways be scrapped, as were the stagecoaches that bumped over the corduroy roads? Possibly. The day may be near at hand when traffic will be hurled through the air at a speed of 200 miles an hour. If so, a new type of engineers and contractors will arise to meet that change. I doubt, however, if they will be as picturesque as the great railway builders and operators of my day.

HEALTH GOOD

A link that goes back to the earliest days in the history of Bancroft village is furnished by the remarkable memory of James Vance, "grand old man of Bancroft" and settler of the district, for the past seventy-one years. During that time he has watched the population grow from two families to the present population of nearly one thousand. Eighty-one years of age, he is even yet one of the most active residents of the district, and continues to carry on the occupation of farming to which he has devoted the greater part of his life.

Mr. Vance was born in Halton. When an infant, his parents, seeking new fields, crossed the border and by tedious stages, made their way to this district where they settled in the then heavily wooded Tyendinaga Township. Soon after they moved to Ormsby, sixteen miles north of Bancroft, and this journey in itself over a mere trail hemmed in by virgin timber growth.

At ten years of age, James Vance, together with his brother, left the parental roof at Ormsby to clear their own stump-dotted section of land on the 7th line of Bancroft. They travelled the distance by means of ox cart up the narrow lumber road and found that two families had preceded them to the small clearing that was later to become a village. One was the Geggs family who lived on the east side of the road, and the other the first post office in that district, and the second was the Clarke family who lived in a small log cabin on the present site of the Kelsay store.

Helped Brother Build Log Cabin

His brother James Vance erected a little log cabin, which was later to be the scene of the marriage service of any kind that ever took place in the little community. In a short time after their arrival a saw mill was erected on Mr. Clarke's property, containing an old fashioned upright saw. A small house was also erected alongside, but was later destroyed by fire, and then financed the construction of the mill, later came to Bancroft and erected a second saw mill on the north side of the river where Davy's Mill now stands. This mill contained the first circular saw in the district, and for a time was the source of pride and interest to the whole community. Later a small hotel constructed by Mr. Flint in the same location as the present Bancroft Hotel, owned by Mrs. Kennedy.

Just below this and distant past from a mind which still retains a vivid memory, came other residents by Mr. Vance. The first school, he recalls, was the small log house used as a temporary church, the second school was built between the present Main Street and Bridge Hall. Twelve pupils then attended class.

Residents at that time, when they wished to cross the river, depended upon the long gunpole punt or raft or simply forded it in ox-carts at the shallow places. A bridge was later to be built and when the first one was constructed, a rude structure of logs, it was washed away in the flood. Following a two year lapse, a more substantial bridge was erected by the government.

Wild Life Plentiful

Bancroft during the early days of his residence there was circled with wild life. Deer roamed the forests unspoiled by forest fires or the axe of the saw mill, and bears were legions who came later. Through the silent trails roamed wild animals and in the streams abided speckled fringe, howling their nightly serenade. Venison and bear steaks were staple articles on the daily menu; wild game was plentiful; even deer occasionally were killed in the streets.

Mr. Vance was married after a brief courtship in 1881 to Miss Walker of the village. One son, Robert, blessed the union. In the year 1883, following the death of his first wife, he married Miss Ella Mountjoy, daughter of Paudah Lake, Dayen miles from Bancroft village and Mrs. Vance still reside happily in a large white frame house only a few paces from the first log house erected in the western extremity of Bancroft that was his first home.

Still Fond of Open

No one in Bancroft and district at the present time is better known than James Vance, rightful heir to the title of "original Settler." Now, at the age of 81, his health is still as good, almost, as that of youth. Rightfully proud of his skill as farmer, he still keeps cattle, horses and pigs and is particularly fond of raising the latter. Just one difference exists between the slow moving oxen of the earlier days and horses of the present day, he declares.

"Then we had oxen we could let them loose, and no matter how thin the picking, they could generally forage for themselves," he said. "Horses won't do that. You've got to keep them in a stall and feed them. I think I'd rather have the oxen."

One of the curiosities of his people ten little farm is a pet pig which has learned to unhook the gate of the sty and wander off for a bit of freedom now and then. Mr. Vance is proud of the accomplishment of that porker.

Parliament Hill Hears

By Wilfrid Eggleston

He was walking to the House recently to one of the railway gangs which had been provided for the Coronation preparations, or sending word ahead so that he would be met, he took the train with his private secretary and dropped off at a flagstation not many miles from Ottawa.

There they looked about for some one who could tell them where one of these "extra gangs" was working. The only person visible in the vicinity was a man just about to set off down the track with a handcar, on which were several cans of water.

They asked him.

"Yes," he said, "there's one of them working about a mile down the track. I'm going down there now."

"May we go with you?" he was asked.

"Sure," he replied, "if you'll help pump."

So the party of three set off down the track in the "Irish Taxi" toward the work camp.

Nothing could induce the Minister to hitch his car. "It's always been my ambition to ride on one of these handcars," he said, "and I'm going to."

When they got down to the spot where the men were working, Rogers did, they sought out the foreman.

"My name is Rogers," said the Minister. "Mr. McLachlan, I presume?"

"Not a bit," answered the foreman. "We're from Ottawa, and we'd like to see the boss of this gang. These gangs are being looked after."

The foreman showed no sign that he knew the identity of his visitors, and the latter then whipped off a second

"WINGS OF LOVE"

(The Love Story of a Sky Pilot and Girl Who Planned on a Fifty-Fifty Financial System that Almost Wrecked Their Happiness)

By Janet Doran

Susanne turned heavenward, more than half sure that God, the Man Upstairs, would suffer another brainstorm before morning, and regret the decision. She hurried back to bed, with a name on it, and then slowly relaxed her form, when the name "Jo" crashed through her busy train of thought.

"John K. Kruger," the name read. "I came to see you about the property next door to you. Our client, Mr. Kruger," Susanne explained, "is this fellow, 4291?" May-I speak with Miss Nlade Shimmerdead, Hello, Nlade—this is Sky. How about going somewhere for some grub, and a dance, tonight?

His face was set in grim, angry lines as he flung open his closet door and took down his dress clothes.

CHAPTER IV

THE BUZZARD'S SHARP CLAWS

Nlade moved her plate ever so slightly back and forth, on the snowy cloth, and eyed Sky from lashes shaded. For slim, silver slippered feet moved appreciatively, to the lilting music, and from time to time, she moved one shoulder in time with the tune.

Sky, in his chair legended of Sky lightly, "awake? Or are you dreaming—you've thoroughly thunderclouded, and two tornadoes over each eye, when you go out to dine?"

"Well," Nlade smiled, "if I'm that much of a headache, why did you ask me out?"

"Let's dance," Sky offered percemptory, knowing it was easier to humor her moving around to music, than to answer her questions, "the music is good."

"That's a help, anyhow," Nlade sighed, "the food, the place and I seem to have nearly nothing."

Sky did not answer. He was sadly disappointed at himself for he had been idiot enough to think this evening would help him escape the maelstrom of thought that inundated through his tired mind. Why should he, one more burden to load could possibly make any of it lighter to carry.

"Where's the shining business light tonight, Sky?" Nlade's idle question brought him with his stream of unhappy thought like a splintering bolt of lightning and he blinked at her owlishly, almost losing step in his sudden confusion. "Thinking of the repeated deficits?"

"Sky! . . . see!" Nlade bit off emphatically and sky stared down at her angrily, and then followed her gaze, he stopped dancing in astonishment.

Susanne! Sunbone, resplendent in the new evening gown while evening gown he had even seen! Susanne with a group of people, obviously friends, laughing and talking and having the time of her life! Sky let his eyes rest on the stunning-looking man, obviously her escort. Obviously adoring her!

He beat Nlade's stricky toward the door, but Nlade's blond, slim and brown and compelling, restrained him.

"No, Sky," she said softly, "don't go. Not on account of this fun I . . . the time!"

She was silent, dizzy aware that his jealousy had been goaded enough on to believe things of Susanne, that he had not actually said nor accept. Dumbly conscious that Susanne was watching him, insanely, all evening without success. That the confusion in his mind had been the unconscious resistance to the licking, greedy flames of jealousy.

Now, before his eyes, was the proof that made mockery of that fear. Susanne, unconcerned, gay . . .

"Sell out," he muttered softly, as he led Nlade back to the table, coldly, impellingly, "forced landing!" A mental grin lifted his lips briefly, but it was not for Nlade to see, or know.

"Where to, Nlade? What next? Where do you do a good job on this one?"

The group of gay social registerites in the far end of the room, left, and with them, had left also, his thoughts, and Sky's mind was a mind all evening.

"I'll buy you a drink, first," he said, and Nlade flashed him a shrewd experienced glance.

"Sky," she said, he agreed softly, "it will put some speed into our getaway."

After that, things moved so swiftly, they became a blur in Sky's mind. Afterwards, he remembered many drinks, and many places. New faces, new faces. Nlade had said they'd do fun. They were. The Only Sky couldn't remember how or why. Nlade had said, though, because Nlade kept saying they were. Sky had a vague idea that after ever so often, "isn't this grand?" They danced a lot, and Sky thought Nlade was a marvelous dancer. Brown orchids and a balloon that Nlade had insisted on buying at the extra 50 cents was for the words, "Rub Rendezvous" printed across it. The brown orchids and the balloon, second-payment share in the living-room suite, Sky remembered hazily. How could it, when there was a rug that must have cost as much as the living room set, easily! "We ought to do this more often," Nlade smiled lazily, and Sky agreed.

Sky had drunk enough stades to teach flying to," he added.

"I'll help," Nlade offered eagerly, "I'll call you at Susanne's place in the Sky. I'll hound my friends and Susanne's friends to flying."

Sky didn't answer. He was morosely thinking that he didn't like dark girls, after all. It must have been a child-hood illusion. Dark girls were bad. Susanne was dark, and she had deceived him, and stolen his money, and his clothes, and his stockings.

"Done to a party, a dance," he muttered, his eyes hardening.

He turned back to the living room, and his eye caught the new rug accusingly for a flickering instant. Then he moved across it to the little table, and he looked up a number in the telephone book.

"Hello," he said after a moment, "Nlade? Sky Sunbone, speaking. Let's go home."

They got into a cab, and got out when Nlade's door was reached. He kissed him in the dark taxi, and a sense of perfect recoil lay across his mouth and chin like an accusing banner.

"Come on up with me, Sky, please? I'm always afraid from the elevator to my door—it's so dark!" she confessed.

"Come in a minute?" she coaxed, when finally came to her door, "Todd is out, and Mother's in Connecticut with my sister. I'll make you a drink!"

Sky followed her into the apartment and watched her curiously as she turned on the lights, flooding the room with the pretentious artistic fluttering light. He followed her into the kitchen, with its white enamel and ivory kitchen. He opened the bottle of London Dry, and helped get the ice out of the cube-tray.

Still he was moving in a strange dim dream. His muscles, moved automatically, and his mind mechanically conversation, answered to her bright prattle. But he wasn't thinking.

The real Sky was buried fathoms deep, in a seething, suffocating tumult of misery too great to fight through. The real Sky was miles away, in the past, being betrayed, mangled, after a girl in a white evening gown, and a blonde angel, talked with a man who adored her.

"Mud in your eye, you old spielbinder," he startled the glass.

Sky drained his, and refilled the glass twice more. Then he managed to see the gay little ivory wall clock, and the time. It was two.

Two-fifteen!

"I . . . I must be getting home," he blundered, "I've got an appointment in the door, her eyes narrowed in a strange feline glitter of triumph.

"Not the grandest time of my life, Sky," she said softly, wistfully, and Sky wrenched his gaze away from the clock's orchids and balloon, the extra 50 cents was for the words, "Rub Rendezvous" printed across it. The orchids and the balloon, second-payment share in the living-room suite, Sky remembered hazily. How could it, when there was a rug that must have cost as much as the living room set, easily! "We ought to do this more often," Nlade smiled lazily, and Sky agreed.

Sky had drunk enough stades to teach flying to," he added.

"I'll help," Nlade offered eagerly, "I'll call you at Susanne's place in the Sky. I'll hound my friends and Susanne's friends to flying."

Sky didn't answer. He was morosely thinking that he didn't like dark girls, after all. It must have been a child-hood illusion. Dark girls were bad. Susanne was dark, and she had deceived him, and stolen his money, and his clothes, and his stockings.

"Done to a party, a dance," he muttered, his eyes hardening.

He turned back to the living room, and his eye caught the new rug accusingly for a flickering instant. Then he moved across it to the little table, and he looked up a number in the telephone book.

"Hello," he said after a moment,

Constipation in Children

Health Service of The Canadian Medical Association

If constipation does not affect some member of your family, the following advice will be unnecessary. However, examination of the medicine kept in the home will reveal that over half of them are for the remedy of this trouble.

Many of the laxatives medicines are the easy but dangerous way out of the difficulty. The initial discomfort caused by the irritating action of the medicine is followed by more constipation. Some medicines are habit-forming, and a vicious habit is formed. Certainly in infants and children laxatives should only be used on the advice of the physician.

Constipation, or faulty elimination, may be caused by a poor diet, by chronic diet and correct habit training. A regular time, usually after a meal or on rising should be set aside for going to the toilet. Encourage out-door play and plenty of exercise. More water should be taken. It is a good practice to drink one-half cup of warm water on rising, before breakfast.

As well as the general measures outlined above, the proper selection of foods will prove effective. It will bear repeating: sufficient water is essential. The whole grain cereals which contain bran add bulk to the diet. Prunes, raisins, apples to the fruits and bulk vegetables are rich in vitamins. Wheat germ and brewer's yeast bring about better tone to the bowels.

In infancy constipation can be avoided by proper diet. It is the artificially fed. As far as the breast fed baby is concerned, there is no such thing as constipation. If the infant is allowed to go long enough. It will have its own regular soft movement and in the meantime will have no distress.

The control of constipation in children is to establish regularity of toilet habits and to employ a suitable diet.

Questions concerning Health, addressed to the Canadian Medical Association, Journal Building, Toronto, will be answered personally by letter.

"Susanne!" he called. "Susanne, where are you?"

Sky's voice was strident, and he picked it up in angry disapointment.

"Is this Crescent, 0535?0?" Nlade Shoemacher asked eagerly, "Sky?"

"Hi!" he shouted, "Where's number!" He slammed the receiver back hard into the table danced, and he glared at it with strange good measure.

"Done," he muttered, his eyes fixed gloomily on the offending new rug, "probably with Speed! Might have left a note, at least."

He wandered to the kitchen, and opened the refrigerator, and the shop, congealed peas, wilted salad, and a bottle of milk, gloom deepened and he turned disconsolately to the bedroom.

On the chair lay the box with the new lavender wool suit, and the blouse, sweater and shoes, still unpacked . On the bed, Susanne's evening suit, her gloves, purse, stockings.

"Done to a party, a dance," he muttered, his eyes hardening.

CONTROLLING TUBERCULOSIS

Everyone knows about diseases that are carried by germs. Some of the worst of these are tuberculosis and diphtheria. It is the last entry or forty years as a result of modern public health methods, to shield fever is one illustration. Typhoid, or shitty fever, ago. It was not uncommon for cities to have death rates from typhoid fever of 100 per 100,000 people in a year. Compare this with the rate to-day, it is almost a disgrace for a city to have a death rate of more than one or two per 100,000, and in many cities there are months when no deaths occur.

Yellow fever is another plague of a generation or two ago which is now very well controlled because of it.

Diphtheria which attacks children a few years ago, is certainly under control. Only a few cases of diphtheria have now had a death or even a case of diphtheria in several years, thanks to modern methods of isolation and treatment of the disease.

Smallpox, that scourge and terror of the middle ages, is now practically unknown. And so it goes, these dread diseases which were children's playmates, are now practically abolished.

Tuberculosis still far from being conquered, but it is responding to the more vigorous attack that has been made in recent years. It is now down to less than thirty-five years of this century than in the previous thirty-five years. In 1900 death rate from tuberculosis was 200 per 100,000 people. In 1935 the rate was down to 60 per 100,000. To-day it is 57.

It is a splendid ancestry and with the goal in sight we hopefully enter the year 1937. Everyone has a part to play because the last lap calls for the greatest effort, and if we are to succeed in gaining the victory over one of the plagues as has been gained over others, we must all do our part.

Given by Hastings Standard Christmas Number, the Toronto and the Kingston General Hospitals for Consumptives will continue to lead the way.

Madcap, hilarious and giddy . . . tuneful, gay and gorgeous. . . . is "College Holiday", now on the Belle screen until Tuesday, matinee daily. You can rate it right now as the biggest laugh hit in many weeks.

Headed by a half dozen of America's greatest fun makers, and supported by a cast of brilliant specialty performers "College Holiday", sets a new high standard in comedy with music for Hollywood to shoot at.

Jack Benny, George Burns and Gracie Allen, Mary Boland and Martha Raye are in charge of the laughs, and the assignments could not have been placed in more capable hands. The love interest is maintained by Marsha Hunt, Leif Erickson, Eleanore Whitney, Johnny Downs, Olympe Bradna and Louis DaPron with featured roles by Ben Blue and Etienne Girardot. A chorus of beautiful girls trained by Dave Gould introduces sprightly new dance routines.

"College Holiday" is the story of a pair of crack-pot cultists, played by Miss Boland and Girardot, who take over a bankrupt hotel, do it over into a Roman garden, and there proceed to find out if it is possible to do away with love. Gracie Allen plays the part of Girardot's daughter. She is endowed with a fifth sense which provides her with the ability, so she thinks, of determining who will be suited for whom. Benny, press agent of the hotel, brings a group of college boys and girls to the hotel . . . ostensibly for the experiment but actually to rally paying guests.

In this situation almost anything could happen and does. Martha Raye, the "find" of the year, who soared to the top wrung of popularity after only three film appearances, scores another smash success in "College Holiday" with that exhuberant, madcap and hilarious type of humor which is so distinctly her own.

The music in "College Holiday" also sets a new mark for Hollywood tunesmiths to shoot at. The Ralph Rainger and Ralph Freed team and Leo Robin and Bert Lane and Ralph Freed, have put their heads together to write "Sweetheart Waltz", "A Rhyme for Love" "So Should You" and the hit song, "Who's That Knocking at My Heart", all of which are in the 1-A class and all certain to be sung and whistled by the citizenry for weeks.

"College Holiday" is beautifully conceived and produced in every detail. It was directed by Frank Tuttle, to whom. an orchid.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Let's Make a Million"

As gay and merry a comedy as we should wish to see arrives at the Capitol for a midnite preview Sunday Midnite at 12.05 and continues on Monday, Tuesday and Wed. "Let's Make a Million", a story of one man's bonus and how it grew with Edward Everett Horton as the vet, and charming Charlotte Wynters as the girl he intended to marry —without reckoning with the "pixilated" client.

To Horton, a typical small-town business man in a typical American small town, the bonus is nothing short of a godsend. One of the things he wants to do is to make Miss Wynters his wife. But his maiden aunts, played by Margaret Seddon and M. Seddon and M. Wolfe, the famous "pixilated" pair of "My, Deeds Goes to Town", have other plans for his money. They want him to use it to buy a monument to honor his grandfather, the founder of the town, and while he balks they resort to convenient legal tricks to obtain the check which made them famous.

But everything works out very nicely, you may be sure, after Horton loses not only all of his town gallery in a stock subscription to honor the memory of his pals who wanted to share in the million dollar bonus money; But Horton not only gets his money and the girl, but the monument way, but becomes a rich man. The film ends with him and Miss Wynters bound for Niagara Falls after a series of hilarious circumstances which keep last night's audience in one continuous gale of laughter.

Porter Hall, one of the finest villains ever created by films, is on hand again with a new villainy in the film. His confederate is played by Irene Ware, who, as Hall's famous Irish character player, is also in the cast.

Added Attraction

Republic has rung the boxoffice register again with a fast and hilarious comedy romance built around the lives of three people inside a newspaper office, "Bulldog Edition", seen at His Time's with laughs and plenty of excitement. That fast talking team of Allen Kenny and Mary Walker, recently a hit in "Laughing Irish Eyes", knockout in "Hitch Hike Lady" and Reginald Toomey's talking smile and surprising acting ability are captivating.

Most of this lively picture revolves around the wise-cracking rivalry of Walker and Toomey for the love of their pesky newspaper cartoonist, Miss Knapp. The excitement, however, comes during the breaking of big stories in the city editor's room, and the consequent wild scramble of a racketeering gang bent on halting the newspaper's revelations of its underworld activities.

Locals Kept Out of Win Column by Good Work of Gibson

BOTH DEFENCES GOOD

Three Major Penalties Out of Sixteen Handed Out

HOCKEY—As the fans like it; as the fans go for it and in a manner that assures bumper crowds, enthusiastic patronage, in other words — hockey at its finest, brilliant and exciting category was the lot of the 1,000 or less, fans to witness the second session of the Belleville Redmen-R.C.A.F. Senior Intermediate O.H.A. tilt last night when the "Airmen" again triumphed over the locals by the score of 5 to 4, but only after one of the most bitterly fought and keenly contested battles seen locally in many years. With personal feelings running high and the play getting out of hand, battle outrivaled that saw practically all players on the ice in participation, brought rounds of applause and encouragement to the participants in the widest and most hectic game seen in some time. Although the two occasions befitted broken bones and fisticuffs were participated in, the fans did not disinfect.

Battling at practically even terms throughout the entire game, the locals surprised their opponents with a centred attack that not only put them pressing and carrying the play but at times predominating, especially during the middle of the first period, literally bombarding Gibson, the goalie, and leaving him with a rain of rubber, but failing to score. The first blot upon the escutcheon of Belleville defence of Bentley and Murphy, commanded the respect of the adversaries and were only overshadowed by the great work of Johnnie Lalonde, the elongated Fliers' rear-guardsman, who stood out as the star of the night's show. Wait, in the local net and Gibson for the Fliers, both turned in flashing efforts and were repeatedly applauded for their brilliant efforts and sensational saves.

Redmen Match Speed

Surprising even their most eager and ardent supporters the Redmen matched check for check, play for play, sock for sock and bullet for the Fliers in every department during the game. The defence of Wait, in the local net, Murphy and Bentley, defence, was doubtless the best combination teamed over the boards by any team thrown this season. The Jackson kids looked good for the most effective on the offensive, as no time entering into the tactics encountered by the latter strict attention to their business of playing hockey for which they were rewarded with a pair of scoring points. St. Louis and Mooney of the aggressive line of Whitby with McGuire, Burley and Ranstage following the latter's lead. R.C.A.F., Johnnie Lalonde stood out as the best player tossed over the boards, the former coming a point other direction, Gibson, in goal, made some sensational saves to rob his opponents of sure goals at close range. Lacombe, Hayes and McNeeley looked speedy and played good hockey on the forward line, with Pentland and Hayes on defence alongside Lalonde, who scored four of the Airmen goals.

The Play

As play opened the ice was hard but rough, causing a bouncing puck that troubled the players. Play was fast from the face-off, the Airmen having a slight edge until Partridge drew a penalty for tripping, Johnnie Kids and Barrage were around Gibson, but were stymied as the only scoring resulted as Gibson kick-ed and saved the puck to safety. Late in the period Lecompte passed around the defence, tore in on Wait, shot wildly out of position and passed to Eric McNeeley who had an open net into which he shot and scored. As the period progressed however, the Redmen began to find the play and finally met much stronger, and were rewarded when Johnnie Lalonde on a pass-out from Barrage, after repeated scrambles around the net Wait made two sensational saves early in the middle period, and Lalonde put the Fliers one up when he skated the length of the ice to beat Wait with a hard shot shot into the lefthand corner of the net. Three minutes later the same player was in position to take Lecompte's pass into the clear and with such force that it went right into the net for a goal. Lalonde made it 4 to 1 with another end to end rush that was one of the finest efforts of the game.

It was closely following this goal that hostilities broke out and general bedlam ensued in the south end of the rink. Burley, Belleville's fast skating right winger, took exception to an alleged butt and subswung lustily at Cowley's head to begin the spart. With arms acting as peacemakers and others entering pugnacious into the scrap, it was some time before Referee Holway could restore order with the result that Lalonde and St. Louis drew major penalties while Cowley and Burley, the originators were given minor penalties; Carl Morgan was decorating the penalty box also to add complications and subsequent misunderstandings. After order had been restored, Morgan being released came on to take Fred Bentley's place, as the latter made the count 4 to 3 at the end of the second period.

Lowery drew an early third period penalty, but Belleville gamed and Murphy beat Gibson from close in, taking Clayton Jackson's pass after a scramble. Lalonde again came to the Fliers' rescue and on a combined play with Cowley scored their fifth goal. The second free-for-all occurred at this point, Fred Bentley and Eric McNeeley drawing in from of the Airport net, to have penalties lifted by order of no one end of the ring and the game still progressing at the other. Both drew and the fans stood up to hoot and jeer, the players rehaved their gloves on the ice and when the smoke cleared somewhere Carl Morgan secured Belleville's fourth goal on a pass from Bentley. Morgan scored two goals and played his best game of the year.

Everything Goes

Most everything went from clipping, boarding, interference, holding, tripping, slashing and two fisticuffs to subterfuge that added spice to the pastime and sent the fans away well in favor of the Fliers' play for the next game which each consider very top soon. Interest in hockey in Belleville has taken a new turn and turning to its proper level in Belleville.

While all this was going on the Jackson Intermediates were having a target practice in the R.C.A.F. rock city at the expense of Trenton, Peterborough by the score of 16 to 3.

The lineup:

Belleville—Goal, Wait; defence, Bentley and Murphy; centre, C. Jackson; wings, R. Jackson, Barrage; subs, St. Louis, Burley, Morgan and Cowley.

SENIOR GIRLS OF B. C. I. RALLY TO DEFEAT NAPANEE

Last Minute Basket By Joyce Porritt Gives Victory

JUNIOR GIRLS WIN

Also Defeat Napanee With Score Close Till Half-Time

Two closely contested basketball games saw the Belleville Collegiate lassies triumph over the Napanee Collegiate girls at the B.C.I. gymnasium last evening when the B.C.I. senior aggregation secured a garrison finish to nose out the Napanee seniors by the score of 16 to 14, while the Belleville junior lassies marched triumphant to a 25 to 18 victory in two C.O.S.S.A. intermediate games. Keen, rivalry and a closely contested match marked both games.

In the senior game Joyce Porritt's last minute basket gave Miss Allen's Belleville girls the hectic victory two points to win over the Napanee girls by the score of 16 to 14. The senior tilt was nip and tuck throughout, the score standing 10 to 8 in favor of the locals at the half way mark. Both teams set up a strong defense to keep the scoring efforts of their opponents down to the minimum, but Joyce Porritt and Joyce Porritt were responsible for all visitors' points, the latter netting the point-getters were ably assisted by their team-mates. J. Clarke and Miss Murphy sank all of Napanee's points.

Junior Tussle

The junior lassies saw the visiting Napanee lassies battle the locals at rather even terms for the first half which ended with the latter leading by a gin of 8-2. A beautiful system of basketball was put on by the Miss Allison's "tri-colored" juniors in the last half, which soon assured the local seat of learning junkers of a margin in offensive that resulted in eight baskets for a total of 16 points, making the final score 25 to 16. Dot Carr and Jean Stobie were the most proficient marksmen for the local junior team, while the local defence played stellar ball throughout the entire game. K. Kent and M. Roney were the chief scoring threats of the visitors.

Both teams were quite keenly contested, as the following box score will indicate:

Sport Callings

By Ken Colling

If the arena management or those interested in the respective clubs are desirous of packing the Belleville arena to the proverbial rafters with humanity, all that would be necessary is to advertise another Belleville vs. R.C.A.F. intermediate hockey game and the desired effect will follow. Last night the boys dished up everything that goes to pack 'em in! There were fights, thrills, battles and what nots, major penalties, minor penalties and everything worthwhile to high sticks, boarding, too much interference for good hockey and maybe after it is all over, it's a good thing the Fliers and the Redmen don't meet again this season. There was an air of bad feelings from the drop of the puck at the face off and Referee Holway should have cracked down on the boys before the altercation got out of hand, and if the fans were left perfectly satisfied, a few lusty yells in the snozzle were heard when the boys decided they were injured and the Fliers were lucky to escape 5 to 4 with only one man to thank their "one man gang", Johnnie Lalonde, for winning the game. The latter was going both ways and scored three of the five goals counted by the Fliers.

We intend to skip over those futile outbreaks, with the exception of one. We have well-known Fred Bentley and have had dealings with him in both hockey and baseball for a number of years. We have yet to hear ridiculed Fred from any blame last night as we know that Fred never in his career consciously injured his opponent. He is a quiet unassuming young man, who has the happy faculty of being able to take care of himself. Personally we believe the rough condition of the ice was partially responsible for some of last night's trouble, although personal feelings were much too prevalent. The ice was hard enough, but rough. The life of a referee is no bed of roses at any stage of the game, but had Holway "cracked down" on a few of the offenders in the early moments last night he would not have had so much subsequent wrangling on his hands.

Somebody erred badly on Carl Morgan's penalty in the second period. The ref. pro. rules prohibit any no team shall be penalized more than two players at one time. Morgan drew a minor penalty following the serving of which he was instructed by the official timekeeper to return to the ice. It seems the whole trouble at the time Carl left as he was instructed and was wholly innocent, and, we believe, should not have received an additional penalty. Getting back to the discussion of fisticuffs and why no penalties were meted out. We merely cite what we saw. Referee Holway was on top of the play at the south end of the game and we hope to get in touch out and know nothing of the proceedings until the tingers had cooled off. As a matter of fact neither did some of the players who were playing hockey, rather than playing their opponents, which after all is the idea of the game.

Well, now the show is all over, the curtain has been rung down on Redmen-Fliers games for the season, it must be admitted the Thursday night gave the Fliers their nearest battle they will experience in quite some time. As a matter of fact we firmly believe the locals were in position to score on as many occasions as the "Airmen" in handing out bouquets they go to Ken Wait, Bentley, Murphy and the Jackson kids who played hockey all night and were never looking for trouble, while Lalonde, Gibson, Lowery and Lecompte carried honors for the winners. Same old former glaring, regardless as to how you look at it, kicks.

The Belleville Collegiate basketeers celebrated the innovation of the season's interscholastic basketball season, in the Bay of Quinte group of the C.O.S.S.A. with a quartette of victories, the B.C.I.V.S. lassies winning their senior tilt over Napanee C.I. 16 to 14 in a hard-fought exciting tussle while the Collegiate junior boys won over the same Napanee 25 to 16, with a last period rally. In the "boys" game the B.C.I. juniors trod rough-shod over the Albert College kids to win 50 to 7. In the senior game, however, the "Collegians" were lucky to win as they eked out a 12 to 12 victory over "Doc" Gordon's Albert senior squad. The Belleville Collegiate juniors had to come from behind to win this tussle.

In the junior boys' cage game yesterday, Coach Laughlin drafted fifteen players, three complete squads, which he used at different intervals, but the Fliers' forgetting out for positions on our junior school basketball team, Mr. Laughlin informed us after the game. The fact that 15 teen age boys are willing to sit on the bench if necessary, in order to catch the school team, is a credit to the true sportsmanship the cage game is rapidly taking on here in Belleville.

The Prince Edward County Gold Cup power boat races to be staged on the Bay of Quinte next summer in connection with Picton's Centennial have been sanctioned by the American Power Boat Association. All classes will be officially recognized as world's speed marks. Harold Wilson, with Miss Canada. II, Gar Wood, with Delphine IV, with maybe Kayr Don at the wheel are expected to be some of the starters for this first Gold Cup race ever to be held in the Bay of Quinte. It is expected that the world's 225 class power boat record will be broken on the course in the waters of the Bay of Quinte. A crowd equal to that for the Quinte Centennial Club's 209-mile Canadian championship canoe race at Picton is also expected to attend the Prince Edward Gold Cup races.

Harry Watts, Belleville Yacht Club packsters have been handicapped somewhat through the lack of ice upon which to practice, although some of the "Sailors" have been working out when possible on the club's open air rink on the harbour. "We have one complete line out at least once a day and hope to get in more practice over the week-end," comments Coach Hunnie today in announced Coach Hunnie today in announced Coach Hunnie today in preparation for the Sailors' second game in the Hastings County League. Incidentally the Smithfield squad journey to Stirling for a regular league fixture on Monday. A win for the Sailors would elevate them into sole possession of first place in the loop.

CAGE TEAMS OF B. C. I. DEFEAT ALBERT SQUADS

50-7 FOR JUNIORS

Coach Laughlin Uses Three Complete Teams in Contest

In title opening basketball doubleheader of the Bay of Quinte C.O.S.S.A. interscholastic groups, the B.C.I.V.S. junior and senior cagers took two games from their Albert College rivals in the Collegiate gymnasium yesterday afternoon, when the Collegiate juniors romped home to a 50 to 7 victory over the Albert kids, while the B.C.I. seniors were fortunate in eking out a 13 to 12 victory over the Albert seniors in a close-shacking hard fought cage tilt.

As the scores would indicate the senior intermediate game proved far more exciting and interesting to the filled gallery. The Gordon-coached Albert seniors forged ahead and set the pace in the early stages to be leading at the half-way mark by the score of 10 to 7. Early in the last half, however, the tri-colored Collegians applied several power plays to even the count early in the period, with one foul shot, completed by Howard Kerr, eventually proving the margin between victory and perhaps defeat. The final whistle found the B.C.I. squad on the long end of a 13 to 12 score, indicates the play, although the Albert boys proved themselves able to cate the basket while shooting casions for the black and whitery. Gordon squads looked rather weak around the cages while their timing in passing was very poor. The close-checking of both teams, however, kept the scoring down to the minimum. Kerr, Redfern, Clarke and Wright looked the best for the B.C.I. while Collegians while Clouse, Saunders and McDonald were the threats for Albert.

Tied Three Times.

In the junior game Coach Laughlin used three complete teams and his "Jays" were returned victorious in this game by the B.C.I. kids looked fast and clever to their Albert rivals. The Collegiate squad was leading 18 to 7 at the half-way mark, with Hitchon, Schoener, Thorne, Hinchey, Burns and Muirhead looked the best for the fifteen players to wear the Collegiate tri-colored outfits. Fraser and Carr, Albert juniors, also showed working hard. The B.C.I. squad was much too fast for the Albert, while their combination system at play completely baffled their rivals.

University of Montreal Defeats Queens 4-2 to Tie For First Place in Loop

Schedule is Interwoven And Keepers of Standing Befuddled

HARVARD AHEAD

U. of M. Never Headed by a Men of "Flat" Walsh

If University of Montreal students needed any justification for entering senior college hockey, they had it today in their team's standing at the top of the International Intercollegiate League.

They were tied at the top, after last night's 4-2 victory over Queen's, with University of Toronto, McGill and Harvard. That, however, hardly detracted from their jubilation for few had figured the Frenchmen to do so well this early in the season.

Meanwhile Major D. Stuart Forbes athletic director of McGill University and one of the founders of the college circuit—explained the set-up of the league which, with its actual five clubs, gives the keepers of the standings slightly the best of it.

Interwoven with the schedule of the International League, explained Major Forbes, are the Canadian intercollegiate games, for the Dominion's crown, and the United States intercollegiate games, for the U. S. title.

All games, between intersectional or league teams, count for the intercollegiate title, up to now, but not only games between teams of the same section count for the U. S. or the Canadian title.

Thus all four teams are tied for first place in the Canadian section standing with one win each, but that of M. has played four games, Queen's one out of five and McGill one each.

Harvard leads the American section with two win to two starts while Yale have won their only inter-sectional game. Princeton have lost one in one and Dartmouth two.

The standings, both sectional and intercollegiate, could be clarified today when Queen's make another try this time against McGill Redmen, at the Montreal Forum. Tigers lost at Princeton.

Paul Geisler sent U. of M. skidding at 16:18 of the first period when he sank his rebound after a pass from Roger Gagne. Queen's evened the score for a short while in the second period on Dave Carver's goal, a seldom threatened after Jean Arcand pushed the visitors in front for U. of M. late in the second.

Henri Richard's goal early in the third signalized a strong rally from Queen's and Johnny Poupore counted one and Jean Gagne, Gregor, made the game sure for the Montrealers, with a goal only a minute from the end.

STIRLING DROPS GAMETO NORWOOD

Score 3-1 With Stirling Team Being Together For First Time

Stirling, Jan. 23 (Special)—Stirling Red and White senior team took to the ice for their first game on the newly formed North Hastings League on Thursday night when they battled a team representing the towns of Havelock and Norwood in the league. The game was played in Norwood with the home team winning 3-1. The Stirling team seemed to lack condition and Coach Harry Cooley was well satisfied with their fine effort after only one practice. The local boys possess plenty of speed and after they get a few games under their belts they should work well together. Brunton and Reid, Norwood, were the goal getters for the Norwood team with the first mentioned scoring two goals and assisted and the second on a pass from E. Jodin. Norwood took a lone tally for Stirling with "Friday" Fraser getting the goal. Fraser was much superior in team play and combination.

Lineups:

Stirling—Goal, Fox; defence, McGowan and Jones; centre, Robinson; wings, Fraser and Rodgers; subs, Fraser, Butler, Hagerman, Dalton and Reid.

Norwood—Goal, Davidson; defence, Webb and Rogers; centre, Brunton; wings, J. Voyer and Jodin; subs, F. Voyer, Hagerman, Rodgers, Jones and Rothwell.

Referee—Wells and Ennis.

Stirling play their first home game on Monday when they meet Belleville's contribution to the league at the Stirling arena and with the interest being shown in the league's activities it seems quite possible that Stirling will enlarge a rink.

CAMPBELL'S RULING ON PENALTY SHOTS BRINGS CRITICISM

(By George Maguire)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Jan. 23.—(CP)—Although this is his first season officiating in the National Hockey League, Clarence Campbell, Rhodes Scholar and lawyer from Edmonton Alta., today can claim the distinction of being about the most-talked of official on the Major League circuit.

Players, fans, newspapermen and even managers commented on what was termed his "efficient" handling of games during the first half of the schedule. Now he has aroused considerable discussion over his penalty shot rulings.

Twice in the last ten days he has disagreed sensationally during the blue circle. Thursday Harvey Jackson netted one for Toronto and a week ago Happy Emms found the mark for New York Americans. Before a player takes the fatal scoring effort Campbell scrapes together the pucks left by Referee Rodden about a foot from the circle Apex Hanger lies, before he lets the stands adds an crouching position watching to see if the penalty-shot marksman moves in the direction of the circle before letting it fly goalward.

Rulings Claimed Perfect

If the penalty-shot rule is violated the rule but is not positive he only has to skate over to the nearest official and complain. Then the ice he will be swept away by the referee and a shot at goal will be called out.

His rulings are claimed nearly perfect by some, while others disagree, contending the following: Queen's have a strike the ice and Others think the penalty shot method should be altered.

Frankie Boucher, New York Ranger star, believes the circle should be abolished and that area marked out in the shape of a chute about six feet wide and 15 feet long. The player would be allowed to carry the puck in the designated area as that "is the natural method of delivering a shot."

Art Chapman, Americans playmaking pivot wants a return to the old method where the player skated while Dit Clapper, Boston Bruins veteran defenceman suggests that the circle across the centre rink so that Chamberlain could bring away from any angle as long as they don't cross the stripe.

Manager Conacher, York fans apparently want nothing more than more goals and suggests that maybe he can please Jackson and Emms got for their efforts in any criterion.

TRIBUNAL COSTS PAID BY COUNTY COUNCIL'S MOTION

Municipalities to Pay Own Reeves And Lawyer's Fees

LENGTHY ARGUMENT

Many Grants And Several By-laws Passed in Closing Session

A motion to the effect that "the County pay only the Equalization Tribunal fees as ordered by the Judges presiding over the Equalization Court, including Registrar's Fees" ended one of the warmest debates in the history of the Hastings County Council at the final January session yesterday afternoon. A heated argument featured the initial session as members of the various municipalities aired their views with the same problem as that of a few days ago confronting the Warden as the northern municipalities aligned themselves against those of the south.

The question of payment of costs incurred during the recent appeal of Equalization of Municipal Assessment was apparently the bone of contention. For three hours, in fact, practically the whole morning session was taken upon this debate.

"It is part of proceedings," Warden Wesley Craig declared that each township pay its own expenses to the Equalization Court just concluded.

Reeve J. Bronson—"We of the northern townships did not employ a lawyer to plead our case in the recent appeal against Equalization. We just couldn't afford it. And the feeling in the north is that if the south can employ expensive lawyers and have the County Council pay for them, then we feel that we should be reimbursed for our valuations and witnesses."

Dr. Lough—"Did I know that the County was going to pay for lawyers I would have had one."

Warden Craig—"I feel that each municipality should pay its own expenses in connection with these things. We must not put on any extra expenses on the County."

Signal For General Debate

These remarks were the signal for a general debate. First one councillor arose to his feet, and then another, each one putting forth arguments pro and con. The hum of conversation grew louder as the luncheon hour approached. County Councillors temporarily forgot their official dignity as they gathered in groups to discuss the matter.

Marmora and Lake Township and Frankford-Sidney being the appellants in the recent appeal against the municipal assessment were not called upon to pay their costs according to the Judgment handed down by the Provincial which was set at the appeal session, it was advanced by some members of the Council.

A motion to the effect that each municipality pay its own expenses brought about further discussion.

Reeve George Jordan thought that witnesses and valuators should be paid by the county, but that the municipalities should pay their Reeve's expenses.

Warden Craig—"I think it is very unfair that those municipalities who did not employ lawyers are requested to pay for the legal advice of other municipalities."

Following the spirited discussion, a motion to the effect that the "County pay only Equalization Court which are ordered by the Judges presiding over the Equalization Court."

Reeve Rollins deplored the fact that the county has been stung every year in regard to these matters.

"You are right," stated Reeve Ketcheson. "There is a feeling among my people that each municipality should pay its expenses incurred."

Paid Plenty in Other Years

"During the past years this County has paid plenty for the settlement of Equalization Assessments, and I think it is high time that we, as a Council, devise some plan whereby these differences in municipal assessment can be settled without going to court," declared a councillor.

Reeve Larkin—"I don't think that we should pay for the fees of other municipalities. We did not appeal. We had it forced upon us."

Reeve R. H. Woods (Huntingdon): "Who employed the valuators? Was it the County, the lawyers or the Reeves, that is what I would like to know."

At this point a motion to adjourn for lunch interrupted the proceedings and the members slowly filed out.

The afternoon session saw the proposal on the part of the Reeves of the two northern municipalities for the county to take over as part of its road system, those of Halfway in Bancroft and the road between Maynooth and Maynooth Station to Wicklow and Monteagle.

The boundary line between Wicklow and Monteagle.

Going into a committee of the whole on Ways and Means, Dr. S. H. Lough, Reeve of Bancroft ably took the chair.

Members of the council took up the question of indigent accounts as was suggested by the Board of Governors of the Belleville General Hospital when they wailed upon council the day previous when the accounts were noted singly with the various municipalities owing payment or non-payment.

The secretary of the jail surgeon, Dr. W. C. Morgan was set at $500.00. A grant was made to the Belleville Institute for Blind of $100.00. Argument resulted when a request for the grant of $100.00 from the Toronto Branch of the Salvation Army for Medonte Summer Resort was placed upon the agenda.

Compromise was reached when the council voted the sum of $70.00, the usual grant to the northern municipalities was paid. The usual grant of $200.00 to the township of Monteagle, and $150.00 to Bangor, Wicklow and Wicklow for road purposes raised a strenuous argument. The north again aligned itself against a solid south as arguments were waged both pro and con. And the motion was carried only when the vote was taken, but as strenuous were the arguments put up by the representatives of the north that debate started all over again and on the second count the motion carried.

Another heated argument ensued, when the question of the grant to the Public libraries of the county was brought up. Back and forth the verbal battle raged, and it seemed as the council sought to impress upon the minds of their fellows the failings and good points of their proposition. A motion to the effect that the sum be raised by the rate to $50—was lost by a 9-16 count.

Auditors Report Received

The bill concerning the reduction of the statement of the Auditors of the municipality of Herschel and Montegale for indigent hospital accounts amounting to $497.00 was paid. Road machinery to be purchased by the county for use on the roads of the northern part of the county, and the Roads Committee purchase a power grader for use on the roads was passed.

Several by-laws empowered the County Council of Hastings to borrow $34,665.00 in the year 1937.

Charles Marvin of Sidney, was appointed Corn Borer Inspector for the County of Hastings.

Auditors of the Administration of Justice appointed were James A. Haggerty and William Davis. Two members were appointed to the Board of Management of the House of Refuge.

A by-law empowered the Publicity Committee to provide the necessary appropriation to cover expenditures for the year.

A by-law to provide for expenditure on the system of county highways in the county as approved by an Order-in-Council.

MAN LIVES IN FAITH

Walking with Adjutant E. S. Alderman, one of the city's latest and most welcome arrivals who has come to Belleville from Hamilton to take charge of the local Salvation Army Corps, succeeding Captain Hendriksdorf who has been forced through circumstance to relinquish the local post and return to the same city, one gets only part of that inner glow, the faith and spirit that has been the driving force of his life since entering Salvation Army service twenty-two years ago. It is that same spirit and faith that has carried him to one of the highest posts of the Corps in spite of the many handicaps under which he has fought.

Tall, alert, twinkling-eyed, characteristically active, yet at earthly and human as his most humble convert, Adjutant Alderman has gained this experience through confidence that has been reposed with close association in human nature. He has officiated at the bed of dying men. He has supported the last words of spiritual comfort to the condemned and doomed, seconds before the trap was sprung by the hangman. WEST HUNTINGDON AND GLEN ROSS GAME WINNERS

Glen Ross Has Stronger Hold on Top Rung By Toppling Foxboro

ONE GAME ROUGH

West Huntingdon Had Too Much Ability For Bethel Crew

Stirling, Jan. 23 (Special)—After a week's lay-off due to poor ice conditions, activities in the Central Hastings Rural Hockey League were resumed at the Stirling arena Friday night when the fast skating Glen Ross crew took a firmer grip on the league leadership by downing Foxboro 2-1 in the fastest game of the season. In the other half of the double show West Huntingdon moved up out of the cellar position for the first time this year by handing Bethel a 5-2 trimming. The ice was fast and those two games were packed with every kind of thrill to be found in the sport. Even those who like it a bit rough were satisfied for midway through the Bethel-West Huntingdon game the players from paid their sticks and entered into small disagreement with Wright and Culhane getting major penalties for their share in the mix-up which added locale to a smart evening's entertainment.

First Game.

West Huntingdon went right to work as they took to the ice against Bethel who were short handed and played with only one sub. The pivot of their fleet-footed forward line also absent and "Westie" set a fast pace running it three of their counters in the first period. They had the game well under control at all times. Rodgers and Mott combined for the first one and Wright got the second with a pretty solo effort. Miles of the period left Mott clicked for his second counter. The speedy of Rodgers, Mott and Wright was a continual source of worry to Bethel and with no second line to relieve them the boys tired fast under the rivalry.

Early in the second period Judd McGowan was chased for a high sticking offence and Bethel put on a power play which resulted in Tapscott getting their only counter of the period. The crowd seemed to be pulling for the under-dog and as the weakening team a real hand for their splendid effort. A few minutes later Rodgers made it four for the "Westies" on a neat home run, and heavy body checks and high sticks began to appear. Topps turned in his best performance of the year and in it when Wright heaved a little extra weight on him after the whistle had shut Culhane dropped his stick and climbed with him. It was all over in a couple of seconds and after they had been pried apart Referee Townsend sent both to the penalty sidelines with five fingers held up.

McGowan, Wright, Culhane and Mott each served a penalty in this frame. Faux got the first penalty in the last period and while he was off Mott added the fifth counter to West Huntingdon's list. Bethel was awarded a penalty shot with Culhane standing for the shot but he turned back his rifle-like shot with ease.

Ray Dickey got the final counter of the game to make the score 5-2. Faux, Rodgers, Wright, Topps received penalties in the last period.

West Huntingdon—Goal, Barker; defence, McGowan and Reid; centre, Mott; wings, Wright and Rodgers; subs, Thompson, Faux and Thompson.

Bethel—Goal, Guay; defence, Faux and Silks; centre, Dickey; wings, E. Dickey and Culhane; subs, Downey and Topps.

Referee—Wallace and Townsend.

Second Game.

The second fixture of the evening was really a "honey" with Glen Ross having a slight edge in speed and combination but Foxboro battling gives real flashy display. Lee, Hanna and Chapelle looked real good on the first line and Sinfield in goal and the first man in is a real terror of strength to them. Cool headed at all times, he turned away rifle-like as many shots as Hagerman in the Glen Ross net. Robinson got the second counter for Glen Ross when he took a pass from Brooks about six feet out. Glen Ross had every shot in—aids Foxboro's blue line for about five minutes and showered Sinfield with rubber from every direction but he turned them all back. Don Lee finally broke away and beat Hagerman and his counter gave new life to his team mates. The last period found the play about even with both teams waiting for a break and "Pappy" Fraser got it. With Foxboro forcing the play he broke loose on the only one man to beat and though he was off balance when he took his shot it was too fast for Sinfield and the game ended 3-1 for Glen Ross.

Lee, Hanna and Chapelle were the best foo "Foxes" with Sunderland and Wall turning in fine efforts. Sinfield in the Foxboro net was the outstanding performer of the entire evening. Fraser brothers, Robinson, Hagerman and the Dalnard brothers were the pick of the boys from "up the river".

Foxboro—Goal, Sinfield; defence, Hackman and Guay; centre, Lee; wings, Hanna and Chapelle; subs, Gay, Sharp, Sunderland and Wall.

Glen Ross—Goal, Hagerman; defence, Brown and Gerry Fraser; centre, Robinson; wings, "Pridie" Fraser and H. Hagerman; subs, Brooks, Scott, MacDonald and Dalnard brothers.

Referees—Wallace and Townsend.

The boys taking part in the games of the Central Hastings Rural Hockey League have been giving the fans an improved brand of hockey each year and this year they have a large following of real supporters and by the time the play-off dates arrive they should be packing them in.

6 N.H.L. GAMES OVER WEEKEND

Toronto Leafs Can Improve Position by Winning Pair

Something like 50,000 persons will see National Hockey League games over this week-end. The schedule makers have drawn up six games that will draw crowds of thousands from Chicago to Montreal.

Four teams are taking it the hard way with games tonight and tomorrow, playing the same team both nights. The world champion Detroit Red Wings play Maroons in Montreal tonight and then travel back to Detroit with them for a Sunday contest.

Toronto Maple Leafs and New York Rangers tangle in Toronto tonight and then play in New York tomorrow night. The teams consider it a big improvement over the old system under which they sometimes played one team Saturday and travelled overnight to meet a fresh opponent.

Games at Boston and Chicago Sunday round out the half dozen games. New York Americans play Bruins and Montreal Canadiens take on the hapless Hawks.

And with 8-5 Leafs playing, four of them twice, there can be only two changes in the standings. Saturday night tie the Maroons for second place in the Canadian division by beating Rangers while the Americans dropped two. The outcome of the Rangers and Leafs' games will decide their tie for second place in the American division.

COACH ALLEGES POOR REFEREEING

O.S.D. Hockey Team Defeated in Napanee by 4-3 Count

Penalties proved the undoing of the O.S.D. senior interscholastic hockey team in their scheduled game with the Napanee Collegiate last night, when the Napanee stickmen won on three goals to two by the score of 4 to 3 in a regular Bay of Quinte senior O.C.S.S.A. tilt. The score by period was 2-2; and 3 to 2 for Napanee.

Kinkiel, Perry and Major were the marksmen for the O.S.D. with Walton getting one assist and Perry two on combination plays. Coach Frank Cunningham returned home with his O.S.D. charges late last night very much annoyed regarding the alleged poor refereeing on the part of the night's official. "We were literally robbed. I do not believe in criticizing the work of an official, especially after being defeated, but the fact that our boys received 12 penalties and Napanee only one doubtless speaks for itself and substantiates my statement," Coach Cunningham stated today as he added that the O.S.D. boys played heads-up hockey all evening and were far superior to the homesters. "We had two players in the penalty box when the winning goal was scored in the last period," added Coach Cunningham.

The line-ups—Napanee C. I.—Goal, Moore, defence, Switzer and Exler, forwards, Holmes, Gilbert and Barrett subs—Leary, Culhane, Wartman, Fraser and Gulin.

O.S.D.—Goal, Train; defence, Melnyk, Pallie; centre, Bastian; wings, Major and Kosti. Subs—Walton, Kinkiel, Nahrgang Pierce, Perry, Byers and May.

Referee—Maurice Kinkley of Napanee.

TWEED DEFEATS MADOC BY 8-5

Old Rivals Meet in Opening Game of Hastings Loop

Tweed, Jan. 23 (Special)—Tweed and Madoc, old rivals in the sport field, renewed hockey hostilities in the Tweed arena on Friday night when the opening game of the Hastings Valley League was played. The locals nearly doubled the score of their opponents, the final count being 8 to 5.

As with all games between these two teams, it was no pink-tea affair. Fast hockey and heavy body-checking featured the play. The close checking for the first few minutes kept the opposing forwards from getting in for close shots. At seven minutes "Shorty" Long flashed the red light with a smart shot from the wing. Inside of four minutes the locals had bagged five goals—a most unusual happening against the smart Madoc aggregation. "Baldy" Leal, Hebury and Jack Tumeson were the goal-getters with Leal notching two. Abey scored from a scramble to be followed in a few seconds by a second marker from Vronick. Maguire counted with a minute to go to make the score Tweed 6, Madoc 2.

Coals were fire in the second frame as the game tightened up. Nickle and Thompson, rival goalies, had but little to do as the sticking forwards came to grief at the opposite defence. Whytock and West, husky Madoc defence men, have both rounded into form yet. With two minutes to go "Baldy" Leal tallied his third counter, getting Maguire's rebound. "Boyo" Alexander scored from the blue line, Thompson made for the stop but the puck hopped over his stick for an easy counter.

Courneyea opened the scoring in the final frame on Long's pass. Vronick got the puck seven minutes later, followed by Embury's goal to make the score 8 to 4. There was no further scoring although both goalies were forced to make some hard stops. Nickle was particularly good when the puck carrier was right through.

Leal; subs, J. Tumeson, Courneyea.

DAILY SHORT STORY—
Guilty Conscience

By Francis Paul Pyne

Shifty Rogers (he of the "ticking fingers") nonchalantly carelessly the small string of pearls he held in the hollow of his hand. His small, squinty eye lit up with almost fanatical glee. He held the pearls away to make a final survey and his experienced eye missed not a single detail. The pearls were flawless.

"Beauties!" he exclaimed. "I'll cash in on these plenty. That fat old dame will certainly let out one awful squawk when she finds they're gone. I'll bet they're worth a fortune. I'd better breeze before she starts bellerin' or the whole hotel will be on my head."

With this thought in mind Shifty sacked quickly. He reached inside his vest pocket and took out a small black case from which he extracted a needle and some black thread. Then he bent low and straightened the small string, placing it carefully inside the left trouser cuff. He then performed a deft operation with needle and thread. Shaking his trouser cuff vigorously while an amused smile played about his thin lips, he picked up a zipp from a chair near the door and strode out.

Down in the lobby he turned in his key to the clerk, paid his bill and then seated himself in a comfortable arm chair. It wouldn't do to rush right out, somebody might remember a thing like that later when the theft would be discovered. No, sir, nothing like that. He'd wait ten, or fifteen minutes and then slowly take his departure unnoticed.

To pass the time away Shifty let his gaze wander over the lobby until it rested on a woman opposite him. She was fashionably gowned and attractive but what interested him most was a diamond studded platinum bracelet she wore on her left wrist. Too bad, he thought that his recent acquisitions necessitated his leaving so quickly. He would have been immensely pleased to add that bracelet to his collection.

He had been occupied in this fashion for about five minutes when he was conscious that some one was watching him. Glancing guardedly around the lobby he saw the cause of his uneasiness. It was Tom Deegan, the house detective, at the far end of the lobby, standing behind some palms. Deegan's small steely gray eyes seemed to bore right through Shifty even at that distance and he wet his lips nervously. Could it be that the old dame had discovered her loss already? And was Deegan wise to him?

But the sight of Deegan determined Shifty's next move and in a moment he was on his way to the street. Once outside he walked in a leisurely fashion around the block after two or three blocks glanced surreptitiously over his shoulder to see if he were being followed. Convinced that he wasn't, he hailed a taxicab, gave the driver instructions and settling back comfortably in his seat lit a cigarette.

Fifteen minutes later the cab pulled up before a somewhat ramshackle tenement Shifty alighted, paid his fare, and then after a careful glance up and down the street ran up the step, two at a time.

On the third floor, in the rear, he stopped and let himself into a small pitch-black room. Once inside he lost no time in lighting a lamp and drawing a chair close to the table within its feeble ray. Next he put his feet on the chair and bent over his trouser cuff. As he was about to extract the necklace from its hiding place he was startled by the opening of his door. Frankly, he realized that this haste be h' neglected to lock it. He turned f und in a flash and reached for his gun, but he was too late. Framed in the doorway stood Tom Deegan, the hotel detective, covering him with his pistol. Deegan knew Shifty's reputation and wasn't taking any chances.

"Surprised, sinclair!" Deegan asked. "I would have nabbed you in the lobby only the manager wants a-plain shtatting a scene on a hotel property. Come on, let's have the stuff. And mind you, no funny work. It isn't worth getting mussed up over, only the hotel is particular about these things. You know we've had our eye on you ever since your first visit to the place. But this time we've got the goods on you."

Realizing that he was in a tight spot Shifty reached down and brought up the necklace, handing it to the detective. Deegan's eyes were as big as saucers. He reached out and grabbed it.

"I thought she'd soon put up a squawk," Shifty said, "But tell me, how did you get hep that it was me who pulled the job?"

"Good heavens man!," Deegan gasper, "when you tried so hard to give me the slip, I figured there was some reason. I didn't know you had pulled a trick like this. What I was looking for was the item set and those six towels you took from your room."

"Jeez se-. Six towels! But I. That is—" Shifty's voice died out. His eyes were glassy. He was speechless.

Back at the hotel Deegan rushed across the lobby till he came to the desk, Mr. Matthews, the hotel manager was talking to the clerk.

"Mr. Matthews," Deegan spluttered.

Mr. Matthews held up his hand. Deegan stopped speaking.

"Yes, I know what you're going to say, Deegan," Matthews said. "It was the maid's fault. The item was missing from 243. Rogers you can't blame her."

Deegan just grinned.

Tarzan, son of an jungle creatures was the swiftest, decided to go ahead, so that he might try to save Muviro's daughter before serious harm befell her. "I go to Xkrun," he said, "to talk with the Bukena tribe. I believe they are nearest the Kavuru country."

Without further words, without useless goodbyes, he swung away into the dripping trees. With him went the little monkey Nkima, whom he might send back for aid, if need be. And on the morning of the third day, the trow travellers came to the kraal of the Bukena.

Tarzan had been there recently. At that time, inspired chiefly by curiosity, he had made inquiries about the notorious Kavuru. So when the fifteen natives and whispering among themselves. NORTH AMERICA LIFE CO. GAINS

Annual Meeting Told of Progress During Year 1936

At the annual general meeting of the North American Life Assurance Company held at Toronto, General manager, D. M. Kilgour, said that "new business for the year was $38,180,202. Representing an increase of $507,360 over the previous year's amount. It is very gratifying to note that the substantial improvement in the business which was made in the two preceding years has been more than maintained."

Total business in effect at the end of the year reached the sum of $211,196,004. This amount includes both insurances and deferred annuities, and is computed in accordance with the changed definitions for business in effect, on this basis the increase for the year was $11,136,306, or over 5½ per cent of the amount in effect at the end of 1935 as computed on the same basis.

Total income for the year was $11,316,775, being an increase of $940,852, or over eight per cent. Premium income, which forms the principal part of this total, increased from $9,749,077 to $10,689,874. It is significant that substantial increases, were registered in renewal premiums as well as in first year and single premiums. Investment income was also at a high level.

Total reserves held in respect of assurance and annuity contracts are now more than $180,000,000. Change has been made in the company's statement of policyholders' liabilities, which provides reserves substantially in excess of the minimum standard required by the Dominion Insurance Act.

Assets of the company's assets now amount to nearly $55,000,000, showing an increase during the year of about $4,000,000. The principal assets show the following distribution which is indicative of the high degree of diversification:

Government and Government Guaranteed bonds 26.8 per cent; Municipal Bonds 18.4 per cent; Corporation Bonds 24 per cent; Preferred Stocks 3.5 per cent; Institutional Stocks 2.1 per cent, and Common stocks 1.5 per cent; Policy loans 14.8 per cent; Mortgages on city properties 16.5 per cent; on Farm Properties 3.5 per cent; Agreements for sale of real estate 1.1 per cent; Real Office building 1.8 per cent; other real estate 1.9 per cent; and cash 1 per cent.

The president, T. Bradshaw, in the course of a very encouraging review of present-day conditions told the shareholders that the company

"I believes today your assets—in quality, diversification, in earning power and in value at which they are carried in the balance sheet, may command your fullest confidence. The numerous and large obligations assumed by our company, during our life time, will demand that our resources and their care shall be given careful consideration.

"Turning to Canadian affairs one cannot help but be imbued with the spirit of confidence that pervades the year end surveys and forward view appearing. Concrete evidences of better conditions are being recorded, indicating the spreading out of the recovery movement."

PROVINCIAL

Legislature in 1935 passed a bill authorizing the contracts be declared null and void. It has been decided ultra vires of the legislature. Attorney-General Conant has now brought in a bill to make of no effect judgments against Hydro on the strength of the above contracts. Mr. Henry spoke in the legislature yesterday in support of the bill.

"This legislation should be put on the statute books till the people speak," he said. "The government should withdraw this bill and go to the country on what they call a major issue."

Mr. Henry, first opposition speaker of the session, had opened Thursday, attacked the Hydro bill in a two-hour speech. He didn't get down to cases until he had made a storm, caused by an accusation in connection with the Sandwich by-election, Dec. 9, had subsided.

Charge Withdrawn.

Regret at the absence of Premier Mitchell Hepburn, now on a health trip to Arizona, was first in Mr. Henry's speech. Then he sounded a note of confidence in the Liberal East Conservative victory.

"No doubt if the Prime Minister hadn't attempted to purchase the riding with the help of the Hydro province, the majority would have been twice what it was," he said.

Acting Premier Harry Nixon objected to the charge. Speaker Norman Sinclair ruled the remark must be withdrawn.

"I love to pour ridicule but the people know the facts are true," said Mr. Henry.

Niagara power system now operates on a 10 per cent, reserve margin, said Mr. Henry. This was too low. The people are more anxious for an assurance against a power shortage than for lower rates, he contended.

Bracken Challenged.

Attorney-General Roebuck was challenged by Mr. Henry to prosecute those who negotiated the Quebec power contracts.

"He refers to them as being engaged in something sinister, disgraceful and disgusting," he said.

There could be no question of the 1926 and 1929 agreements. If they did the government was asking it to do so, Mr. Henry. The question was Sir Wilson.

The Attorney-General erred in citing action of Sir James Whitney, Conservative Premier in 1909, as setting a precedent for his present bill said Mr. Henry. While it was true Whitney had stopped actions against Hydro in Gale, the matter had first been submitted to the people in a general election. Mr. Roebuck's action would be satisfied if the Hepburn administration could do the same.

Willing to Negotiate.

Mr. Henry said he had no doubt the Quebec power companies were willing to negotiate on the contracts.

"The 1926 agreement was drafted with two of the companies and one is willing to sell as much power to Ontario as was contracted for in the 1926 and 1929 deals.

"The premier is hitched to the power lawyers now," Mr. Henry said. "So is the Attorney-General who together with the minister of highways, is the whole of the Ontario cabinet. I don't suggest anything sinister in it is a good business."

There was every reason, he went on, Hydro to get together with the Ottawa Valley Power Co. on Chats Falls development possibly with the idea of purchasing the company's interest."

"The Gatineau contract was revived as it should have been," said Mr. Henry. "Power charge was reduced $2.50 at a time when money

Improvement Needed in Fall-Made Cheese

Senior Dairy Grader Returning From Trip to Old Country Gives Hints on Better Type of Cheese—Many facts as Soft ends; Poor Flavor and Fast Texture.

T. J. Hicks, Senior Dairy Products Grader, Dairy and Cold Storage Branch, Dominion Department of Agriculture, returned recently after spending three months visiting the milk centres of England, Scotland and Northern Ireland where Canadian cheese are handled. As the annual convention of the Dairymen's Association of Western Ontario, held at London, Ontario, 13 January, 1937, he related some of his experiences. The object of his visit was to interview the importers, wholesalers and distributors of Canadian cheese, to investigate complaints as to quality and to secure information beneficial to the cheese industry of Canada.

With regard to conditions in Great Britain cheese generally handled cheese. Mr. Hicks told the convention that it was quite evident that the quality of cheese made in Canada during the fall of 1936 in the Canadian fall-made cheese show more maturity when shipped had had good keeping as it was sailed that October and November Canadian cheese were better than in previous years. Most of the Canadian cheese sold in March and April, although several firms did not sell all their stock until July or August, and a few lots were in the market after Mr. Hicks arrived. Some of the cheese examined by him were fairly good but others were quite disappointing. The main defects were soft ends; not clean in flavour; weak; pasty or slightly acid in texture. There are still in the United Kingdom some large importers who will not take a chance on these Canadian cheese. They claim that, due to their having been down properly and usually develop a bitter or other objectionable flavour, that the importers maintain that the consumers do not want these cheese. Mr. Hicks explained to them the effort that is being made by the quality of Canadian fall-made cheese and also that the Canadian exporters were co-operating with the Canadian Dairy and Cold Storage Branch to improve the texture of the fall-made cheese by holding it in the warehouse at the higher temperature.

Mr. Hicks examined several shipments of the 1936 early October cheese in London, Liverpool, Manchester and most of the cheese appeared to be of fair quality. The texture was fair but the cheese cheese the quality was satisfactory. Of course, the cheese were too green were very mouky and it would appear that they had either been made too fast or had been exposed to heavy rain during transit. Other cheese had too much moisture and showed a weak, pasty texture and were breaking down too fast.

can be had for almost half the price ruling when the contract was negotiated. Terms of the new contract should be such as to reassure than if the old one prevailed."

Steam Plants Suggested.

Sir Adam Beck, said Mr. Henry, favored purchase of power at $15. He suggested steam plants for peaks to help the Quebec companies' prices down to the agreed figure. Ontario Hydro engineers agreed $15 was the proper price.

"The attorney-general didn't tell you that Gatineau power at $15 was delivered at Lasalle cheaper than it could have brought Niagara power," he said.

"The attorney-general talks about Dead River Falls, the Nipissing River and the Madawaska as if they were new sources of power," said Mr. Henry. "He knows that the matter had first been submitted to the people in a general election. The Liberal party would be satisfied if the Hepburn administration could do the same."

Willing to pay over a cock-and-bull story."

LAKE-ON- MOUNTAIN OVERFLOWS BANKS

Affording one of the strangest sights phenomena in the history of Prince Edward County, the Lake-on-the-Mountain at Glenora, some three miles south of Picton, overflowed its banks this week with water as it rose to the highest recession across the roadways. So accustomed was the flood that school children were dismissed from school early in the day to prevent them from being cut off from their homes.

The lake has no inlets nor is it reservoir for other bodies of water owing to its lofty position on the mountain. Many Prince Edward County "oldtimers" say that the present flood is the highest mark of the parts of the lake that sounding is impossible.

Board Room Gossip

International Nickel

We believe that the relatively quiet market that has been prevailing for International Nickel' for some time back affording investors a good opportunity to accumulate additional stock for substantial appreciation before the end of the year, state Greenshields & Co., in an analysis of the prospects for the shares.

At its recent high price in London, equivalent to about 73 cents a pound, copper was approximately 50 per cent. higher than in November last when International Nickel sold above 60. The effect of this rise in the price of copper on International Nickel's earnings, with the added consideration that the company has turned into 1937 with a capacity about 25 per cent. greater than a year ago, is being temporarily ignored by the market.

It has been characteristic of all important upward movements in International Nickel shares through the last three years that these movements have been preceded by periods of narrow fluctuations and reduced volume of trading. Since November volume has been only about one-third to one-half of the volume of last Autumn when the shares were rising to their best price since 1929. That rise started from around $30 in August and followed a narrow price movement in the early summer months of the narrow movement of the last six weeks.

Market Comment

An impressive feature about current market strength locally is the comparatively small volume of selling pressure. Stocks are changing hands over a narrow area to take profits. In other words, the buying is much more aggressive than the selling.

Many people have often wondered why apparently worthless stocks such as the sub-prime issues in the food group, Maple Leaf Milling Pfd., Canada Bread Pfd., and Canada Pacific Grain Pfd. were at new lows. Calmers in the list included Canadian Car and Foundry Common, Dominion Steel, the Steel of Canada Stocks and Canadian Pacific. The Bridge issue was at a new high.

WALL STREET CLOSE

New York, Jan. 22 (AP)—With strikes and floods tempering market sentiment, stocks today turned in a bit difficult today although oils, utilities and specialties continued to find favor.

While buying spree was lacking in most categories, a number of good-sized post-depression highs were registered and in the motors and steels exhibited resistance. Transfers were around 1,000,000 shares.

TORONTO MINES CLOSE

Toronto, Jan. 22—(CP)—Half the active issues on the Toronto mining share market today ended on a firm note, they closed higher all round. In the metals there was a small was up about 13 cents, Sladen up about 10, Hollinger up 10 and Stadacouna, up 4 cents.

Calgary Normoyle, Morland, Dalhousie, Noranda and Pacalta were the best bets in the oil group, Gains of 5 to 12 cents are recorded for Dalhousie, Calgary-Edmonton, Morland, Noranda, Bargal, and Foothills.

The golds were also steady including Teck Hughes, O'Brien, Little Long Lac, Pickle Crow, Wright Hargreaves and Ymir. McIntyre, Sylvanite added 10 cents and Premier, Lake Shore and Pamour dropped a few cents each. Bankfield added 11 cents.

ACTION UP TO M.O.H.

Staple Winter Vegetables Offered at Regular Prices

PLENTY OF FOWL

Rhubarb Novelty Offering at This Time of Year

"The hens are working overtime," declared a fair vendor of this product at the city market this morning, in an explanation of the marked decrease in prices over those of a week ago. With buyers paying twenty-two cents the dozen for "A" selects, vendors on the market quoted prices at twenty-five cents for the good quality with "A" mediums offered at twenty-two cents and the pullet variety moving fairly well as twenty cents. A few extras were quoted at twenty-eight but these were scarce.

Business on the whole was sluggish with vendors and shoppers composing the smallest number noted for a long time.

Chickens were fairly plentiful and moved at prices which compared favorably with those of a week ago. A good quality of young chicken averaged in price between sixty-five and ninety cents, while fowl mainly moved at from seventy-five cents to one dollar.

In keeping with the general downward trend of produce prices, potatoes fell two cents for 10 pounds for fifty-five cents, with an occasional vendor asking sixty cents for a ten pound quantity. Whipping cream held firm at 15 and 30 cents, while sour cream was in plentiful supply. Sauerkraut was plentiful with fairly heavy sales moving at from seventy of their stock at 10 cents a quart. Homemade bread and cooking moved in a few unlikely cases, but moved briskly at popular prices.

Honey Plentiful

Honey was quoted at fifty cents for 1½ pounds, with smaller quantities selling at the same scale of prices. Horseradish in bottles sold at 10 cents for small and medium containers.

Staple winter vegetables featured the outside market with turnips at 3 cents a pound or 50 cents, mixed at $1.00 and parsnips at 75 cents for bushel lots. White cabbage held from 4 cents, according to quality. Bean squash in varying sizes were offered at 5 cents and 10 cents.

Front and hind quarters of beef were offered at six and eight cents per pound respectively.

Apples showed a tendency to drop from the price of last week with the product being fairly plentiful today. Spotty apples were quoted at $1.75 with $1.80 being asked for a few of a better type. Bananas held at twenty-five pound containers. There was little change in the price of oranges, purchasers apparently waiting for a decrease in price.

Fish Varieties Offered

Winter apples were fairly plentiful today with Ontario and Northern Reds moving briskly at $2.00 per bushel basket. Spotties were offered at $2.00 for select variety, while cooking apples were offered at $1.10. Tokays and Malagas at 75 cents the peck with Snows moving at the same price.

A novelty at this time of the year was white fish which caught the eyes of early morning shoppers in the fish section which sold sold at 10 cents the bunch.

Fish lovers found plenty to rave about and the market was filled to a good variety. Mudcats sold at 10 cents the pound, while smoked whitefish at 18 cents, fresh codfish at 15 cents, haddies at 15 and pickerel and flounders at the same price rounded out a variable market.

Hospital Patients Will Miss 'Their' Boy

Red-thatched, six-year-old Peter Masson, Trenton, sprightly little patient of the Belleville General Hospital for the past month or so, has departed from the hospital after a particularly difficult operation for appendicitis, will return to his home in Trenton this afternoon.

Peter will be missed by nurses and patients alike, for the little lad endeared himself through his sunny personality and willingness to help with the ordinary routine duties of the institution and a contagious smile.

Seldom did the busser sound that he did not have the assistance of Peter the service needed and relay the message to the proper attendance. Not even the busiest of the doctors were too busy to take time out to romp with the little redhead and spend a moment or two in serious conversation with attentive patient.

Young Peter received in abundance from other patients and visitors, but with the goodness of an heroic hospital staff was lavish in their distribution to others less fortunate. During the long watches of the day the hours of those who had to be confined to bed, the careful solicitude of those confined to their cots.

Peter will leave Sunday but in his place will be left a gap that will be hard to fill, for nurses and patients alike are free to admit.

HALF MILLION RENDERED HOMELESS IN U.S. FLOOD

Power, Water and Food Shortages Add To Woes In Ohio Valley Flood

Flood Waters Sweep Through Kentucky State Reformatory at Frankfort Where 15 Convicts Are Reported Slain in Rioting

58 PERSONS DROWNED IN FLOOD

Guardsmen Threaten to Remove 5,000 Residents From Portsmouth, Ohio, Who Refuse to Abandon Their Homes

(By The Associated Press)

Power, water and food shortages added to the torment of fire, flood and disease today in the Ohio river valley, focal point of rising United States river waters which swept disaster into 10 States and left an estimated 500,000 homeless.

At Cincinnati, where blazing gasoline tanks riding the swirling waters brought an ever-present fire-menace, officials feared emergency lines carrying electricity from Dayton and other centres might be cut-off, leaving the city to the mercy of the water and flames.

200,000 Homeless in Louisville, Ky.

Louisville, Ky., was in darkness overnight, with 200,000 of its 330,000 population homeless. National guardsmen threatened to use force to carry 5,000 more from Portsmouth, Ohio. Flood water swept through the Kentucky State Reformatory at Frankfort, where unconfirmed reports said 15 convicts were slain in rioting.

As the area counted at least 44 flood dead, rivers continued to rise farther upstream, tightening the menace. At Wheeling and Parkersburg, W. Va., flood weary householders again sought relief shelters as the river rose. Northward, at Pittsburgh, meteorologist W. X. Brotsman feared the Monongahela and Allegheny rivers again would reach a 33-foot crest.

Unprecedented Level Forecast

The brightest dawn in four days brought some revival of spirits to Louisville, but Mayor Neville Miller urged all residents to evacuate. The river reached 54.9 feet shortly after dawn, government meteorologist H. L. Kendall predicted an unprecedented level of approximately 58 feet by tomorrow.

As the rising Ohio reached a 79.1 foot stage at Cincinnati, the worst fire in the city's 148 year history broke out anew, but was controlled by firemen. The city will receive but four hours of water daily on rations. Pumps were out of operation. Electric power was rationed also. Hospitals, police and fire departments were first on the list.

Situation in Detail

A rising river stage left fully 25,000 homeless and hungry at Portsmouth. At Pomeroy, Ohio, the 3,500 residents were without power or gas. Bellaire and Bridgeport were virtually isolated. Governor Martin L. Davey called a special legislative session at Columbus to appropriate $150,000 for flood relief. Fully 4,500 workmen already were on the job.

Fire also menaced Augusta, Ky., as an oil drum burst. The town was almost deserted.

Refugees streamed from Paducah, as water rose through the business area. From 15,000 to 20,000 of the city's 34,000 residents were expected to be evacuated by nightfall.

Covington and Newport, Ky., reported food shortages and virtual isolation.

Gaps in Levee

Memphis, Tenn., got word that three small gaps had been made in the Mississippi river levee above Hickman, Ky., where forces stopped U.S. army engineers seeking to release the river into the Birds Point-New Madrid, Mo. floodway.

They sought in this manner to relieve Cairo, Ill., where 15,000 residents were endangered as the river level reached 58.08 feet on a 60-foot floodwall. Mayor August Bode warned women and children to flee.

Governor Henry Horner went into southern Illinois, where fully 20,000 were refugees in seven counties. At Shawneetown, about two thirds of the city's 1,500 population was being carried out by boats.

President Roosevelt ordered all available government aid into the disaster zone after a Sunday night conference with Secretary Dern, Army, Navy, Coast Guard, Works Progress Administration and Civilian Conservation Corps on a 24-hour basis to help the Red Cross evacuate refugees and aid the homeless.

President is Ready

The President personally advised City Manager C. A. Dykstra of Cincinnati that "the Federal Government is standing behind Cincinnati and the entire Ohio valley flood area" and that his private phone would be held open for any direct calls.

Cincinnati, with some 75,000 homeless, watched the Ohio river still edge upward after reaching almost 78 feet soon after midnight—six feet higher than any previous recorded level and 25 feet above flood stage.

A blazing 250,000 gasoline storage tank drifted downstream from the city and police reported four others adrift.

BYDY MOIVANI HELD BY SOVIETS AS CONSPIRATOR

Brother of 'Marrying Midianis' Arrested at Tiflis, Georgia

SABOTAGE CHARGE

Former Georgian Prince Charged With Plot to Separate Georgia

Moscow, Jan. 25 (AP) — Bydy Moivani, identified by Soviet officials as a brother of the "marrying Midianis" of London, was seized after having been implicated as a co-conspirator with 17 ousted Communist officials on trials onreason charges.

Moivani, a former Soviet commercial attache in Berlin and known as a disciple of Leon Trotsky before his banishment, was said to be a pioneer at Tiflis, Georgia.

Georgia is a republic in the Union of Soviet Socialist Republic whose, in their early days, the Moivani family were princes of the realm.

Arrested After Testimony

His arrest, Soviet officials said, on the strength of testimony received by Karl Radek, former editor of Izvestia, who linked the Georgian Communist party with the alleged conspiracy to overthrow Communism by helping Germany and Japan defeat Russia.

Radek said the Tiflis block was known as the Moivani Communists, only because one of the Midianis headed it.

Bydy Moivani is a brother of the famous Princes Mirian, Mestia, Tsaya and Nestor Midiani, and a brother-in-law of Countess Barara Shelton Midiani, Memphis-Newsweek-low through the Woolworth heiress' marriage to the Prince Midiani, son of Mae Murray, movie actress, through her marriage to Prince David Midiani, divorced wife of Van Alen through her marriage to the late Prince Sergei. Her alias had been Alexis' wife.

L. Berskyavzol, another defendant, linked Moivani to the sabotage plot, testifying in court the pioneer had come to Georgia to foment intrigue and help work out the details.

Duce Prepared to Place Embargo on Volunteers To Spanish Civil War

Reply To British Note Accepts Principles As Laid Down

Germany Also Agreeable to Plan

Willing To Promulgate Law Making Enlistment Penal Offence

Rome, Jan. 25 (AP)—Premier Mussolini informed Great Britain today the Italian government was prepared to place an embargo on the departure of volunteers to the Spanish civil war.

Mussolini's reply accepted the points raised by the British demand January 10 for immediate banning of volunteers for Spain.

The long awaited note recalled Italy's previous proposal to remove all foreigners participating in the Spanish conflict, directly or indirectly, and asked Britain's opinion on its feasibility.

Against Naturalization

Naturalization of foreign volunteers as is the reported Hitlerian of the Spanish Socialist government, the note said, would be contrary to any authentic policy of non-intervention."

Italy's proposed embargo on volunteers will be put into effect, the note added, as far as other governments adopt the same provision, or agree on the general lines of a system of control and fix the date for its effectiveness.

The note declared the naturalization proposal of the Valencia government "would have effective but been the contribution of foreign volunteers to the forces of one of the parties to the conflict."

Germany Ready

Berlin, Jan. 25 (AP)—Germany announced today she was ready to promulgate a law making enlistment of German volunteers in the Spanish civil war a penal offence—but only if other nations do likewise.

BLOCK EFFORTS TO FORM CABINET

Japanese Law Requires Army to Name One Cabinet Minister

Tokyo, Jan. 25 (AP)—Efforts of General Kazushige Ugaki to form a new cabinet today were blocked by a political situation were reported today to be blocked by army opposition.

The Japanese press declared the army refusal to name a war minister for the Ugaki government automatically creating a deadlock. Japanese law requires a general officer on the active list must hold that cabinet post.

The 63-year-old former Governor General of Korea accepted the Emperor's command to form a government after a conference of the empire's ablest administrators. He always has been considered to be friendly toward the political parties and his failure to obtain army support brought the present crisis to a head.

Ugaki, striving to avert failure, arranged a meeting with Premier Count Juichi Terauchi. Minister of War in the previous cabinet of Premier Koki Hirota. Terauchi led the militarist attack against the parliamentary parties in the heated discussion that finally forced the downfall of the Hirota government.

Bury Political Hatchets Attack Problems Bennett

Small Populations And Defense of Dominions Are Problems, He Says

MUTUAL LESSONS

Ottawa, Jan. 26 (CP)—A call to Canada to tackle its problems in the spirit of the South African leaders and to bury political hatchets was made here Saturday night by Rt. Hon. Richard Bedford Bennett in his first public address since his return from a round-the-Empire cruise.

Mr. Bennett, speaking at a banquet in his honor, declared that Canada's problems were not such as could be solved by "standing still" or by saying the country was prosperous. They must be met with the spirit of Premier J. B. M. Hertzog of South Africa and Prime Minister Jan Christian Smuts.

Position

"The two South African leaders and their followers four years ago faced a political movement in an effort to grapple better with defence problems affecting their Dominion."

The former Prime Minister declared two basic ideas had formed in his mind as a result of his journeys: how few people the Dominion had and how necessary it was they should have more; how well they were handling the defence problem.

"If democracy cannot provide for the cultivation and inhabitation of vast areas which Providence has given man in trust," he cautioned, "then that democracy must give way to peoples who require those spaces for their own mind."

Turning to the Empire, conservatives leader declared if the League of Nations should fail other means must be found to defend the integrity of the Dominions' people. "That is why," he said, "we have developed a realisation of the value of that commonwealth of nations which is called the British Empire."

Ties Unbroken

The other Dominions, he said, had learned lessons from Canada and had been able to avoid some of its mistakes in government.

"They have been able to escape the pitfalls of our constitutional difficulties, the sharp conflicts between provinces and Dominion. They offered this century a lesson; he concluded, the uniting of divided groups in an effort to resolve national problems.

WATCHMAN DIES HAD BEEN TRUSSED UP BY BURGLAR

Hamilton Man Believed to Have Fractured Skull in Assault or Fall

MAN IN HIDING

Harry Crabbe Calls For Help After Assault And is Heard

Hamilton, Ont., Jan. 25 (CP)—Six hours after he was attacked and trussed up by a burglar, Harry Crabbe, 58 year old night watchman at the Wentworth Motors, died enroute to hospital in a police ambulance after collapsing on a street today.

Either when assaulted or in falling, it is believed the elderly man fractured his skull and was killed when parallels the highway through the evergladen.

Only one corner of the big bus remained above water. Those who perished were trapped inside.

Slogging waist deep in soaking mire and then helped the other survivors to safety.

Bus Strikes Power Pole

The police station also received a report 30 had perished. An ambulance driver returning with four bodies described the accident as "the worst I ever saw".

Bill Hammond of Tampa, pulmotor driver, was brought in with lacerations of the head. Another survivor, Edward Lee, seriously injured about the head, accompanied him.

"The bus burned and rolled over a couple of times and then went into the canal," said Stan Price, a survivor. "That's all I remember."

The crews of a fleet of ambulances and a large crowd which collected from passing cars set to work to extricate the victims. Men dived beneath the water and emerged with bodies which they held until the crews on shore fastened ropes and dragged them out.

Officers received reports the bus was travelling 40 to 50 miles an hour at the time of the accident.

A later check-up by the Tampa Times showed 20 persons and 11 survivors were on the bus and an incomplete survey hospital showed 11 survivors, indicating a death list of 20.

BRITAIN AND U.S. NEAR AGREEMENT

Negotiations Advance on Reciprocal Trade Pact Says Runciman

Washington, Jan. 25 (AP) — Walter Runciman, President of the British Board of Trade, announced today that he and President Roosevelt were close to an agreement in principle on the basis of negotiations for a reciprocal trade agreement between the United States and Great Britain.

At a press conference held in the White House, Runciman, who is to stay in the White House, Runciman said he and the President had had "very satisfactory" talks and conversations.

Nevertheless, he added, only the broadest generalities were discussed—the details being left to more formal conversations with expert representatives of both Governments.

Added indication his conversations with the President had borne fruit was seen in Runciman's announcement he would not leave Washington until Wednesday or Thursday before he sails from New York to return to England.

Acting Premier Says Reformatory is Like Sunday School

Toronto, Jan. 25 (CP)—Acting Premier Harry Nixon today said he was close to the case in the reformatory but since then a considerable number of convicts had left.

Mr. Nixon said he wished to emphasize that to date no one had been punished for anything done in the convict riot a week ago Sunday.

"But in the ordinary course of discipline there have had to be strappings to subdue some of the unruly prisoners," he said. "The strappings will be administered on Monday or Tuesday following being ordered by the reformatory but since then a considerable number of convicts had left.

No Punishments

No strappings have been administered on Monday or Tuesday following being ordered by the reformatory but since then a considerable number of convicts had left.

The result is, everything is running smoothly again," he said.

"They know what is expected. Certainly I have no fault to find with the discipline there now. I observed it for myself."

Damage to the reformatory in the riot and fire was largely superficial, said Mr. Nixon. It will be easily repaired for $25,000.

"That doesn't include cost of repairing library books which were put in a bonfire," he said. "They were donated to the reformatory and we're certainly not going to buy books to replace them."

20 Passengers Killed Bus Rolls Into Canal Along Tamiami Trail

Bus Lurches From Side to Side, Rolls Over Twice in Florida

11 SURVIVORS

Negro Porter Who Breaks Way Out Through Window Gives Alarm

Miami, Fla., Jan. 25 (AP) — A motor bus overturned in a canal alongside the Tamiami Trail about thirty miles west of here today and the negro porter, Robert Hingleton, reported 20 of the thirty-one passengers were killed.

Hingleton said the right front wheel broke, the bus lurched from side to side, rolled over twice and toppled into the deep canal which parallels the highway through the everglades.

Slogging waist deep in soaking mire and then helped the other survivors to safety.

Bus Strikes Power Pole

The police station also received a report 30 had perished. An ambulance driver returning with four bodies described the accident as "the worst I ever saw".

Bill Hammond of Tampa, pulmotor driver, was brought in with lacerations of the head. Another survivor, Edward Lee, seriously injured about the head, accompanied him.

"The bus burned and rolled over a couple of times and then went into the canal," said Stan Price, a survivor. "That's all I remember."

The crews of a fleet of ambulances and a large crowd which collected from passing cars set to work to extricate the victims. Men dived beneath the water and emerged with bodies which they held until the crews on shore fastened ropes and dragged them out.

Officers received reports the bus was travelling 40 to 50 miles an hour at the time of the accident.

A later check-up by the Tampa Times showed 20 persons and 11 survivors were on the bus and an incomplete survey hospital showed 11 survivors, indicating a death list of 20.

Semi-Naked Woodman Says There 'Ain't' No Law

People May Laugh at Clarence Butterfield as He Comes to Town

PANTS, SHOES ONLY

Temple, Mo., Jan. 26 (AP)—Maine's own Paul Bunyan—30 year old Clarence Butterfield—refused today to let near zero temperatures neighbors' pleas or official remonstrance make him wear a shirt.

"There ain't no law in America that says I can't go round without a shirt," the burly long-haired woodsman said he told a Farmington constable who objected to his appearance—semi-naked —in that shore town of Franklin County Saturday.

Not in the least abashed by the laughter of townspeople, Butterfield makes the five-mile trip to Farmington from his lumber camp.

The rest of the week he spends in the woods, swinging a 4½ pound axe all day, eating and piling cordwood in quantities that he said breaks all records.

Clad only in pants and felt shoes Butterfield says he often spends night as well as day in the forest, sleeping in the snow.

But for a year has Butterfield shaved or had his hair cut, and only then to have his beard trimmed. That was during a visit to his mother,

150 Tons of Sand Used This Year on Streets

As one indication of the extreme slipperiness of some of the roads of the city as the result of recurring thaws and following freeze-ups this season, reports to be either of the city engineer this morning revealed, that to date more than 150 tons of sand have been used by the department to provide an anti-skid surface for pedestrians and vehicular traffic. Added to this approximately 75 tons of cinders have also been used on streets.

Still busy providing free sand for local residents following last night's heavy freeze, a request was made by the office of the city engineer for residents to request this material during fair weather. Owing to the activity of the department during periods like the present, with all men employed sanding, it becomes almost impossible to fill the many orders.

Workmen of the department worked from midnight to dawn this morning sanding streets and intersections.

Offsetting this however, the County will pay all judicial salaries outside of the annual honorarium of the Justices of the Peace. While no official information to this effect has been received at the office of the County Treasurer, still from various of these officials have been received for payment.

POLICE BLOTTER

No arrests were necessary in Belleville over the week end, although four cases of drunkenness called chase to an alleged gasoline thief on Wednesday night, evening. A man who said his name was Mr. Field, Chatham Street, reported to the police he had seen a short stocky built man run from his residence at 200 Chatham Street and the authorities resulted in Mr. Reid being given a ride around the block and boarded a parked coupe on Brock-ville Ave., and driven off. Clues were given in the police car, but the slippery condition of the streets resulted in the escape. Nine gallons of gasoline were reported stolen by Mr. Reid. It was returned out of the gasoline tank, he said.

Harold Jones, 77 Church Street, reported the theft of his overcoat to the police on Saturday night. The coat was said to have been taken from the cloak room at a local dance.

Only 15 transients braved the wet cold weather and visited Belleville over the week end, seven being given a night's lodging on Sunday and the remaining eight on the Sabbath. The front door of a local business house was found ajar early Saturday night. The owner was notified and after viewing his place reported nothing had been taken and doubtlessly the door had been inadvertently left ajar.

CALLS REPUDIATION SCAR ON SCOTL

Hon. Earl Rowe Speaks at Conservative Banquet

Ottawa, Jan. 24 (CP)—Not much respect for law can be expected of individuals in Ontario when the Provincial Government disregards the judgments of the courts and the law ordinarily in the jurisdiction of the premier, Hon. Hugh Rowe, leader of the Ontario Conservative Party, declared here Saturday at the banquet tendered Conservative leader Bennett on his return from overseas.

"I believe I know something of the desires of the people of Ontario," he said. "My task is fairly clear before me. But it is my duty to review the acts of my colleague by, but safeguard the province in the future.

"We must tear off the scroll the dishonorable act of repudiation that has stained its integrity throughout this country." It is the same duty to disown the repudiation of constitutional rights, to restore a square deal to the province and to maintaining respect for the rights of minorities."

Mr. Rowe paid handsome tribute to Mr. Bennett, to his "energy, integrity ability and experience, such as few men have contributed to the service of their country."

NORTHLAND MAN MINUS COAT, HAT

His Sleeves Rolled up And Apparently Enjoying Cold Breezes

Stories of the various harbingers of Spring, which have made their appearance here in the past few days since during the last week have elicited comments both critical and otherwise from various people of this city. Robins, mosquitoes, frogs, spring flowers shooting green shoots up through the earth have all contributed to the wonderment of a certain Public. But it remained for a lusty son of the north country to give the Spring sign seekers a real thrill on Saturday afternoon. With the warm sunshine bringing out a large crowd of week-end shoppers, Frank Gould was crowded on the sun of the northland bonehandedly strolled along. People stopped and stared. But the cynosure of hundreds of eyes pursued his way oblivious to the attention and voice of admiration. He was minus coat and hat with his sleeves of his shirt rolled up to the elbows, and the collar refused from exposing a wide expanse of hairy chest. Fur-coated women and heavily clothed men of the city shivered, for his was the only case as the man slowly walked along apparently enjoying the balmy breezes.

MOTOR TRAFFIC SLOWED TO WALK

No Major Accidents Are Reported Throughout This District

Motor traffic throughout the district was slowed up considerably over the week-end owing to the icy and slippery condition of the Provincial highways and roads. Local streets also took on a mirror-like appearance, making traction for motor traffic hazardous. No serious accidents were reported throughout the district.

The weather was very light over the week-end, apparently only those who were compelled to venture out took chances on driving," stated a Belleville motorist this morning today" as he added no major accidents. All dangerous curves and hills on the highways leading into Belleville had been sanded by the Highway Department, according to the late hour last night, assuring safer driving conditions for motorists.

A slight motor accident was reported inside the city on Saturday last when a car collided on Front Street, but only damage to the bumpers of the vehicles resulted. Kenneth Penny 4 Dunbar Street, was backing out from the Y.M.C.A. club when a north-bound car, driven by Wilfred Goddar, 218 Coleman Street, collided with it. Goddar was travelling at an excessive rate of speed, and Chesley Ten-mouth, city police stated.

Elsewhere motorists were satisfied to leave the family car in the garage however, as local taxi drivers reported an increase in business of 100 per cent. on Sunday. "It has been quite the busiest day since the large number of car owners who are waiting for the highways leading into the city to clear up, and our taxi service when driving conditions are not good. Whenever the streets become slippery and treacherous, many Belleville car owners are forced to leave their cars in the garage, taking chances in coming to grief only to be just as disappointed when conditions, all or which increase our volume of business," stated a taxi driver today as he smiled satisfactorily over the results of the week-end's receipts.

Magistrate Finds Defendant Is Transient Trader

Harry Kleinsteuber, Prince Edward County transient trader was acquitted of a charge, laid against him by Provincial Constable Hall of this city, to wit the violation of the city transient traders' license bylaw, by Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., on a complaint laid by Mr. Hallaway was heard in the police court, this morning.

In his judgment, issued verbally His Worship stated: "This is a case of prosecution under By-law No. 1, passed by the City of Belleville for regulating and licensing transit traders.

Evidence shows that the accused man came to Belleville with goods and wares for sale and did produce offered for sale was a fur coat which he stated he had not purchased from a dealer in Toronto. A transit trader is one passing from place to place and not spending a short time in one locality or one place. Before he brings the accused party within this By-law it would, in my opinion, have been necessary to show that the accused man had gone from place to place and made sales in other counties and gone from one county to another in the Province of Ontario dealing in goods, wares and merchandise. This would be evidence for the purpose of showing that he was a transit or an itinerant trader. It would, in other words, show the itinerant nature of such a dealer. The evidence of the accused man is that he is a patron of the Belleville market and comes to Belleville on market days for the purpose of disposing of his produce and that he does not go anywhere else. He pays his toll upon the Belleville market and when he obtains his produce is not, in my opinion, of any great moment in deciding this case.

I find that the accused man is not a transit trader within the By-law and that such By-law does not govern the case of this kind.

Spring Cannot Wait

Budding pussy willows, rambling gardens in district fields, dandelions and other indications of spring observed in this section during the past week or so of mild weather ceased their position to casualties reported observed in the city this morning.

Carefully pressed between the pages of a small note book a perfect specimen of a full grown Chick Pungens was exhibited by Charles Ray, 241 Bridge street this morning. The insect was picked from the brick wall of No. 2 Fire Station shortly before.

POLICE COURT

Samuel Way, Thurlow, who appeared before Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., in today's local police court charged with failing to appear for sentence, was given two months in the common jail on a charge of theft heard in the local court last October.

The accused appeared before Magistrate Lloyd on Oct. 16th on a charge of theft and found guilty. His case was enlarged for sentence and Way was permitted to return home, but he failed to return as instructed. Issuance of the necessary warrant subsequently went to the United States, from where he was recently deported, stated Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C.

"What's this man's record?" asked His Worship. "He has been convicted for petty theft on five different occasions," replied Chief Kidd. "Two months in the common jail, next case," was the only comment from the Bench.

Harold Green, 19 year old Bloomfield laborer, pleaded guilty in the charge of the theft of $2.20 from a lady's purse. Restitution having been made, His Worship gave the accused youth ten days in the common jail.

The body of the one-time Mack Sennett bathing beauty was sent on to leading rites by the County Morgue.

Dr. Frank R. Webb, Assistant County autopsy surgeon, said a postmortem examination indicated acute alcoholism. Face down on her bed the stiff pajama-clad body of Miss Prevost was found Saturday by a negro housekeep, William Bogle.

Wishing beside his mistress was Mazie, the actress' dachshund. Teeth marks on her body suggested the dog had made frantic attempts to arouse her. In the sink lay several whisky bottles empty.

Dead Some Time When Found

Miss Prevost apparently had been dead two or three days. On door of the apartment was placed this note:

"Please do not knock on this door more than once, as it makes my dog bark. If I am in, I will hear you, as I am not deaf."

Detectives found in the room a prominent note for $10 made in favor of Joan Crawford, film actress.

Marie Prevost, born May Bickford Dunn in Barrie, Ont., in 1898, reached the peak of her screen success in the years between 1924 and 1926.

Since the "talkies", she waged a discouraging battle with alcohol. The speaking screen offered a major challenge which was another she had been doing bits.

Miss Prevost, dark-haired and blue-eyed, was married twice, to H. D. Gerke and the late Kenneth Harlan, screen actor.

BRITAIN, FRANCE UNITED IN AIMS

Paris, Jan. 25 (C.P.-Havas) — France and Great Britain stood aligned today in a determination not to help Germany economically while the real possibility exists that this aid may be turned against the countries that gave it.

Premier Blum in a speech at Lyon yesterday made this clear. He repeated any idea of "bargaining" with Germany and said a political settlement of Europe's problems must come before an economic agreement.

More than 2,000 guests, including nearly all the members of the Blum cabinet, heard the premier's address at a banquet in honor of Andre Ferier, head of the Parliamentary socialist group.

"I continue to believe a settlement is possible if all the nations of Europe bring the same degree of good will to the task," he declared, "but I also believe, as Foreign Secretary Eden said in his speech in the House of Commons on Tuesday, that in the present hour it depends on Germany.

"I would like to express myself with complete frankness on one point. The German nation at this very moment is suffering in her existence of organization and all the power of her national will to overcome grave economic difficulties.

"The idea is thus spontaneously created in many minds of a sort of exchange, a sort of contract, under which Germany would receive economic aid, which she would pay for by satisfactory participation in peaceful settlement of the European situation.

"I do not wish to place myself on this ground. I do not think we should organize anything in such a way which resembles bargaining. We have deep a sense of our national dignity and we are too resolved, come what may, to impose respect for it, not to respect the dignity of other nations."

DRIVING STRAIN CAUSES SEIZURE

Frank Fieracolli, Galt, Dies After Car Goes Into Ditch

(By The Canadian Press)

Ice-coated highways claimed new life in Ontario during the week end with the accidental death of another death as autos and trucks skidded into ditches and swerved helplessly about on the glassy surfaces.

Reginald Huffman, 34, Tillsonburg, was killed Saturday when his machine crashed into a ditch on No. 2 highway near Blenheim after colliding on the icy road. Mr. and Mrs. John Howard and their 13-year-old son, Tillsonburg residents, were injured in the crash.

The strain of driving was believed to have been responsible for the heart attack which claimed the life of Frank Fieracolli, Superintendent at the Stauffer-Dobie plant at Galt. His car slipped into the ditch and as he walked to the front of it he was stricken.

Car Skids Into Train

Mr. and Mrs. Alcric Melo of Wallaceburg were injured when their car skidded into a westbound Canadian Pacific Railway train at Chatham. Ed. Martin, Galt, was injured when Howard Priest's car struck a tree at Galt.

Murrell Martin, 13, suffered a fractured pelvis and internal injuries when struck by a truck driven by Thomas Kemble at Niagara Falls. He was placed in hospital.

Minor accidents were numerous as sleet and rain pounded over the highways from east to west. Few cars crossed the Peace Bridge to Fort Erie, and the 3 highways to Niagara Falls and Port Colborne were practically impassible.

Oswald the Snake Likes Truck Riding

Lexington, Ont., Jan. 25 (CP)—Beware he who would ride in Sam Wallace's truck. He may think there are no other passengers.—but—Oswald the snake likes the padding.

Oswald is a fine lad, however, and probably won't even mutinve his 36-inch length just to satisfy the curiosity of him who rides in the truck cab beside Sam. Oswald is restless and besides he likes to be the padding of the cab cushion.

Cash was a shivering snake when Sam found him in a Dover township wheat field at the close of winter. When he refused to eat mice, juicy steaks, Sam put him in the cab of the truck. He has been there ever since and still won't eat anything offered him. He may be devouring the sent padding for all his master knows.

PROROGUE HOUSE EARLY IN APRIL

Woodsworth Claims Canada Should Remain Neutral

Ottawa, Jan. 25 (CP)— The House of Commons turns again today to private members' business with 13 resolutions remaining on the order paper and prospects bright that they will be disposed of speedily, permitting curtailment of a session filled to crack with affairs.

First on today's order paper was a resolution by A. W. Neill (Ind. Comox-Alberni) that it would be in the best interest of British Columbia if the government ceased issuing trap-fishing licenses for the province's waters.

Next was listed that of James S. Woodsworth, leader of the co-operative Commonwealth Federation, contending that this country should remain strictly neutral in the event of war, regardless of who the belligerents may be, and that Canadian citizens should not be permitted to make profit out of supplying war materials.

Closely linked with Mr. Woodsworth's resolution is one by A. A. Heaps (Labor Winnipeg North) who asks measures to suggest that President Roosevelt of the United States call a world peace conference.

The House moved fast last week with an indication that all groups are anxious to facilitate early prorogation by the new Coronation May 13 in London, but four contentious debates appeared on the horizon over defence estimates, wheat marketing, competition in Canadian National Railways capitalization and demands for a commission to probe financial claims of the Western Provinces.

331,450 PLACED IN EMPLOYMENT

All Unfilled Vacancies Are in Domestic Service

Ottawa, Jan. 26 (CP)—Placements by the Employment Service of Canada in 1936 were 331,450, the highest total for any year reported to date. Vacancies were 356,276 and registrations for work 96,055.

A slight decrease from the previous year was shown in the number of placements, but this was explained by improved conditions and as result of the decrease in relief projects for which workers were drawn, the employment offices. Placements in 1935 were 353,902 with 376,516 vacancies and 596,426 applications.

Practically all the unfilled vacancies are in domestic service, for cooks and cooks-general, the shortage in this occupation being experienced in all offices across the country.

Placements during 1936 there were 113,168- vacancies, 316,815 applications and 124,534 placements.

General Predicts Loyalist Victory

Madrid, Jan. 26 (C.P.-Havas) — General Joan Miaja, head of the Madrid defence Junta, returning from a tour of the government lines, today said the insurgents have "condemned to defeat."

"Spaniards will now admit tyranny," he said. "We vanquished the Moors and will conquer all invaders of our soil."

An insurgent artillery attack blasted Madrid yesterday killing at least eight persons, wounding 30 others and adding to the destruction caused by Saturday's bombardment, the heaviest since the siege began.

CELEBRATES HER 80TH BIRTHDAY

A very pleasant time was spent on the evening of Jan. 21, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ruffino Gilead, when a number of friends gathered to celebrate the eightieth birthday of his mother, Mrs. Rhoda Huffman.

Mrs Rhoda Huffman was born Jan. 21, 1857. She was the only daughter of Robert and Susan Walker, fourth concession of Thurlow, and has always resided in Stanley Walker, passed to the Great Beyond four years ago.

On March 15, 1876, she was married to Ruffino Gilead, by the occasion of Thurlow To this union were born three sons, James Ernest, and Charles Walker, and one fifth concession of Thurlow, and Ruffino Gilead, Thurlow, Hills Kelcheson of Hallowsy) and Florence Gilead, who lives with her mother; All the family were present, including the grandchildren. Included among the guests were Miss Margaret Brundage, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Gilead, Mr. and Mrs. Welsh.

The event was a complete surprise to Mrs. Huffman who was brought to the home of her son at 6.30 p.m. to find the guests already assembled, and the table adorned with a three tier birthday cake, carrying eighty pink candles.

After supper, a good meal provided, an address was read by Mr. Roy Huffman, and a beautiful plant and magazine stand were presented by Mr. John Ketchenson, her eldest grandson, and Miss Georgina Huffman, her youngest grandchild, a very reminder of the evening was spent in music and social intercourse.

conciliatory in tone, put it up to the London Non-Intervention Committee to announce publicly that all nations represented in the group have agreed, by a certain date, to stop the influx of foreign volunteers to Spain.

This influx must be stopped by methods embracing a careful system of control, the note specified.

Following such an announcement the note said, Germany would put her volunteer law into effect.

(The German note coincided with an Italian announcement that Italy was prepared to put an embargo on the departure of Spanish war volunteers.

(France has adopted a law to keep volunteers at home, and is ready to enforce the ban in concert with other nations. Great Britain has invoked an old foreign enlistment Act to stop her own volunteers. The Soviet Union has indicated she would participate in a general plan of volunteer control, but not in "unilateral neutrality.")

Wanted Other Terms

The German note "regretted" that the British communication of Jan. 10 on volunteers did not embrace Germany's earlier suggestion that steps be taken to "remove all foreign volunteers already in Spain. This clearly stated a passage in the Italian note.

It expressed satisfaction that other nations at last were ready to consider the entire question seriously and contended that Germany was the first power to point to the legality of the issue.

It closed with a solemn assertion that the house had come when it should be possible for all nations concerned to agree finally upon measures to end the participation of foreign volunteers which has made Spain's civil conflict a "little world war."

(An estimated 10,000 to 15,000 Germans and at least as many Italians have been reported fighting on the side of the Fascist Spain. Arrayed against them are international brigades composed of an unknown number of Russians, French-men, Britons and persons of other nationalities.)

IN A FLOOD

Readers have seen pictures of the disastrous floods which have driven hundreds of thousands of dwellers from their homes in villages and towns and cities along the Ohio Valley and from these have gained some idea of what people who suffer in such calamities have to pass through. These experiences cannot entirely be told in words, they are best envisioned in the pictures, which flash immediately into the mind impressions of these scenes and the sufferings, distress and agony of the people in such circumstances.

Over eighteen years ago this district had scenes of an exodus. It was at the time of the explosion in the munition plant nearby. Those who used the roads on the morning following recall seeing whole families treking eastward and westward, some wheeling carriages, or drawing carts, all moving away while there were fears and rumors of further possible explosions. Yet those scenes were but a faint impression of what must go on in these cities from which hundreds of thousands are driven out, abandoning their belongings all but the little which can be carried in a bundle to a place of safety, while the rest is left to the waters of the flood to do with as they will, or to the possible pillager.

There is no more tragic picture than that of people dashing out of their homes on a few moments' notice, carrying only what they can pick up in the haste to escape being surrounded by raging waters, fathers and mothers trying to get their families together to make their flight, trusting to the help of organizations and philanthropic agencies to provide them with what immediate comfort they can command and what shelter impromptu homes and tents can give.

Belleville's experience with floods in the past keeps memories very keen and bitter at the havoc which can be wrought by a river in flood. Hundreds here know what it is to have their homes smashed and buffeted by ice cakes, their furniture swept out of doors forced open by the rush and swish of current like whirlpools as they break through doors, while belongings will float sail out, caught in a current which bears them away never to be seen again, except the odd piece, stained, and muddied, wrecked, scratched and swollen by the water.

Such scenes are bad enough. But scenes like those in war-stricken Spain just as they were in Belgium and Northeast France during the Great War are still worse.

When a family retreats from its home, it sees it for the last time almost inevitably, for war's machine soon sweeps it away with shot or fire. Many homes are washed away but a hope still something generally remains. That is the hope of the fugitives—that they will find their homes when they return after the waters recede.

Floods are a story, the end of which is never told, because they are associated with the weather conditions. Heavy rainfall, cloudbursts, may cause flooding in mild weather, though most floods are due to break up of river ice in the springtime or to sudden turns of mild weather with torrential rains falling in place of snow. So the end of the flood story is never told. Somewhere some one suffering every year, there is loss of property and even life as water and ice take toll, and play havoc with the works of man.

Response of the people to the call for Red Cross aid is magnificent. If it were not for such organizations, men and women and children would suffer infinitely more than they do, great as are the sufferings of flood victims. Such organizations are one of the happiest signs of this era, proof of the presence of a co-operative spirit which finds a social obligation resting upon it and upon the individual.

BURNS' DAY

One hundred and seventy-eight years ago today, Robert Burns was born, one of the greatest gifts to mankind, and the most precious and human gift ever presented to Scotland, the measure of whose greatness has not yet quite been compassed by his fellow men.

In this age when the social question is on every mind, the broad humanity of Burns which did not fear to utter sentiments far ahead of his time that have not yet reached their fulfilment because Burns' outlook was down to the end of the centuries, to that day when "man to man the warld o'er shall brithers be for a' that", stands out.

That is the ultimate goal of the race. It cuts through everything else with the brotherhood of man as the goal of every phase of life.

But Burns was not a politician, he was too great a poet to be that. He did not show the way through a maze of political and social and business systems. He loved the dear human hearts and lives of the people, fit as he saw them for any paradise on earth and for the paradise beyond. Burns as poet did not have to show the way through systems; he pointed to the ideal, the light which should be the guide. He left the system to fit into the idea; to achieve that is the work of statesmen.

Burns loved man because man was worth loving and because Burns was big enough to love the heart of mankind and of every human being. He was a prophet as well as poet.

OXFORD GROUP MOVEMENT, something which to most of us, flitted across the Canadian screen rather dimly recently and returned from whence it came leaving a distinctively English flavor, seems to be gaining strength and bids fair to blossom out into something of impressive importance ere long, if present plans of promoters materialize. Signs of increased momentum to the Oxford Movement appears in magazine articles in the daily and weekly press. The importance given the movement in literary circles may be judged from the fact that The United States News, published at Washington by David Lawrence, in its issue of December 21, gave a whole page to an editorial on the Oxford Movement, predicting that the year 1937 will witness a great forward movement of an evangelistic character led by the forces concerned in the Oxford Group Movement. This religious movement is distinguished by this difference—the people sought to be reached first are the well-to-do class, high society folk, no less, and they are responding in large numbers. Many men and women prominent in public life have identified themselves with the movement which preaches peace on earth and good will to men. President Roosevelt has set his seal of approval on the necessity of a national return to religious belief and observance. In a recent speech at Buenos Aires, before a gathering of diplomatic representatives of twenty one republics, President Roosevelt said:

Trust in God

"This faith in the Western World will not be complete if we fail to affirm our faith in God. In the whole history of mankind, far back into the dim past before man knew how to record thoughts or events, the human race has been distinguished from other forms of life by the existence—the fact—of religion. Periodic attempts to deny God have always come and will always come to naught. In the consideration of this fact the practice of our nations is the right of freedom of religion. But this ideal, these words, preuppose a belief and trust in God."

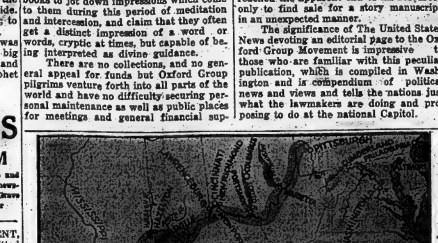
Speaking to the National Conference of Christians and Jews President Roosevelt said:

"NO GREATER THING COULD COME TO OUR LAND today than a revival of the spirit of religion, which would sweep through the homes of the nation and stir men and women of all faiths to a reassertion of their belief in God and their dedication to His will for themselves and their world. I doubt if there is any problem—social, political or economic—that would not melt away before the fire of such a spiritual awakening."

Safety in God-Control

"America's safety lies in God Control," said Dr. Frank Buchman, leader of the Oxford Group Movement, in a radio broadcast just before the presidential election last November. Said he:

"America's safety lies in God Control. God-controlled individuals, God-controlled homes, God-controlled schools, God-controlled industry, God-controlled politics, God-controlled nations. This means that everybody takes his orders from God. God is the person that the American voter has to reckon with in the coming election. For the real question is WILL GOD CONTROL AMERICA.



"There must be a revival of the spirit of religion," writes David Lawrence, editor of the United States News. "The Oxford Group Movement," he says, "without discouraging any creed or sect, seeks to encourage each individual to find in his own heart and conscience. The Living God, is perhaps the most remarkable movement in recent years. It conflicts with no church but would inspire them all. It looks toward the development of religion in everyday life."

Meditation And Intercession

The Oxford Movement stresses the importance of a brief intermission each day for meditation and prayer for divine guidance, followed by a waiting time in which some direct message may be received from God. For this purpose followers of the movement carry little black notebooks to jot down impressions which come to them during this period of meditation and intercession, and claim that they often get a distinct impression of a word or words, cryptic at times, but capable of being interpreted as divine guidance.

There are no collections, and no general appeal for funds but Oxford Group pilgrims venture forth into all parts of the world and have no difficulty securing personal maintenance as well as public places for meetings and general financial support. One pilgrim, a Canadian author, Great War veteran, states that he has often reached the apparent end of his resources only to find sale for a story manuscript in an unexpected manner.

The significance of The United States News devoting an editorial page to the Oxford Group Movement is impressive to those who are familiar with this peculiar publication, which is compiled in Washington and is compendium of political news and views and tells the nations just what the lawmakers are doing and proposing to do at the national Capitol.

About fifty young people, members of the Epworth League in connection with Holloway Street Methodist Church, visited the League at Bayside Church recently. 40 YEARS AGO

Jan. 25th., 1897.

Mr. Frank McMahon, manager of the Belleville hockey team, has received word from the Cornwall team that they can not come here for a match this week.

The old Baptist Church at the corner of Coleman and Mora Streets West, lately occupied by the Belleville Business College of which Mr. Robert Bogle is principal, was destroyed by fire last night. The fire was discovered about 8.45 o'clock P.M. by Mr. Sibson, the miller at Cooper's Mill. It was with great difficulty that the house next to the college, owned by Mr. Joseph Blackburn and occupied by Mr. Philip Cannift, was saved. Seven months ago Mr. Bogle traded his college property at the corner of Pinnacle and Hotel Streets for the Baptist Church property. The Baptist congregation took over the building, which was at one time a roller skating rink, and yesterday a church building proper will be erected upon the site. Mr. Bogle has every sympathy in the Metropolitan Block at the corner of Front and Campbell Streets, and college classes are being carried on without any loss of time. The burned building was built by the Baptist congregation a little over twenty years ago.

50 YEARS AGO

Jan. 26th., 1887.

The churches were poorly attended yesterday owing to the icy sidewalks.

The Rev. W. H. Cook of Sidney, exchanged pulpits yesterday morning with the Rev. John Lesroyd, pastor of Bridge Street Methodist church.

The railway track as it crosses Pinnacle Street in front of Mr. Ponton's residence, is a dumping place for the ice and snow of Dorset. A number of upsets occur there daily.

Mr. James Haggerty has been appointed Returning Officer for North Hastings in the coming elections.

The market was small on Saturday. Eggs sold at 20 cents and 26 cents per dozen and butter sold at 20 cents and 25 cents per lb.

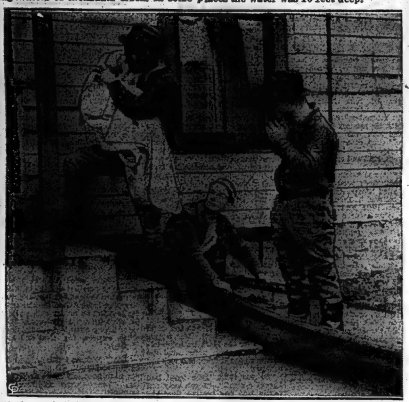
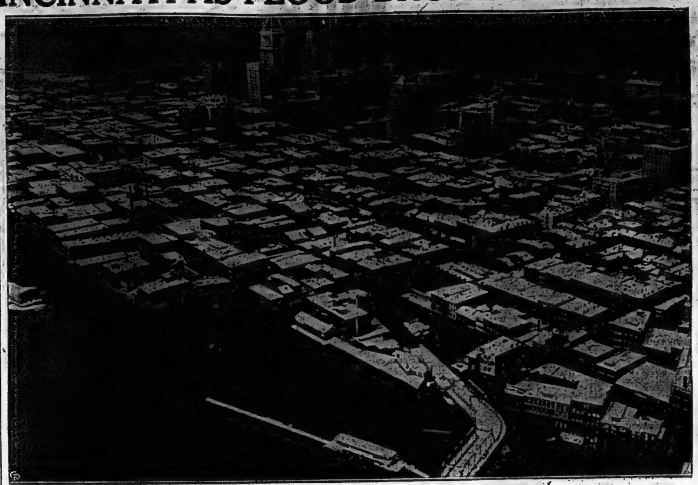
The bottom has fallen out of the anti-shaving league at Albert College. The young lady students, at the start of the shaved male students, took the other side of the street when they met, and that settled the anti-shaving league for all time.



CROWN PRINCE MIC HAEL GRAVELY ILL

Suffering a relapse after an emergency operation, for appendicitis, Crown Prince Michael of Roumania is reported in a serious condition. His mother, Princess Helene, (just telephoned King Carol, his father, and asked him to come to the boy's bedside. Should King Carol respond to the appeal of his wife and go to Florence, Italy, where the boy is ill, it will probably be the first time he has met his estranged wife since the separation. This photograph shows Crown Prince Michael and his father King Carol in one of the latest poses showing them together.



VIEWS OF STRICKEN CINCINNATI AS FLOOD BROKE RECORD

Entire business district at Roseville, O., adjacent to New Lexington, flooded by raging waters of Mozahala creek. In some places the water was 10 feet deep.

A dramatic picture with an unusual story. Volunteer boatmen remove a tiny baby from a flood-bound house in Freeport, Pa., 30 miles north of Pittsburgh. In the March floods of 1936 the baby's seriously-ill mother was removed by boat from the same house but on a stretcher.

MOTHERS

Don't Trifle With Colds

Especially During These Danger-Months When Colds Are Taking Their Heaviest Toll—Your Family Deserves This Extra Protection

1. When colds threaten . . . to help prevent them—Keep out of crowds as much as possible. Get plenty of rest and sleep. Stay in the open air as much as you can. Eat light, wholesome food and drink plenty of water. Keep elimination regular.

Watch yourself and your family after any exposure likely to be followed by a cold, Then—at the first sniffle or sneeze or the slightest irritation in the nose—quick! put a few drops of Vicks Va-tro-nol up each nostril. Va-tro-nol is specialized medication, expressly designed for the nose and upper throat, where most colds start. Used in time, it helps to prevent many colds or to throw off head-colds in their early stages.

2. If a cold develops . . . to relieve it sooner—Some colds, of course, strike without warning or get by even the best precautions. If that happens, go straight to bed. Eat very lightly—mainly toast, tea, and fruit juices. To relieve the distressing symptoms which tear down your resistance, use your dependable Vicks Vapo-Rub.

Massage it briskly on the back (between and below the shoulder-blades) as well as on the throat and chest, for 3 full minutes. Then spread a thick layer over the chest and cover with a warmed cloth. Long after you relax into restful sleep, Vapo-Rub's time-proved poultice-vapor action continues for hours to loosen phlegm, ease coughing, and help break up local congestion.

Sickness from Colds Cut in Half!

These two easy steps are the basis of Vicks Plan for Better Control of Colds. Vicks Plan is a simple, practical plan which any mother can easily follow in her own home. It is also a tested plan. In the most extensive cold-clinic of its kind ever conducted—among 17,353 subjects—Vicks Plan resulted in fewer colds and shorter colds—cut down sickness from colds more than half!

"Marriage and Divorce" Subject Taken by Mr. James

Chief Speaker at Banquet Given by Women's Institutes

Walkridge Hall in Sidney Township was the scene of a model banquet last night when the Women's Institute was being made in West Hastings, Over two hundred, chiefly husbands and wives, were present from every part of the constituency, and guests of the seven affiliated branches of the Women's Institutes in the city as well as Belleville. The history-making banquet for the following reasons:

Reasons Given

1. The least-mistress, Mrs. Holmes, better known as Pearl English, a former talented Belleville High School student, gave a perfect demonstration of good management in the difficult art of banquet organization.

Nearly have men done so well under similar circumstances. Mrs. Holmes in her address of welcome started the flow of wit which was carried on spontaneously by over a score of persons, who proposed and responded to the numerous interesting toasts. "Although there is Santa Claus, the Stork and many modern conveniences" said this clever President of the combined seven Institutes, "we need and require our Husbands nevertheless." The response that greeted this sally proved conclusively that the habit of Modern Marriage and Divorce, dealt with by the last speaker has not touched any part of rural West Hastings.

2. The food was delicious and abundant, and fit for kings and presidents. The banquet was substantial evidence of some of the practical features of Institute work. Nevertheless one speaker in responding to the toast to "Our Guests," peculiarly hinted that it was possible, that husbands were present for experimental purposes, in order to try out some new recipes.

Mothers Praised

The mothers, who do such efficient, noble work in these Institutes, were surely kept ideal homes, and ideal sons and daughters, to the everlasting credit of Canada, most of those famous men and women come from the farm.

3. "I never saw so many lovely women with grey hair in one room by actor," delightfully whispered a gentleman of mature years and undoubted judgment. He might have added just as correctly that the young people were not hard on the eyes either.

4. It was a distinguished gathering, consisting of many Councillors and other leading men and women. Hon. Duncan Marshall, Minister of Agriculture, Toronto, and-Mr. Joseph Wilson, local agricultural representative, gave splendid addresses of rural interest and helpfulness. Councillors of Sidney and Rawdon brought friendly greetings, and expressed a desire to be helpful. Col. Vandewater responded aptly to the toast "A better rural Ontario." More than a score of others took part with equal ability, but Lou Mckee, legal adams to all.

regrets that he has forgotten their names. Others, of whom there were, over, who deeply impressed on the writer's mind, because the words though few were so earnest, encouraging, and inspiring. It was Mrs. Hinchcliffe, one of the few charter members remaining of the local Women's Institute.

Some well rendered musical numbers were interspersed among the various addresses.

Mr. James Chief Speaker.

Finally at six o'clock when everybody was happy and in good humor, and well known Belleville man, who during the past five years has travelled fifty thousand miles covering half the surface of the globe from East to West, and From North to South, spoke for one hour till seconded only a few minutes many told him afterwards from the volumin ous notes that he has accumulated on "Marriage and Divorce." Step by step in a logical, legal manner, he came to the conclusion that we are living in the midst of an era of marriage, and that a cancer is steadily, stealthily, robbing mankind of the finest elements of their moral and emotional natures. England, France, Germany, New York States are conspicuous before the world, because in these places divorce is granted on only one ground, that of infidelity. A bill however is now before the British House of Commons which in effect if passed will make it at easy to get a divorce there as at Reno. Much more can, and might be said on this subject before it is too late, or the consequences will be appalling.

"WINGS OF LOVE"

(The Love Story of a Sky Pilot and Girl Who Planned on a Fifty-Fifty Financial System that Almost Wrecked Their Happiness)

By Janet Doran

"You're crazy if you think you've any platform left to throw accusations from," Sky stormed. "Remember I'm a lawyer I was with," he paused groping for words that studied him, for grammar he was unfamiliar with, "has nothing to do with your own actions! Because you went out," he ended accusingly." Sky with society boyfriend . . . He stopped, unable to speak over the red flame of jealous rage fogging his brain.

"Yes," Suzanne agreed soberly, as if she spoke to someone years and years younger than she, miles apart, mentally, "I went out. Sky had refused to work. To make three hundred dollars commission on a house I sold to Amy Prentiss' aunt Harriet I went to town to see her and ask her to help you to get a plans of your own, and get out of commercial flying!"

"Yes you did," Sky shouted at her, smarting still even further by the slow, dawning conviction that she spoke the truth, that he was wrong, horribly wrong, and his very error was betraying him into further wrong. "You . . . you . . . you . . . million-dollar dress, wearing a wrap worth a fortune, and you went with a flock of minor millionaires! You went to get money to buy things you were crazy for. You thought you forgot all about our agreement, all about Sky-boy's ambitions, and on things! This lounge suit! This rug! That . . . that dress! That box of things . . . shoes, duds!"

The clock ticked noisily in the brief lull that following Suzanne answered him:

"Well," she said wearily, in muffled defeat," what of it, Sky? Don't you want me to have those things? Don't you like to have the pleasure from the money I earn? Provided I earn it myself?"

"You . . . you earn it," Sky muttered blankly. "Your money . . ." the silence stagged with hate and Suzanne's fingers shook as she slipped from her shoulders a coat of cold-cream, and began smoothing it on her tired, taut face.

A FARMER BOY

ONE of the best known medical men in the United States was Dr. R. V. Pierce of Buffalo, New York, who was born on a farm in Pa. He noted daily in the medical corner that many of his prescriptions prepared from herbal barks, and herbs, such as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, produced results. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets (Little Liver Pills) and Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser (1000 pages, sent free on receipt of stamps to cover mailing only) are all sold by druggists from the inventors' private stock. Write Dr. R. V. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N.Y. Dept. 1-C.

"Sky," Suzanne began, after a while, "what difference does it make, who earns "the money? It belongs to us. I'm glad I earned it, have things we want. Things that make us happy. Marriage hasn't made either of us indebted, materially, to the other. Our indebtedness is spiritual; not monetary!"

"We agreed," Sky reminded her stubbornly, "to do it, to do something. That didn't mean, in my interpretation of the agreement, that you would grab the first opportunity, to twist our pact 'to suit your own desires!'"

"Sky," Suzanne faltered wistfully, "please let's wait! Please let's wait until we're not tired, not confused about things! We did not mean to quarrel, honestly see her, and Suzanne's unsteady fingers fell to smoothing the cream jar, and picked up her silver brush.

On the edge of her dresser was the usual pile of things Sky had taken from her pockets, earlier when he changed to go out. Knife, keys, silver pencil, a shabby leather case comb, combination pallitle gadget, and many small folded papers and receipts.

The haitrbrush scattered some of them to the floor, but Suzanne went to replace them. Her fingers tensed on one small slip of paper. It was not folded, but crumpled. It was in bold, dashing, almost beautiful script, and it read quite clearly, "Bill Perry." I.O.U. fifteen dollars," it said. "Bill Perry." The name yesterday!

Suzanne laid the brush down, regarding her pale hair. She had turned blindly away from the dresser, blinking, when the sense, fighting for time to think, time to meet this newest dilemma.

She moved around the living room, mechanically straightening the magazines dropped on a chair; the paper, in a jumble on the floor beside a lounge chair; an ash tray, filled with stubs on the radio.

She saw the note she had left for Sky, where it had fallen behind the radio, and picked it up, and read it, hardly knowing what it said. Then bright pieces of reasoning began to pierce through the heavy confusion of her thoughts. Sky hadn't been the note, at all. He hadn't been home, either, when he gave Bill Perry the loan. He hadn't known about the new rug, and hats, and stuff she had today, he hadn't been annoyed with her. He hadn't been home to know any of the things that comprised filling cabinets, the spotless new desk with the brave little bouquet of carnations in a tiny vase on it. The spotless, unused blotter, and the marble and onyx pen and ink stand.

"Why," she thought miserably, "why did I ever think this was an adventure? Why did I think it could . . . make up for other things . . . a million times bigger, more vital? Sky came in. Banged down an armful of books, and filing trays.

"The Financial Register yesterday pays swell dividends, Suzie, huh? Let's lighten the load!" Sky stiffened at the undercurrent of sarcasm in his voice.

"What do you mean, Ben?" she countered simply. "Jealous?"

Larkin laughed sardonically.

"You figure it out for yourself, baby," he intimated. "I've been grinding away at this job for eight years, and so far the boss hasn't crowned my efforts with anything more than a desk, stuck off in a dark corner, and a rattletrap typewriter, with no outlets for filling cards on!"

"You're taking an unfair attitude, on this, Ben," Suzanne protested, "I had nothing to do with this sudden change. It was a great deal of much of a surprise to me, as the rest of you!"

"Yes?" Ben was infuriatingly sympathetic and reasonable, "and of course you have succeeded a stack of stuff that's been on our books for months! Or long we've all been wasting our time on the stuff. A country club connection certainly is a great one these days!"

Suzanne's face slowly whitened She stood up holding to the edge of the stone-top desk, with the brand new blotter on it. Her fingers reached for the silver fountain pen beside her purse, and she hastily sipped it open, and took out a paper.

"So you think," she faced Ben Larkin coldly, "I can sell the people who buy because they like me? Because I belong to their set?"

Ben did not answer, but his defiance grew scarcely less more obvious, in his narrowed suspicious eyes, and taunting curve of his lips. Well, she'd give her brain deeply, as a swimmer does, taking for a big dive, "you're fired, Mr. Ben Larkin! I sold that big downtown block you followed have been worrying over for the past year, when taxes and city assessments rose, and it is a man who can't speak good English, and who

HER HANDS WERE ALL OUT OF SHAPE

In Grip of Rheumatism for 15 Years

"About two years ago rheumatism went out, it was such a painful affair to get about on account of my hands and feet were the worst affected. I was under the care of a doctor at last, I read so much about Kruschen, I decided to try it. I was three months before I felt any better, but I kept on and since then I have been fine and never used the cane. My hands were all out of shape, but they are almost normal now. Of course, I could not expect to get better all at once, as I had suffered for 15 years. Good I started on Kruschen."—(Miss) A. L. Rheumatism is frequently caused by an excess of uric acid in the blood. If you could see how Kruschen dulls those uric acid deposits, then dissolves them and sweeps them away, you would know that Kruschen treatment should bring relief in cases of rheumatism.

never saw a country club in his life! Think that over, Ben, while you're adding up the score against me!

"The trouble is," she continued slowly, "you can't forgive me for being a woman. For daring to do a man's work, doing it as well, maybe better than a man would! If Johnny Goodman had sold that piece of white elephant, you'd be 'old-manning' and old-pal'ing him all over the place! You'd break out the best Scotch, and serve him a fleet of the best! Because it happens to be me," Suzanne continued simply, "you attach some ulterior motive to the fact, ash-epech for a fistful of mud to hurl. Because it's always been easier to hit the target of a woman's skirts, Ben, than to dodge the defensive fists of a man in the same sport!"

"Can you sold 'the Seal Block,'" Ben said softly, "tell me, Susie, does Del Langley have the cleaning done at Only Sanitary?"

Suzanne stared at him for a full moment, without speaking. Then she turned, walked to the telephone bast him into Dick Hale's office.

"Dick?" she said quietly, and if he had shouted it, the effect would not have been any more electrifying — come in here a moment!"

DIGS OUT HOME IN RAVINE SIDE

Fred Delaney Says His Don Valley Home Better Than Hostels

Toronto, Jan. 25 (CP)—A "respectable pioneer" of the Don Valley hobo jungle, 67 year old Fred Delaney said today he figured his home was so much superior to hostels where unemployed lived that he never would go back and live "off the government."

"I've made the seven seas and lived on all the continents, but you can't tell me there's a better place to live than right here," said the veteran as he sat on the dug out at the side of ravine on the north outskirts of Toronto.

When Delaney moved in five years ago, dozens of other workless men built shacks in the valley. That's all been cleared away—unsanitary, police called the settlement. But Delaney remains. "I'm a respectable pioneer," he grinned.

His home is furnished with odds and ends picked from dumps and garbage pails. But Fred retired from the sanitary dump-picking business a year ago. He lives as well as any bachelor without money can live.

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE CAPITOL

"Let's Make a Million" and Bulldog Edition"

Howard Everett Horton and the famous Hollywood Stutterer who seemed to popularity in "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town," are together in one of the gayest comedies to hit the screen in a long time when "Let's Make a Million," at the Capitol today, and Tuesday as hit No. 1 on this year's double bill program.

The story is a familiar one of thousands of American families. It deals with the bonus recently given to veterans of the World War, and of what one man did with his. "The man in this case is Horton. His wife wanted it to be invested up his business and to use the surplus to get married to Gertrude Michael. Wynters, who plays the role of his secretary.

But the famous pixilated pair, Margaret Seddon and Margaret McWade have other ideas on the subject, and employ all the tricks they know to get Horton to spend their way. They almost do, but after a series of hilarious events on, which brings the whole local business district into the picture, together with a pair of shock swindlers and a "deadhead" oil stock, Horton finally succeeds in more than he ever thought he could be.

Detroit Picks up 3 Points Over Weekend Against Maroons

LEAFS WIN SATURDAY

Flying Frenchmen Defeat Luckless Hawks by 4-1

By A. K. FULFORD

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Only Chicago Black Hawks were left out in the cold when points were divided up among National Hockey League teams over the week-end. The seven other clubs won from one to three of the 12 points that lost the hopeless Hawks went hungry.

The world champion Detroit Red Wings took the largest share at any team. They played Maroons a 1-1 tie in Montreal Saturday night and defeated Tommy Gorman's team 2-1 in Detroit Sunday.

Toronto Maple Leafs, New York Rangers and Montreal Canadiens each had a clean victory before the veiled Hawgers 6-0 in Toronto Saturday night and they took a 4-2 trimming from the Patrickmen at Madison Square Garden last night. Canadiens beat Hawks 4-1 in Chicago last night.

Boston Bruins and New York Americans provided the week-end's freak entertainment. Tied at the end of the second period, neither team were tied 6-6 by Bruins in Boston Sunday night, Art Shaer men scoring six goals in a wild third period.

Fifteen thousand persons jammed crowd in six games, saw Bruins come from behind scoring after scoring and cheered Bobby Smith as he scored the tying goal with 40 seconds of the third period to play. Rose had just pulled Tiny Thompson out of the net for the extra leg, the six forwards but his substitute couldn't get over the boards before Smith had whacked the puck home.

Record For Goals

It was the highest scoring game of the season, beating out Montreal Canadiens' 9-4 victory over Chicago on January 14 for that honor. Americans went into the lead in the second period goals by Art Chapman, Sweeney Schriner, Nels Stewart and Eddie Wiseman. Dit Clapper, Bruins' old iron gual early in the third and there was a general scramble when the period was half over when Tommy Gorman made it 5-1 for the New Yorkers. Then Jack Portland, Joe Jerwa and Charlie Sands beat Lorne Chabot, and Stewart put Americs another to make it 6-4. Clapper made his second goal with three minutes to play and then it was the stage for Smith's tying counter.

Team scoring honors went to the recently contred. While Ray Getliffe was playing in the hospital his wife gave birth to a seven-pound son. Both are London, Ont., hospital, and American's doctor promised Getliffe he would get into a New York hospital while the game was going on if he will be operated on today for her mia.

The 1-1 tie between Wings and Maroons was a lively game despite the few goals. Ike Kilrea opened the syd Howe to give Detroit a first period lead but Herb Cain wiped out midway through the second.

Barry Wins Game

At Detroit Marolns took a lead on Gus Marker's second period goal but Gordon Pettinger tied it up in the same period and Barry won the game for Wings with his goal early in the third. Lorne Chabot played Detroit's assist.

Chesterfield Sullivan held the heavyweight championship for many years up to the end of 1935, when he was defeated by James Corbett.

PLAYOFFS MARCH 23

Syracuse Stars Win And Lose And Still Lead Loop

(By The Canadian Press)

Cleveland Falcons came to life with a bang at the week-end but most experts feel the possible spurt is too late to land the birds in the International-American League playoffs, Secretary Maurice Podoloff has announced the battles to start at the loop title will start March 23.

Although Falcons snared three of a total 6 points possible in week-end shuffling, they still hold the last of the coal-place Pittsburgh Pirates by 15 points in the western division. Only the first two teams in the group enter the charmed circle and Cleveland's chances look pretty dim.

After holding Providence Reds to a 3-2 tie at Cleveland, Falcons staged a third-period scoring spree Sunday, hurtled Buffalo down Sizmats 3-1. There was less than five minutes to go when Tommy Cook, former Chicago Black Hawks player, started Falcons on their winning spree.

Eagles Unbeatable

Les Bartonsits were the cellar-dwellers of the eastern section, New Haven Eagles, Hornets Hilmer men bowed to Springfield Indians 3-1 Saturday and took a 6-3 pasting from Philadelphia Ramblers Sunday. Ramblers made a clean sweep of the series with 6-3 and 4-3 victories.

Syracuse Stars made amends for their Saturday defeat by scoring 3 -2 home-ice victory Sunday night. After Stars had taken a 2-0 lead on the first period, the tending of Phil Stein saved the victory for them as Reds staged a continued power attack.

Sports Roundup

(By Biddy Brietz)
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, Jan. 24.—(AP)—It's a good trick even if Don Lash doesn't do it. . . . The enduring Boston racer wants to take both the mile and two-mile at the Boston Front Memorial games Saturday . . . With Glenn Cunningham and Gene Venske in the shorter one, and Ray Sears and Joe McCluskey, in the big fella, no less . . .

Add life's little jokes: Christy Mathewson raised $10,000 per from the Giants in his day . . . Now Carl Hubbell is getting in neighborhood of $25,000 (and, the hub is no big shot) . . . and that fuller Pullen still gets $7,500 per lem grand from the Indians for his first full season in the majors. . . .

Jim Tobin, U.S. representative on the International Amateur Athletic Federation, just stopped in to tell us he's back from last summer's Olympics . . . Jim is probably the last man on the American Olympic outfit to get home, because of the basketball rules meetings over there.

. . . Add $7,000 germane again for 000,000 on the games and look in that only $7,000,000 . . . But what publicity for Mr. Hitler!" Adds Jim the banquet season is aggering with Joe DiMaggio . . . Just from the coast says his poundage is 195 pounds.

Wonder if Tommy Loughran's current "World Tour" will wind up with his accepting that London offer. . . . A set of Dunlops against men with plenty of the Doyle-Mc Vaney to back him in a gymnasium turn venture there on his hot trip over. . . . Like Hilbert in the Old Mike Gibbons is sending son Jackie back to the ring years again ing gay 20's . . . and Mickey Walker, er of Ottawa who did a lot of Big-League hobnobbing of late, that is having son Frankie win his spurs with the Ottawa Senators.

SPECIAL HELMET USED IN OSHAWA

Player on Junior Squad Using It to Protect Broken Jaw

Toronto, Jan. 25.—(CP)—That historic relic of Ontario playing fields, the head-protecting football helmet of Ab Box, Balmy Beach rugby player, was in demand again today. Informed that the old helmet was sought for Thomas Ivanoff, Brantford junior hockey player, recovering from fracturing jaw in a game at Galt, Box sent the relic within hours and lend it, if its protection is through with it in time.

The leather fashioned especially for Box when he suffered a head injury while a member of Toronto Argonauts, was designed by George Stockwell, Argo trainer. The headpiece was made of leather, padded and with white doeskin, has travelled far since then, but since then, has used by basketball, rugby and hockey players, both professional, and amateur.

To learn the autographs of each member of the Argonauts' championship of 1923, which won the Dominion championship, and the Big Four crown of other leading Canadian athletes.

Box himself hasn't seen the helmet since the rugby season, when it was lent to a Toronto high school rugby player with a fractured lower jaw. Now it is being used by an Oshawa junior hockey player who broke a facial bone in a game with the Toronto Hockey Association game Saturday.

He will be using it for at least two weeks, George Stockwell said tonight. So that makes it look bad for Ivanoff. Box is anxious to be in the playoffs for Brantford Eclegettes as the end of this month. Doctors have informed him he will be out of the game for at least three weeks.

McGILL'S REDMEN DEFEAT QUEENS

Tri-Color Could Not Match Speed And Smooth Passing of Winners

Montreal, Jan. 25 (CP)—McGill's Redmen rested scorcely on top of the International Intercollegiate Hockey League today while Queen's Tri-Color returned to Kingston smarting under successive defeats by the Redmen and University of Montreal.

McGill followed up U. of M.'s 4-3 victory Friday over Queen's by trouncing the Presbyterians 11-3 Saturday. The win sent McGill two points ahead of Harvard, University of Toronto and University of Montreal, bracketed with six points each in second spot.

Queen's held McGill in check for 10 minutes of the first period; but from then until the end it was just a matter of how many goals the Montreal team could score. Skirty Paul Pidcock gave them two and Gordie McMillan another before the period ended.

In the second season Gordie Crockett, Ralph Gilmour, Hollis Lamb counted for McGill, while Mitch Hepburn and George Hainy gave Queen's its two points.

The Reds got their goals the final 20 minutes, skating circles around the slower Kingston team. Goalies Bert Gardiner, while Duff, Lamb and Russ McConnell were the scorers in the last period spleen.

Queen's kept plugging in all the time, but the players were still three from the U. of M. and Coach Percy Page and could not match the speed nor smooth passing of the Redmen.

Sport Callings

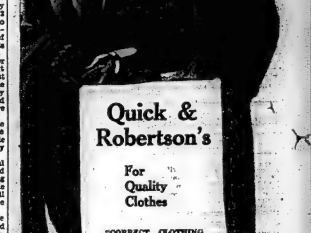
By Ken Colling

Here and now we want to congratulate the Belleville Bantam hockey team upon their behaviour during last Friday night's hockey match. Had each and everyone conducted himself as other cities the ice would have been literally covered with spectators, the centrous of taking part in the hockey, but not in Belleville. The school boy did jump over the boards, during the last game of the series, but he was quickly ejected by Referee Holway. We have always opposed sporting events in other centres, under identical circumstances and where it took many minutes to rid the ice of pugnacious and over-zealous fans, while "Cocoanut" Belleville fans!

Much controversy is said in the air relative to last Friday night's game. "That's the stuff we want!" "Lots of pepper and the boys really tossed in just like the big league." is the opinion of some, while still others declared fighting should be confined to the ring and not in hockey games. Personally, I'll leave the game up. The players can't be fighting and have their minds on hockey. It does not make good hockey, are some of the comments on the other side of the argument. What is your honest opinion? The fact is that the game has the fans all agog and talking, so they must be interested. And as for the big leagues it is a certainty, when Percival Page of Boston and there is a free-for-all fight, you can lay your bottom dollar it will be on hand when the Bruins return to Toronto. What's true of the big leagues is true in the minors.

Last Friday we announced it was rumoured that the Trenton, Interscholastic hockey team would be minus the services of a cheap rake, when the latter journeyed to Napanee to play the game and naturally enthusiastic to the school team. Well, we were right, for they did, just pay for their supplies the week as well as it has been rumoured. The Napanee victory by the smaller margin was notable in the circumstances.

Tommy Montague, Senate sports commissioner of the Picton Gazette, takes Belleville scribes to task over the jumps for seat suggestions and other deficiencies of the Picton High School. The Picton scribbler thinks Belleville scribes are "Cocoanuts" because we don't allow hockey players, he says, "Medics so young fellas, medics be but to invite Wellesley to play with the Belleville Junior Redmen." Not only was the Picton youngster will ever get out of the "sticks", don't you think?



This week's hockey schedules for the two local groups is not quite as heavy as the week. Tonight the Tweed kids are slated to appear in Napanee for their second and last game. Thursday sees the Belleville Bantam hockey team postponed game with the Peterboro Intermediates, while Wednesday, the Belleville rookies go to Trenton and Trenton intermediates are scheduled to come here versus the R.C.A.F. at the Arena. Maybe Manager Thomas will have the Tweed kids play their postponed game here on Thursday, but next Friday is the big game of the season. Our Peterboro friends medicine meet the Redmen at the Arena.

The hockey that pleases senior interscholastic fans is expected to be seen with a dual bill at the Arena tonight when the boys in blue at Napanee Collegiate come to town to meet the Belleville "Collegiate" team in the first game of the O.S.D. semicirle. The senior school boys have been practising hard since the with the 1936 Provincial finalists, and will be out to avenge the defeat handed the Napanee kids, plenty of excitement and thrills are expected and the Collegiate band will be on hand to help cheer the boys on to victory. The Napanee boys have had but one game this far this season and will be tough opposition.

The clubs in the N.H.L. had their scoring cops on last night, when the Americans and Rangers met, the latter scoring six goals in the third period to beat the Amerks six-all. The Canadiens continued to win with a 4 to 1 victory over Chicago, while Detroit and the Maroons played to a 1-1 draw.

Harvey Jackson went on a scoring rampage when he scored three for the Leafs on Saturday night and Smythe-Irwin outfit won 4 to 0 victory over the Montreal team. Detroit on Sunday, however, to beat the Leafs 4 to 3. Tweedt and the predictions made the most substantial gains over the week-end.

Boxing fans will be interested in the match between the style at the local Arena, when the Flyers and Reckmen meet the Intermediate Canadian champions of fighting. As is usually the case, Red Horner got the best of the argument, and the match between the Flyers and Reckmen may be a case of "the boys gone" so often.

DAILY SHORT STORY—
Government Beef
By Glenn R. Vernam

Pete Thurlow never did like Indians. "A lazy, thieving lot!" he always called them, and he had trouble with them even before Uncle Sam put them under a smart reservation in the dry hills and opened the Cherokee Strip for white settlement. That was in 1893, and his three boys homesteaded a section of the choice end of Shell Creek Bottom and started up the P. T. ranch his compatriots increased. But Pete had been the pet standing ground of old Chief Red Robe's outfit for years, and every chance he got the rede would slip off the reservation for a few pot hunting and fishing around the old home.

This always got under Pete's hide. He said his government had given him that land to have and to hold, and it didn't want any meddling heathens prowling around over it. He claimed that congress had donated them to Injuns on their own than they deserved after the way they had acted toward the settlers, and if they would stay home and farm it they would have enough to get along without hunting and stealing his beef.

With the buffalo and antelope practically cleaned out they had a pretty hard time filling the stew pot. And their scientific attempts of farming didn't help much. It is hard to make successful soil jibe ers out of hunters right off the bat, especially on that kind of land.

Altogether it was kind of a tough set-up. When the reds got about so homesick they would drift over around Bull Creek and start treading on Pete's property, and he would run them off to preserve the sanctity of his home and they would slip a heifer under a lariat and hide it to preserve their taste for red meat.

So it was quite a relief for everybody concerned when the government began issuing beef rations to the Indians. Pete did plenty of complaining about the cut of good government funds to feed the lazy rascals; but the reds found it easier to ride into the agency and get their rations than to pull off night raids on the P. T. Ranch, so he didn't say too much. Most of his talk was altering comments on what he called "the worthless, no-good beggars. Rather lay around the agency and live on government beef than work for a living!"

Red Robe's bunch naturally caught plenty of these remarks, but they never took any visible notice. Just went on drawing their rations and going home to smoke in the shade and watch their squaws cook on the sun-cured grass.

Then almost over night everything changed. A couple of wildcat oil men were the main cause. They drifted up to the north corner of the reservation and started picking a hunch with a hole in the ground. The result surprised them about as much as it did everybody else. By the time they finally got the gusher capped and some of the grease wiped out of their eyes they had all men, counting over the border, in a grasshopper plague.

The Indian land had grown thin grass and bitter corn, and it hadn't how to produce a real crop of oil. Within five years the oil rigs had the whole reservation looking like a harrow turned wrong side up. The reds had dismantled their bedboards for twelve-cylinder cars and were living fourteen-cylinder lives with the cutouts open.

It was kind of a joke on old Pete and his boys, though they couldn't seem to see the funny side of it. In fact, they were all busy trying to raise fifty dollar steers on fifteen dollar hay, besides keeping up their liams and mortgage interest at the same time, that they had about quit laughing.

Pete finally surrendered to old age and adversity and moved to town. In the meantime, old Red Robe had taken out citizenship papers and bought up the mortgage on the old P. T. so he could spend his declining years among youthful memories. The forty-room white house with green trimmings on the outwoods on Bull Creek was big enough to accommodate all his kin and his tribe. Most of them moved in with him to help him raise cows and breed ponies.

It was one morning last summer right after the big drouth had made its sweeping clean-up that Red Robe rode into town in his latest sand-nosed, stream-lined, rolling castle. As he came up Third street on his way uptown he suddenly eased up on the throttle and slanted a glance across the street. Sheldon's Hardware Store had sported a brand new sign. "Federal Relief Headquarters" he thoughtfully spelled out. There was quite a crowd gathered around the front of the building awaiting for man unload a truckful of boxes which were labeled "Packed for Government Use. Not to Be Sold!" As his glance finished his swift scrutiny, Red Robe's old eye packed out Pete Thurlock and his three boys among the crowd. He grunted disdainfully.

"Lazy damn' tribe' All time lay 'round town like big buna. No save, no work, no cry. Just smoke in shade an' beg for gov'ment beef. Huh!"

APPEALS MADE AGAINST WILL

Disputed "Stork Derby" Against The Common Good

"Stork Derby" Against The Common Good

Toronto, Jan. 23 (CP)—Only three solutions in the Charles Vance Millar "stork derby" were presented when the proposals were made before Ontario Appeal Court against a judgment of Mr. Justice F. R. Middleton declaring the will valid, but not to be shared by mothers with illegitimate children.

Claimants in court were Mrs. Arthur Thaisch, Mrs. John Wade and Mrs. Ora Graziano, Mrs. Thaisch and Mrs. Wade each have nine children and are generally considered as tied with several others for the $600,000 prize established by Millar's will. Mrs. Graziano has eight eligible children.

John R. Cartwright, K.C., was counsel for Pauline M. Clarke, red-headed mother of nine who appealed the decision that illegitimate children should not share under the will. The will stated the Toronto mother had the most children in the 15-year period following Millar's death in October, 1936, should obtain the estate.

Asked to Refer Back

"I would like to suggest to the court that the matter be referred back to the presiding Judge to decide what mothers are entitled to benefit under the will," said Cartwright.

Chief Justice Newton W. Rowell said, however, the appeal against the will's validity should be decided before a decision was reached on what mothers should share under it.

"The will should be declared invalid and should be appealed against the common good," asserted J. D. Hellmuth, K.C., representing Arabella West, executrix of Vance Butcher, relatives seeking invalidation of the will.

Anything encouraging women to have children in rapid succession was against the public good, he said, especially the epidemic, where a lot of two or three years between births was required for healthy mothers and children.

Illegitimacy and a high mortality rate among children born in rapid succession were other points cited by Hellmuth in the case of Mr. Justice Middleton's judgment.

Chancellor Hitler Barred by Custom

London, Jan. 26 (CP)—Chancellor Hitler cannot come to the coronation. He is barred by a curious convention. Invitations have already gone from British government agencies to other governments, inviting them to send representatives. But it is understood that the invitation does not include heads of states. Therefore, although Hitler as head of the German state can nominate any German representative, he cannot nominate himself.

It all arises from an old custom. It has never been the practice, it is stated, for heads of states to be invited to the coronation, for if they were invited precedence of precedence would immediately arise. Still it is a custom which may give rise to many complications in the course of accessities. Mussolini is "Capo de Governo", but is he the head of the Italian state? Is Stalin the head of states in Soviet Russia? They are awkward bridges for the expert in procedure to cross.

O'Leary Malartic

O'Leary Malartic Mines has a small crew of men at work in Beauparlant township surface trenching and stripping with every considerable encouragement. Present efforts are being chiefly centered on exploring the north showing. It can be formed fairly high grade ore has been opened up for about 500 ft. in length and 2 and 3 ft. widths. The south showing is in a shear zone. It is an interesting development. This is reporting again to Mr. Hoe from with the Westwood Chibiba concession. The O'Leary property adjoins Westwood on the west.

The Canada Malting group President R. S. Potter as denying a report which appeared in a Toronto paper. "No one has been sent to the seaboard for the simple reason that drilling on the company's Bourlamaque property has now yet been started," Mr. Potter said.

Sheep Creek Gold

This operation is facing a period of lower metal price. Robert Shaft from the 10th to the 12th level is completed and drifts have been run to open the east and west ore shoots at the new low depth, an aggregate distance of about 1,000 ft. the shaft being located between the two ore shoots. The shaft is now 54 ft. below the 11th level station. Ore from the recently opened Hideaway vein is going to the mill with the comparatively low grade ore from the Upper vein and the Main vein mine. The company, after paying off its entire mine accounts, is providing for No. 3 dividend, had $113,230 on the 31st of December, her to which should be added approximately $17,000 allowance for the gold brick shipped for the second half of December.

What Can International Nickel Do.

Ernest Ben is 13277

The experienced market trader and floor trader, Mr. Ben Stead of the New York Stock Exchange and Curb, when this turns is active and when it is not, is generally and generally follows. Steel is now selling at around 38 and apparently still remains more or less static. In this connection it may be borne in mind ten that it has been characteristic of all important upward movements in International Nickel over the past three years that these movements have been preceded by periods of narrow fluctuations and reduced volume of trading. Since November volume has been only about one-third to one-half of the turnover of last Autumn when the shares were riding in their best price since 1929.

As nearly as Financial Service can estimate, International Nickel should earn for 1936 around $2.40 a share, with 45 cents for the last quarter. The big question now is what can this great corporation earn in 1937. We do not have any hesitancy in saying that the company can earn around $4.25 a share on its common stock if there is full their copper output of 300,000,000 pounds as 1934 with a good deal their 340 million pounds of nickel as 1929 and particularly that such an objective could be accomplished. Under such circumstances the price look from a shareholder's viewpoint would be very attractive, as such position is now extremely strong and there appears to be no other place to put earnings but into the dividend account.

New High For Brazilian Traction

The twenty-two thousand Canadian holders of Brazilian Traction Light, Power & Co. have common the enthusiasm in the fact that this old favorite market leader is now selling at new high territory on recovery. Evidently the prevailing spirit surrounding the utility market generally is a factor, together with belief business has gained sufficient momentum to outweigh adverse factors, one being the uncertainty of exchange.

Canada Life

Annual Report Reflects Improving Conditions

In addressing the Annual Meeting of Shareholders and Policyholders on Jan. 21, Mr. Leighton McCarthy, K.C., President, said in part:

"Canada has during the last few years been steadily climbing the somewhat steep ascent leading out of the Depression which enveloped her and other parts of the world. Now she appears to have successfully reached a point from which can be viewed, as in panorama, the foundations for such faith, hope, courage and confidence as is evidenced by this and other Annual Reports of Financial and Industrial Institutions which have been recently presented to various bodies of Shareholders.

"We are thus—unless overindulgence creates another stack of indigestion, which God forbid!—led to believe that Canada is entering upon another era of prosperity.

Mr. A. N. Mitchell, Vice-President and General Manager, who also addressed the Meeting, stated:

"No country is more richly endowed with natural resources than Canada. Each year shows new records in their development. These resources were not lost during the depression. Their development may have been momentarily retarded but the ability to create new vast wealth from agriculture, fisheries, forests and mines is still as great as ever. . . .

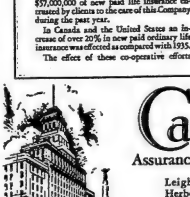
". . . Our predecessors and ancestors in this country fought the forces of nature to produce for us an opportunity such as has been given to few people in the history of the world. If we have inherited the characteristics of our forbears—and I believe we have—our present problems will not be solved by evading them. They will be solved by using the resources bequeathed us in such abundance and by using the brains, brawn and courage also bequeathed us to develop them. Our salvation will not be found through arbitrarily destructive laws. It will be found in progressive thinking and a determination to build a better and greater Canada—or in other words, in the individual initiative and courage of our citizens.

"The difficulties need not be minimized. I believe that the decisions and declarations, if properly fed, have the courage to approach them as problems to be solved through the application of that common sense and common honesty which produces a true co-operation.

"Sectional prejudices have no place in such a common sense co-operation. Certain sections of our country are facing difficulties which are not peculiar to them, but which are not felt by other parts and true advancement can only be made when all parts of the country are working together to eliminate these difficulties. It would seem essential, therefore, that some means should be set up at an early date to properly analyze these difficulties and to attempt to find some means by which all could co-operate in a common sense solution of the troubles.

"It seems evident that such an answer should be sought by some properly appointed body representing the country as a whole and which will have the backing of public confidence because of its impartiality. There are injustices in our methods of taxation, or distribution of taxes, or in our allocation of governmental powers which should be sought out. If the statement being made that these injustices exist is incorrect, then some authoritative method should be found of correcting the misapprehension. Now that we have in many parts of the country evidence of growing prosperity the question could be more easily faced, and any sacrifices required more readily absorbed."

During its 90 years of service, the Canada Life has been privileged to act as the medium through which hundreds of thousands of policyholders in all walks of life have cooperated to build up a fund mostly out of small savings, to be returned later in benefits to themselves or their beneficiaries.



Assets accumulated in this way crossed the $250,000,000 mark in 1936. This large sum is necessary in order to meet the requirements of the $814,000,000 of life insurance now in force, which includes over $57,000,000 of new paid life insurance created by the efforts of the Canada Life Company during the past year.

In Canada and the United States an increase of over 20% in new paid ordinary life insurance was effected as compared with 1935.

The effect of these co-operative efforts through the years since 1847 is best recorded by the fact that the Canada Life has paid to policyholders, annuitants and beneficiaries, or has accumulated on their behalf more than $600,000,000, a sum which exceeds the total premiums received during the Company's existence by more than $50,000,000.

In 1936 alone, the Company paid the very large amount of over $26,000,000 to its policyholders, annuitants and beneficiaries. These payments amounted to an average of $2,202,977 every month, or $505,578 every week. Living policyholders and annuitants received $18,300,000, or 72% of the total paid.

Such payments have brought a measure of comfort and security into hundreds of thousands of homes—have been the means to a happy retirement for thousands of policyholders themselves.

PONTIFF'S PAIN SLIGHTLY EASED

New Opiate is Given to Relieve His Agony

Vatican City, Jan. 25 (AP)—Pope Pius, his pain slightly eased by a powerful new sedative, heard words of the ordination today of the 192th Centenary of the Conversion of St. Augustine.

Although still suffering, the Pope was said to be much better than for the past few nights because of the new opiate given him to relieve his agony. Vatican sources said his doctors resorted to the new treatment because they did not want to have some rest if he is to continue to survive.

128 REPORTED DEAD IN OHIO RIVER FLOOD

One Million Acres Floodswept in Ohio And Other States While Super-Flood is Expected in South Mississippi

BUSINESS DOWN TO STANDSTILL

Damage Feared in South as Flood Waters Pour Into Mississippi River in Southern States

(By The Associated Press)

Fear stricken Americans by the tens of thousands cowered behind weakening levees or fled to higher levels today as the monstrous yellow tide of the Ohio river swelled to record-breaking flood heights on its sweep to the Mississippi.

Eddying in muddy, slow-rising torrents, the waters spread over an area of more than 1,000,000 acres, taking a toll of at least 128 known dead, driving 550,000 from their homes and leaving many thousands more marooned in precarious straits. Whole towns and villages showed only rooftops.

Property damage was estimated far in excess of $10,000,000.

Wholesale evacuations of flood-ieged towns in Tennessee, western Kentucky, Southeastern Missouri, Arkansas and Mississippi signalled the greatest mass flood exodus in history.

Watery Desolation

From Pittsburgh in the north, where anxious crowds watched the flood relentlessly spread over the edge of the $1,000,000,000 business district, to the crest of the deluge sweeping into the Mississippi river beyond Cairo, Ill., a panorama of watery desolation extended mile on mile.

In the lower Mississippi valley, where 600,000 were made homeless in 1927, authorities awaited the big test of the great system of dikes and levees built along a 300-mile stretch of the Mississippi after the 1927 disaster.

Red Cross officials renewed their urgent appeal for contributions to a $4,000,000 relief fund. The first day's receipts at national headquarters totalled $55,620.

2000 Marooned in Upstairs or on Housetops

Lieut. A. Burton of the U.S. air corps, after a boat inspection of Louisville's west end, reported 2,000 persons were marooned on second floors or rooftops. Many refused to move.

Floods at a Glance

Washington—The United States Congress hastens consideration of $790,000,000 work relief appropriation bill, which President Roosevelt says will be used to aid flood disaster victims until extent of damage is determined. Maj. General Malin Craig, army chief of staff, calls Ohio river flood "worst that ever happened." Red Cross renews appeal for $4,000,000 in contributions.

Louisville—Army troops move to establish martial law called by Gov. K. B. Chandler at request of city's emergency relief committee. Fire breaks out in downtown district. Continue evacuation of two-thirds of 330,000 population. All electrical power cut. Water supply limited.

Cincinnati—Ohio river virtually stationary at unprecedented 80-foot level, more than 28 above flood stage. City has 60,000 homeless. The city manager cuts water rations to one hour a day. Health department advises supply is polluted, should be boiled.

Evansville, Ind.—About 8,000 of 102,000 residents started exodus as Ohio rises.

"Super Flood" on Way

Cairo, Ill.—Army engineers dynamite levees leading to Birds-Point-New Madrid, Mo., floodway and easing of pressure temporarily holds river about stationary on Cairo side of Mississippi. Workmen rush construction of three-foot seawall bulkhead to meet expected crest.

Memphis, Tenn.—"Super flood is on its way," warns Lieut. Col. Reybold, District Chief of U. S. Army Engineers, as Mississippi and tributaries cover 1,000,000 acres in Mississippi river basin. Refugees on move in Tennessee, Arkansas and Mississippi.

Portsmouth, Ohio—Ohio river rise slows. Food supplies reach 35,000 homeless. Evacuate 600 refugees, plan removal of 5,000 others.

Visible Container 'Gas' Pump Will Be Abolished By Law

Immediate Change Will Not be Made, Highway Dept. Says

BY ORDER-IN-COUNCIL

Toronto, Jan. 26 (CP)— Ontario will abolish the "visible container" type of gasoline pump because of its dangers, it was announced today. An order-in-council has been passed and copies of the new regulations will be distributed to all gasoline stations.

Department of Highways will not require gasoline stations to change their pumps immediately. In the future no installations of the "visible" pumps will be permitted. It is hoped in several years there will be none of the old type left.

Many gasoline pumps now have glass containers, filled with fuel, surmounting them. Accident hazard is increased by the danger of the globes being broken and the gasoline being spilled. Fires have often resulted.

$300,000 BLAZE EVICTS GUESTS IN NORTHERN CITY

North Bay Hotel And Other Buildings Damaged Early Today

VOLUNTEERS HELP

Whistles of C. P. Railway Give Alarm to Citizens

North Bay, Ont., Jan. 26 (CP)— Fire which claimed guests from the Queen's Hotel and destroyed the Nipissing Hotel, a bus building and damaged three other blocks early today was estimated to have caused $300,000 loss when it was brought under control several hours after daybreak.

Worst fire in North Bay's history, it started in the Nipissing Hotel and raged through the building as Night Clerk Arthur Gould aroused guests, including members of the Sault Ste. Marie hockey team and sent them scurrying to safety by fire escapes and ropes strung from windows.

Cutts, who did not leave the hotel until after he had told him, was assisted in his rescue work by Marcel Pillatteult, hotel fireman who first reported the blaze and Basile Giroux. It was definitely established that no one was hurt, though several were injured.

Business establishments which suffered total loss of stock and furnishings were McDevitt's Drug Store, Nipissing Hotel, Silverstein's Men's Wear, Lovell's Men's Wear, Dodge shop, and an unnamed store, furnished.

The fire checked by city firemen, assisted by hundreds of volunteers, after it reached a brick wall which separated it from Woolworth's store.

Apartment dwellers in the Woolworth Building, however, had removed all their furniture to the street before they were assured the blaze was under control.

Hundreds of persons awakened in the early morning by whistles of Canadian Pacific Railway vehicles which were blown for 15 minutes rushed to the spectacular scene. Part of the hotel which separated it from Woolworth's store,

LEISURE SCHOOL HAS NOVEL PLAN

Officials of School of Leisure an organization conducted by the ladies of John St. Church, have hit upon a novel idea to help young women solve the question of combatting the depression. Young girls desirous of securing positions as mannequins or models will be the fortunate recipients of cosmetic science at the regular meetings, and during the course of instruction are taken to various beauty shops where they learn in a practical way, how to operate a household. At the end of the course the girls are given diplomas which should prove of great help to them in securing positions.

FINE SPECIMEN OF CANADIAN JAY SEEN

The bird, perched on the limb of a large maple tree was moved to protest volubly and loudly at the sight of a stray cat which stalked the street below.

GRASSHOPPERS SEEN AT CAMPBELLFORD

If grasshoppers are a harbinger of Spring, then housewives of Campbellford district should soon be getting ready for Spring housecleaning. Engaged in work near the B Powerhouse in Campbellford this week, Hillon Beatty reported seeing a healthy specimen of hopper sunning itself on an old can near the plant. Several attempts were made to catch the insect, but it proved too lively for its would-be captors.

MANY FARMERS STILL GRASSING THEIR STOCK

Fears of feed shortage in this district have been temporarily stilled during the past week or so due to the fact, that in many cases live stock owners have taken the opportunity of fair weather to grass their stock in the open. In a report issued by the Ontario Department of Agriculture it is indicated that sheep and cattle have been on pasture practically since the first thaw. Egg production is reported well up, while creameries are also receiving reasonable quantities of cream. With colder now practically assured for their keep, farmers are expected to winter dairy stock well in hopes of higher prices for 1937, it is reported.

ICE TIGHTENS UP WITH COLD SPELL

Wide patches of open water which existed in the bay during the mild spell of the past week, have closed up this week following the advent of colder weather, as the bay is providing excellent skating, while ice boats have also been out in force during the past few days. This morning ice had formed at the mouth of the Moira River to the car bridge. Previously open water had existed almost to the end of the park.

INSPECTOR MUM IN NORTHERN CASE

Inspector Clarke of Welfare Department Believed to be Probing Matter

"I have nothing to say and no comments to make regarding the Woodcock case or the press", stated Inspector J. D. Clarke, of the Welfare Department of the Ontario Government when approached by the Ontario Intelligencer at noon today. Inspector Clarke was at a lengthy session with Inspector Frank Gardiner, of the Provincial Police in what is believed to have been on the subject of the much discussed case.

The Woodcock controversy has been responsible for the continued refusal of various communities in Hastings Peterborough and Addington counties, where residents object to the residence of the 90-year-old man, who is said to be suffering from an incurable disease, for the past four months to accept him. Woodcock, through threats, he claims, has been forced to move on from his home several times within the past 18 months, the last case being when he reports an attempt to dynamite his home near Cobourg was made last week, and at which time a fiery cross was erected on his garden.

Inspector Frank Gardner stated today his department was interested in the disposition of the Woodcock case, outside of the apprehension of whoever might be responsible for exploding the dynamite and erecting the fiery cross at Coe Hill. "We are still investigating the trouble and will prosecute the guilty parties if apprehended. The matter of what shall be done with Mr. Woodcock remains in the hands of the Welfare Department, and will be guided largely by their decision after receiving complaints from Coe Hill respecting the various objections raised in that community.

Recent unofficial reports from Coe Hill are to the effect that Woodcock had been provided transportation and that three days later said moved back to Dummer Township, Peterborough County, from where he came a short time ago. Charles Hollins leave of Coe Hill states he did not know for certain Woodcock's destination, but believed it to be Dummer Township. The matter is now in the hands of the Welfare Department and it is believed will be taken care of through the customary channels in that department.

POTATOES HIGHER DEMAND HEAVY

Belief is Held That There is a Fairly Large Supply

"Spuds are on the up and up" such is the report that travelled his wares on the city market this morning". And by the hail I'm rejoicing "he continued. "Today the price is $1.75 for the 100-pound bags, and according to the Inspector who was here on Saturday the price will go to $2.00 by the day or so. Contrary to the ordinary belief, there is still a fairly plenty of potatoes in this part of the country. I have tried to buy from farmers to the east and west of us but they are apparently holding out for higher prices."

"A man driving a truck loaded with ninety bushels of potatoes pulled in the city market last Saturday. He demanded $1.75 per bag for them and I told him I would take them. But for some reason or other (he could be from eastern part of Ontario) he discovered that he could get a higher price in Toronto, in fact as much as $1.45 per bag wholesale. I offered him the sale. While I don't blame him for getting the best prices he could, this is indicative of the further rise in price which is bound to come sooner or later. Buyers in Toronto cannot get sufficient stocks to supply their demands. On my last trip to the city markets I was told to bring all I could my hands as there were already two or three dealers there who had no fear of selling them."

Mother Dies While Son Travels to Poland

On his first trip home to his native Poland since he first came to Canada several years ago, Mr. Alex Lipsen, well known proprietor of a local business establishment accompanied by Mrs. Lipsen, left Picton early in January.

Word has just been received that his mother died last December. Word will not reach Mr. Lipsen until his arrival in Poland or home.

TREE SITTING TOMCAT RESCUED BY FIREMEN

Forty eight hours exposure while cancooned in the limbs of a large tree was the home coon of Mad Moira Street before being rescued from his precarious perch by members of the fire department last night, found "Thomas" a large grey tiger cat little or none the worse for his experience.

Apparently taking refuge in the tree from the unwelcome attentions of the dogs of the neighborhood early on Sunday morning, Thomas' fleshy refused to leave the safety of his lofty perch. The excitements of the family proved to be of no avail. Once or twice he started the steep descent but fear, or whatever it is that causes a cat to think twice before climbing down a perilous incline, prompted him to turn back.

Ladders of the Belleville Fire Department solved the problem and now "Thomas" is once more safe in the family kitchen.

WRINGER INJURES ARM OF CHILD

18 Months Old Stanley Mitchell Escapes With-out Fractures

Childish curiosity and probing baby fingers nearly resulted in serious injury to little Stanley Mitchell, eighteen months old son of Mr. and Mrs. William Mitchell of 26 Howard Street, about the noon hour o'clock yesterday morning, when he investigated the workings of a wringer attached to the family washing machine and succeeded in getting his arm caught in the rollers to the elbow before his mother disconnected the machine and rescued her son from his painful predicament.

A hurried call was sent to Dr. A. Walters who examined the baby and sent him to the Belleville General Hospital for X-ray examination. This revealed no fracture of bones although a bloog clot which formed in the arm from pressure was lanced and the blood removed.

Watching the family washing go through the usual ordeal encountered proving an enjoyable experience for Master Stanley, his fingers got caught in woodenware at the mysteries which unfolded before them. Then came the big opportunity. Mrs. Mitchell had turned away from the machine and the baby saw his opportunity when the diminutive extremities seized the wringer, bringing a chair close to the machine, he climbed up and inserted his finger at the slowly turning rollers of the wringer. But one finger turns too close, and a Danger-wrung rent the air as the arm was drawn into the rollers. Mrs. Mitchell hurriedly disconnected the machine and rescued her son.

This morning, apart from the badly bruised arm which swapped in bandages Stanley appeared none the worse for his adventure. In fact he appeared still curious as to what makes the wringer machine tick, for even on the first things he did was to drag a chair near the machine and climb on it to peer between the rollers, with apparent admonition.

Private Bill to Appoint City Manager and to Reduce Number in Council Approved

Sent to Legislature to Receive Final Ratification

DELEGATES HEARD

Council Changes Date From January to December

Municipal elections will be held on the first Monday in December this year with Nomination Day on the Friday before the last Monday in November according to a by-law, which was passed at the regular meeting of the City Council held on Monday evening before a crowded audience, many of those on relief and wished to address the civic body being in attendance. Through failure to pass the necessary bylaw in time, the Municipal elections had to be held on the first Monday in January, but the Council felt, that the legitimate time to hold the elections was in December. The change was made because people would take an interest in civic affairs at the time the change was made. The hour of nomination was not changed as was suggested in some quarters, it being left at three o'clock in the forenoon until eleven o'clock in the forenoon and from twelve noon to one o'clock for Aldermanic, Trustees and Hydro Commissioners.

WAR DEBT ENVOY?

Reportedly ready to confer with President Roosevelt at any time convenient to him, Sir Ninemyer, director of the Bank of England, has landed at New York on a projected tour of the United States. A fellow passenger was Arthur Morrison, president of the British board of trade, arrived several days earlier.

Seek New Legislation

Alderman Baldree, who as chairman of the committee appointed to the relief question in Belleville as are other members of the council, introduced a recommendation to be forwarded to the Ontario Municipal Association, asking for aid in reaching effect in controlling the unemployment situation, suggested in the recommendation "That information seeking adoption of a two or three year residence basis for municipalities before relief would be given by that municipality would become effective at the earliest date and that the city be requested to notify other municipalities to acquiesce, concurrence." At the present time if a man comes to Belleville from another municipality and he is on relief, he gets it and if he is not charged with the relief given, the municipality with which the unfortunate person came being billed but on the expiration of the year and the person has not been charged by the city and is still on relief, he or she be a charge on the municipality. It was thought by the members that a two or three year residence rule would assist in relieving the pressure on the finances of every municipality in the province.

Private Bill Accepted

A bill to present to the Ontario Legislature respecting the appointment of a city manager and to reduced Aldermanic Board, ratified by the aldermanic board when municipal elections was passed by the Council in session and will likely be dealt with at the present session although that is not definite at the present time. A motion securing anying the bill was passed after being introduced by Alderman J. W. Wills. Alderman Wills explained that the City Manager could be appointed anytime after April 1st if the bill was ratified by the Legislature but that he could not be dismissed. Board would not come into effect until after the Municipal elections held in December of this year, when seven members vote for the election of six Aldermen and a Mayor instead of thirteen Aldermen and a Mayor at present. The Alderman also stated that the City Solicitor was in touch with the Government on the matter and hoped that a bill would be given no definite assurance that the bill would be passed this session. The bill provides that the Private Bill be advertised for six weeks in order that notice of same is not expected the Legislature will be sitting for that length of time. The Government, anxious to expedite the matter told the City Solicitor everything could be done with the Bill through and that a definite announcement would be made in the near future.

Motion is Lost

In a motion submitted at the lengthy session, Aldermen Wilcox and Baldree asked for the dismissal of Mr. Palmerston as secretary-manager by the Belleville Gas Department, but after considerable discussion, the motion was defeated by 10-4, those favoring the motion being Aldermen Harvey, Baldree, Thompson and Kennedy. Some of those voting for the motion stated, that they would support another motion with the same effect if the transfer of the Gas Plant to the Public Utilities Commission was not made in the near future. The matter was first broached under the head of accounts and Alderman Baldree who wanted to know what the sum of $40.09 to Mr. Palmerston was for and the reply that the gentleman's showing it was gasoline and repairs to his car while on civic business. Alderman Jennings explained that Mr. Palmerston was doing the work at present.

Done on Bicycle

"This work used to be done on a bicycle," said Alderman Harvey, "and the man who rode that bicycle has been a valued servant of the city for 25 years yet he is fired to make room for an outsider."

Alderman Jennings: "That is going back to the bicycle age?"

Alderman Harvey: "That is getting back to the bicycle age in respect to expenditures." Personally I am not satisfied with the employment of this man, when we have ratepayers in this city, who are as capable as this man Palmerston. He was in the employ of the Consumers Gas Company, when the city hired him."

Alderman Lewis: "I think you are speaking out of turn for the corporation was not an employee of the Ontario Shore Gas Company, but was employed by a board to look over the gas plant."

The matter was dropped until enquiries were reached, when again Alderman Jennings enlightened the Alderman on the question stating that Palmerston was employed by the city at the end of the year but as the electric light plant was to be acquired, it was thought best not to disturb the service of the department and after the electors had decided in favor of a Public Utilities Commission, he was granted only a month's leave would elapse and Palmerston was kept on the pay roll.

Thought Criticism Unjust

Alderman Baldree supported Alderman Harvey as did Alderman Thompson, and Alderman Kennedy. Alderman Saragar thought the criticism unjust. After explanation given by Alderman Jennings but was willing to support any motion for the immediate retirement if the gas plant was not soon taken over by the Public Utilities Commission.

Alderman Harvey: "We hire an engineer while our ratepayers walk the streets".

Again under motions the subject was brought up and Alderman Wills stated, that he held no brief for Mr. Palmerston in his attempts regarding the sale of the plant to the Consumers Gas Co., but in his opinion, that the matter could rest with the Board of the plant was the time to make to the new commission.

Alderman Harvey in response to same the former employee of the gas plant, who was an efficient servant of the city, named by Mr. Scriven and Alderman Lewis acted, "To whose service was he satisfactory?"

Alderman Harvey: "I say he rendered valuable service to this city."

Alderman Jennings: "I say you know why he was discharged and there being be answer the Alderman stated he was discharged because but this was not discussed further.

Alderman Armstrong: "As a member of the gas committee I can say that Palmerston would not be employed today if R. T. Austin had been chairman at the last elections held in December instead of in January 1936 and that is the point" said Alderman Armstrong, that the Board of Control should meet in the near future to the new commission and that there was no sense in changing the personnel for a short time.

Requested to Hold Motion

Alderman Thompson: "Why can't we hire our own ratepayers?"

Alderman Kennedy: "If we have a ratepayer that can handle the job let us give it to him."

Alderman Harvey: "I think that Aldermen Harvey and Baldree should withdraw their motion for two weeks' period because the matter will likely be adjusted by that time."

Alderman Harvey: "I would be glad to withdraw my motion in the same mind."

Alderman Baldree: "You made a motion and let it stand," and to which Alderman Harvey agreed, but the vote defeated the motion 10-4.

Considerable time was taken up in the discussion of relief and a number of complaints from relief recipients in regard to the work, the majority of those addressing the council were from men who had months in arrears of rent and they were desirous of knowing whether going to get their rent paid or work for their rent. Alderman Thompson definitely stated that the Public Works department was not going to create jobs so that relief recipients could work to pay their rent. Alderman Jennings and Alderman Clapp, "the city will have to pay the one hundred percent of the cost while under the government plan of relief the city will only have to pay one third of the costs of relief."

One of the delegation wanted to know how four people could live on $2.50 per week. Both Mayor Hall and Alderman Lewis replied, "I am all washed up on your case. I decided has been given and that is as far as the department is going as far as I am concerned. There have been a lot of favorable statements made at the Relief Office, one man in particular stating that he earned $18 per week and had the confidence that he had screened considerably more." The gentleman connected with $2.00 relief voucher stated that this was not enough to keep four people alive.

Alderman Baldree: "Are you a ratepayer?"

Spokesman: "I've but you cannot get the house and lot."

Clothing Requested

A woman then heard, who complained that she had requested clothing for her children to go to school and that she had yet received the clothing.

Alderman Lewis: "You are getting all you are entitled to."

Woman: "You told me to get clothing at that office and I have not received it yet although I have been there on several occasions."

Another woman, a property owner stated that she had been put out to protect those owning property in the city but there were mutitred the Council to look after them.

Another recipient told the council there were three families rent owing his landlord and that he had had a lot of trouble to get Relief and wanted to know what the council was going to do about it. At this point Mayor Arnott interrupted to state the whole rent question was a matter for the Relief Council to determine and that it would be discussed every week and a decision given.

Alderman Lewis: "I see here a number, and one in particular who was given a favorable decision by the Relief Department who is living the "nob" to see what is going on."

Voice: "Why the mob?"

Alderman Lewis: "I congratulate all of you, on the way you have conducted yourselves at this meeting and the way you have stated your cases. As I said before it is a thing of the past to be here these rents will be paid and you will be notified when they will be given careful consideration and a last decision given."

Tennant Threatened

At this point another spokesman requested, that his rent be paid, that his landlord had been to see him and the landlord threatens to take off the doors and windows." He was told to see the department and that another man stated he had notice to quit. He had been out of work and had been refused relief.

Alderman Lewis: "How much did you earn in your last cheque from the factory?"

The spokesman stated so much but Alderman Lewis interrupted to say, "You have been receiving probably more and that is the reason why the Relief Department is not in your case. You will have to fill the $2.50 and that explanation given to you wish to get help." The discussion was closed at this point and Alderman Lewis arranged to see many of the spokesmen today and Alderman Baldree to see others of them.

A number of appointments were made to the various boards of the city, Alderman Harvey having been being appointed to the Hospital Board, Alderman Kennedy and Sergeant Major Palmerston to the Board, Alderman Harvey to the V.O.N. board, Mayor Wallace and Alderman Baldree Harvey to the V.O.N. board, Mayor Wallace and Alderman Lewis proposed of Alderman C. R. Clapp and Alderman Harvey to succeed Armstrong chairman of Waterworks, J. W. Barlow chairman of Parks, Mayor Wallace chairman of Moss and the City Solicitor, A. B. Cullen, K.C. Alderman Harvey, C. R. Clapp and G. E. Thompson will act on the Board Committee that is being set up by the Belleville Municipal Band with Lieutenant Johnson. The council enacted the right to the Beach Committee to hold an old time dance during the summer to raise funds and also granted the right to the Belleville I.O.D.E. the right to hold a Tag Day on the 13th Saturday in May.

Asks For Rebate

Mr. McMullen a butcher in the city, asked for a rebate of his business assessment. His request was supported by Ex Mayor W. H. Panier and His Worship Mayor Wallace but the Council members. The Conger Coal Company were present the matter to supply a car load of Pocahontas coal. A letter was received from James L. Hughes, Toronto regarding the Dominion district, asking for co-operation in the matter of the Dominion Exhibition.

Exhibition Dominion-Wide

Mr. Irwin explained in his letter that the Gleecentkers' Association was not satisfied with the exhibition held last year but this year they intend to make the competition Dominion-wide and that they would probably be over $500 boxes of seats. It was thought by the council that rodeo be given by the city to help the exhibition and that the city council make a favorable grant. The matter was enthusiastically received by the members and referred to the committee for further consideration. The request for funds and co-operation will be given favorable consideration by the Council.

Alderman Lewis, chairman of the committee of the whole, read the letter from Hon. David A. Croll respecting the amount to be received from the Province for relief purposes in the coming year. He stated that the province would be about eight per cent and the amount is expected $62,000. Divided into months the amounts are as follows:

January	$6,375	February $6,550;
March	$8,250;	April $6,600; May
$6,600;	June $5,750;	July $5,500;
August	$3,775;	September $3,625;
October	$4,775;	November $4,500;
December	$6,600.	The council ordered the purchase of 70 feet of sewer foot piping at a cost of $6.00 per lineal foot from the Bushwater pewring Company. A motion was also passed that in all buildings erected in the city of Belleville permit must be first secured. The money received from these permits will be used to pay for the inspection of the printing of the permits and other incidentals connected and will amount to approximately $100 a year. A request for a bylining up to $600 will cost 50 cents and up to $1,000 one dollar. Each additional $1,000 up to $5,000 will cost 50 cents and each additional $1,000 up to $10,000 will cost 25 cents and each additional $1,000 over $10,000 will cost ten cents. There being no further business the council adjourned at eleven o'clock. All members of the council were present.

MEN AND CLOTHES

Men's clothing this coming spring is to be the most colorful in many years, say the designers. Shades and names of styles are to be intriguing, colors known as "burma", "dawn" gray, "blueberry" blue, and dubonnet will appear in summer suits and slacks. Shirts promise to be colorful in "guardsman" blue, putty, steel, rust, cornflower blue, "Gloucester" green, eggshell, "sky cloud", meadow tones, "cavalry arms" and bottle green are the new colors. Neckties will dazzle likewise.

The styles call for a summer suit of "dawn gray" or burma coat with black tuxedo trousers. A maroon bow tie with cuff links matching will be worn with a soft front pleated white shirt. They say a red carnation must be worn in the buttonhole of the coat.

These designers are busy folk. They do not allow a man time to wear out his old clothes before they flutter before him the most attractive conceptions of what the well-dressed man ought to wear. This coming year even the underwear and the night clothes are interfered with by the designers who order featherweight materials bearing the impressive names of "sea weed" and "clouds with a silver lining."

Man in recent years has taken more to pluming himself than his fathers and grandfathers did. This is natural because science has created so many new colors and combinations, machinery is so perfect that the defter combinations are possible at low prices. Man has learned that variety is the secret of pleasure in wearing clothes. Still, he lingers behind womankind in the attention paid to his dress but he is an apt student.

Many men of course do not want to be birds of gay plumage and are content with the quiet and less pretentious dress rather than that which some of the best-dressed men will adorn themselves with. But even the sedate man who moves behind currents of fashion is more or less affected. As he does not make his clothes today as they did in the old days of the homespun and while he is not altogether at the mercy of the fashion dictators, because a demand for moderate styled clothes means that merchants also carry these, yet he is more or less in the current or backwash of the style things.

RUSSIA'S LATEST

Always something new from Africa, was the old saying. In our time it seems to be transferred to Soviet Russia. Her capacity to astonish the world might seem to have been exhausted before this, but Saturday's proceedings in the new criminal trial at Moscow add a fresh surprise. Mr. Duranty's vivid dispatch in yesterday's Times heaped what must appear to the Western mind one incredibility upon another. Here were accused men, some of them men of former prominence in public affairs, coming forward to confess themselves guilty of plotting the most atrocious crimes. When this was done at a former trial, the belief was that the prisoners did it in the hope of obtaining leniency from the government. That illusion can no longer deceive anybody. The men who admitted their guilt on Saturday, even before proof of it was offered, must know that their fate is sealed in advance.

In addition to planning terrorism and massacre, the charge was of making agreements to allot portions of Russian territory to Germany and to Japan. This seems too fantastic for belief. Yet we must remember the famous Zimmerman note of twenty years ago, offering Mexico the aid of Germany in winning back all the territory which she had lost to the United States. People at first thought this a crazy invention. Yet it was verified as an actual diplomatic offer. There is no evidence that the Mexican Government at the time even considered it except as one manifestation more of passing German madness. This latest alleged scheme of Russian partition may never have got beyond the brains of the men who dreamed of it as a means to their desired end. Repudiation of the whole story will doubtless be forthcoming from Berlin and Tokyo, just as Trotsky in his Mexican refuge has already issued the flattest denial of it. Yet men on trial for their lives at Moscow have admitted that it was true!

It has often been said that there is an Oriental strain in the Russian character. One might try to make out a comparison between the amazing confessions at Moscow and the earlier acknowledgment of the Chinese authorities at Nanking that they were the most miserable of sinners and had been responsible for all the evils that have befallen their country. All that can be said at present is that we of the West are utterly incapable of grasping the ideas of crime and punishment which these new Dostoievskis of Moscow are again exhibiting to a puzzled world.—New York Times.

"UNTO THE HILLS"

James Lewis Milligan

I stand on the top of the ages,
On the crest of the wave of time;
I grasp the thoughts of the sages,
I read the God-writ rhyme.

I muse mid the ancient mountains,
Untrammell'd by men and alone;
I list to the lilt of the fountains,
I scan the pages of stone.

Afar is the smoke of the village,
Where men pass their lives in vain;
Who, after a few years of tillage,
Return to the earth again.

I know all the rest of the city,
The pageant of Empire I know;
And for all I have nothing but pity—
There is naught worth the toil and woe.

I am one with the sorrowful preacher—
"There is nothing new under the sun,"
And the earnest hope of the creature
Is that soon the strife will be done.

And yet mine eyes to the mountains
Turn ever with yearning and tears;
And within me, as fresh as the fountains,
Springs hope in the flight of the years.

PICTON, APPROACHING ITS CENTENNIAL, IS GETTING REAL RITZY.

Just imagine installing fire alarm boxes all over the town, so that when a fire breaks out all one has to do is to approach a black box fastened to a telephone pole at the corner, take down a telephone transmitter and yell FIRE. This rings a gong at the fire station, and it is presumed the alarmist HOLDS THE PHONE until asked the locality of the blaze. This formality completed the firemen get along to the fire and put the extinguisher on. Belleville has another system. If a fire occurs look for a phone, any old phone will do as long as it is hooked up to Bell Call Central, Central calls Police and Police calls Fire Station—and there you are—or aint, as the case may be.

BRITISH MAGICIANS HAVE A SOCIETY WHICH THEY CALL THE MAGIC CIRCLE with inner and outer circles where a member may go in terms of efficiency. The Magic Circle's avowed purpose is to study the art of magic and seek to develop, as it were, Bigger and Better Magicians. It is also said to be responsible by unscrupulous practicioners of magic and the occult. Duke of Somerset is president of the Magic Circle, which means that the organization is strictly high class and no monkey-business. The Society of American Magicians, of which Thurston, Houdini and other noted illusionists were members, succeeded largely with exposing those who claim to be magicians through supernatural means. Physicians, bankers, lawyers and other professional men have taken up the magician cult in the Old Country, and criminal lawyers make a special study of the occult. Within the Magic Circle is an "Occult Committee" consisting of six men, three of whom are skeptics. They are prepared to find rational and possibly fraudulent explanations for any manifestations of the supernatural. One is a sleight-of-hand expert, and one is an experienced photographer. They visit seances, and many other things go up and down the country, such as haunted houses where happenings of an occult significance are reported. They go incognito and report back to the Magic Circle in secrecy. There is a library of seventeen hundred volumes dealing with magic from the beginning available for the members of the Magic Circle. While a large percentage of occult claims have been proved fraudulent, according to the secretary of the Magic Circle there are some things which "can not be explained."

PERFECT ATTENDANCE

A class of college students entered their class room one morning to find only a hat on the front desk in mute evidence of the possible presence of a mentor. After overstaying the customary ten minutes the group agreed that even the hat might have been left the evening before; so they departed—only to meet the demonstrating instructor coming up the stairs.

"When you have finished with my desk I want you to consider me present," he said.

The following morning when the professor arrived to take the roll, he found a hat on every seat—but not a student there.

NET SPREAD TO TRAP ARMS-LADEN FREIGHTER

Spanish rebel and German warships are reported spreading a wide net across the Bay of Biscay and the Straits of Gibraltar, in an effort to capture the loyalist freighter Mar Cantabrico, carrying a $2,000,000 cargo of arms and supplies to the loyalist troops from United States and Mexico. This air view shows the Spanish freighter, loaded with munitions and supplies, as it dashed down New York bay bound for Spain after being halted by a U.S. coast guard cutter. The Mar Cantabrico was released and later passed the three-mile limit before the U.S. Congress could pass legislation halting its sailing.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was smoking and thinking in his private chair. I guess he was wishing I didn't have to do my homework, saying, Hay pop?

Hay hay, pop said.

Meaning, what, and I said, Children that study to be grate musicians dont have to do any other lessons besides, do they, pop?

Very few I believe, pop said. Very little is expected of them in those lines. Life seems to consist of song or melody. The more proficient and famous a musician gets to be, the less he is likely to know the cube root of 4 or the exports of China. In fact the last grate violinist I went to hear looked as if he had to get hungry to know what time it was, pop said, and I said, Well O, pop, how about if I started to take piano lessons so there would be a grate musician in the family some day?

Meaning me, and pop said, By golies that's quite an idea.

Me thinking, O, herray, and I said, And did you say I wouldn't have to do no other lessons at all, pop?

Never would hardly be any time for school lessons, pop said. You just let me know when you want to begin and I'll start calling you every morning at 5 o'clock so you can get in a couple of hours practice before breakfast. That's the time to begin the first 10 years or so, practice, practice, practice, and when in doubt, more practice. Between breakfast and lunch you'll do scales and finger exercises and between lunch and dinner you'll do finger exercises and pedal exercises to vary the monotony and keep your intrist fresh, he said, and I said, Well golt, that sounds perfect!

I'd recommend a nice brisk walk in the fresh air afternoon, pop said. Naturelly it wouldn't be good for your hands to play ball or any ruff games like that, but occasionally you could watch the other boys for exercise, pop said.

Fer fun it from me to try to induce you against your will, pop said.

And he got behind the sporting page and I started to do my homework feeling almost lucky.

SOUVENIRS AND SUCCESS

Ben Larkin presented a strange mixture of humility, defiance, anger, and amused pride as he faced the boss across the shining, glass-topped mahogany desk. Watching him curiously, studying Dick Blake's stern, but kindly face, Susanne grew up. Grew up to fit her new job, and meet the gamut of human office-girl-problem-secretary behind her.

"Ben," Dick began, quietly, "you've been with us a long time, longer than anyone else in the organization."

"Yes, Mr. Blake," Larkin cleared his throat nervously, and the color had quite faded from his florid face; the angry, dark color of temper, "eight years, Sir." His fingers twisted and tugged at the thin, flat leather book he held, and Susanne forgave him for his many theories, as his stark fear for his job crowded everything else from the scene.

"I like to believe, Larkin," Dick went on slowly, "that you had an interest in the business, all these years, as well as in your job, and the paycheque you've drawn."

"Oh yes, Mr. Blake," Ben agreed eagerly, "I sure do. I mean, I do!" He flushed painfully, and repeated himself almost incoherently on his brow, and upper lip.

Then perhaps you can persuade Mr. Nichols to continue as she had planned, a few moments before you began assisting her in moving?" Blake's voice was bland, and cold, but his eyes scanned Ben severely, and there was nothing soft, nor dubious in Blake's attitude.

"I'm sure Susanne will reconsider," Ben said stubbornly, "I was only joking, Sir. Sort of kidding, you know," he stumbled on.

Susanne listened in mortified indictment. "It's all right, Ben," and that seemed the only desire for the bright, cheery companionship of Amy Prentice.

"Well, Susanne, Tired Business woman!" Amy greeted her gaily, "I'll say you are! Worrying-work is a better five cent . . . cocktail!!"

"You've hit them up!" Susanne inquired and Amy wrinkled her nose pleasantly, in brief laughter. "I'll say we have! Just as soon as you're living, we don't, Susanne! Come . . . I'll go up to Nichols' office, and make even the best boy friend fade out."

"How did you guess!" Susanne was frankly startled. "Am I as obvious as all that!"

"Of course not, Susanne," she said gently, "only women understand things, they've been there, all of us! And when the sun has gone out of the heavens, and the world is drab and cold, there's only one answer. Cherchez l'homme," she finished wisely. "Aren't I a sap? After we eat, you can tell me about it!"

"Oh no!" Susanne's voice rose in shrill panic. "Really, Amy, it's . . . it's nothing . . . nothing . . . I could talk about. I'm sorry!"

"Don't be sorry, dear friend shrewsely, "we'll try alternatives! Without the safety-valve of sharing one's woe, the best boss thing for a woman, is something to do to absorb her mind completely, until the hurt dies down a bit."

They ordered luncheon, discussed a forthcoming golf tournament, and finally reached the coffee and cigarettes stage.

"I think I know of a customer for you," Amy offered, as they rose to go," only he's poor as a church-mouse, and probably wouldn't be worth your time in commission."

"Tell me about him," Susanne said simply. "my commission is too small, in these times, to ignore. Besides . . . I like my job. Not only for the money, but for what it gives me in other returns!"

"I thought it was like that," Amy agreed soberly. "It's like that with me, too. Lot of months I just about break even and make expenses and a living, but I'm satisfied. It's my only escape in a cock-eyed world."

"Now about this chap. Porter Burgoyne . . . ancient old family, but less cash every year. He has probably $5,000 to put into his new scheme, and he'll probably lose that, and several times more, before he realizes that chickens and turkeys are no royal road to wealth. But that's his grief—not mine. Think you could find him a farm to start hatching his eggs on?"

"Several." Susanne promised, "lead me to him!"

They went to several addresses; finally located Mr. Burgoyne, and Amy departed, confidently assuring Porter that he had ruined her day, and had wrecked a fine potential golf game.

"Just when I find someone I can back, and be sure of it," she mourned, "capital reaches in and spoils everything! Good-bye!"

"Scram," Porter told her, "or I'll spend you a book of stamps, when I get 'em hatched!"

"Just how much capital have you to invest, Mr. Burgoyne?" Susanne asked him directly, when they got into his expensive little roadster.

"Six thousand," he answered promptly, "five for the place, a thousand to start on, and credit for a year."

"We have four places at $3500 and several at $3000 that would be ideal for you," Susanne suggested," and that would leave you enough to operate for the first year, don't you see," she explained "most farmers go under because their income has to go into debts, dead horses, instead of improvements, and re-investments."

"Did." Porter Burgoyne demanded, resentfully. "Amy say 'Miss' or 'Mrs.'?

"Mrs." Susanne explained gravely, "and now let me show you my files, and see what you'd like to start with, Mr. Burgoyne!"

"It would be," Porter observed loudly, "girls as smart as you, who are always grabbed off very young. Maybe you'll let me sell you eggs. Grab you before somebody further, and Susanne smiled.

"Mr. Burgoyne," she decided, "if the sheriff doesn't catch either of us!"

"Sheriff!" Porter thought, "but I like crazy people. They have humor and vision, and tolerance!"

"I know a Nichols," Porter Burgoyne continued, turning the car across town, toward the first property they were to look at, "an aviator! He's bog-tied and bridled though, and led around on a tether, after Wade Stevenson. Must be a lot of Nicholses though; 'most as many as Burgoynes."

Susanne was silent, a chill, frozen little image sitting rigid and white beside the big, bronzed young man at the wheel of the little roadster. And every turn of the little car's wheels, every purr of its motor, repeated the words he had spoken so casually, so lightly. Little dreaming he was hurling a searing brand across her heart that was to remain a green scar, for many months to come.

"Funny name, this egg has," Porter went on musingly, "can't seem to think of it . . . appropriate, though . . . goes with his . . . Sky! That's it," he remembered happily," Sky Nichols! Tall, blond fellow, with blue eyes; and a reason for landing those cruise loopide eyes even when he flies such dynamite as the Shoemaker brat."

"Yes," Susanne knew it was her voice, but it was so cold and still, so little like her far-away sounding that it didn't seem real, "yes, I know him, Mr. Burgoyne! Here . . . here's the place I wanted you to see. The house is a little old Cape-Cod cottage, and there's electricity, running water . . ."

TIP TOP TAILORS TO EXPAND OPERATIONS

Will Add Several New Stores To Chain

Toronto, Jan. 26.—Commencing immediately Tip Top Tailors Limited will begin an expansion program, the effects of which will be evident in every corner of Canada," said Mr. David Dunkinson, President of Tip Top Tailors, in a closing address to fifty Tip Top Tailors store managers gathered in a two day Convention, which ended here this week. "We believe prosperity has returned and is here for some time to come. We, therefore, are voicing our own belief in improved conditions by also saying it with dollars —over one hundred thousand of them in fact, which we will spend this year in adding new stores from coast to coast in strategic spots. Several citizens will also have only one store at present will have additional units. Practically every store in the chain will be improved and refurnished. Where necessary, new fronts will be installed and new furnishings, new fixtures, new equipments will be placed in every store. We confidently look forward to one of the biggest years in our history," Mr. Dunkinson concluded.

Mr. R. H. Langlois, Treasurer of the Company, outlined the very important contributions made by Tip Top Tailors to the business life of Canada. Figures for 1936 are not yet completed but in 1935 this firm paid the Government the sum of $584,574. This amounted to $2.62 on every garment sold or $4.86 on each customer. Public utilities, Postal Salaries paid in 1935 to the Tip Top organization from coast to coast amounted to $1,737,000, to approximately 1,500 employees selling dealers across Canada. Tip Top Tailors contributed to the support of 3,750 families, or about 18,000 persons, including dependents," Mr. Langlois continued. "We paid to the railways $84,000; landlords were enriched by $175,000; and coal and light companies by $45,000. We bought and used," he said, "that year's 875,000 yards of woolens or 497 miles of cloth which would stretch from Toronto to Carbon City. The sum of $2,300,000 is at present invested in land, buildings, branch equipment and machinery."

During their visit to Toronto the men were shown and explained every conceivable factor entering into the making and selling of men's clothing—from raw materials, designing, fitting, to credits, advertising and salesmanship. The new styles and fabrics for the coming season were pre-viewed at a special fashion presentation, showing pictures of the actual manufacture of words in English mills, especially taken in the Old Country were also shown.

POLICE BULLETS

Battle in Cellar

Armed with five rifles, some taken from the jail office, the fugitives barricaded themselves in the cellar. Chateauneuf and fellow officers came into the cellar when they lay hidden in darkness. Struck once in the head, the officer continued to fire until Fontaine dropped with three bullets in his body.

Then Chateauneuf fell as he stood and shot hit his side. He died in hospital. Fontaine, a one-time soldier in the French foreign Legion, died on the spot.

In the brief moments that the gun battle raged, Bernard slipped out through a little side door and somehow slipped through the police cordon. His nerve unshaken, he turned up in a barber shop three hours later and had a shave. He escaped again just before police rushed down on the barber shop.

Six Persons Held

Today, while the search for the gunman went on, police held six persons whom they picked up at the rooming house. Wilfrid Dargavel, lessee of the small rooms where the escaped pair were found, was charged with complicity in their escape from the jail where they were held on holdup charges.

Five others were held into custody as material witnesses, were: Joseph and Roland Derron, sons of the caretaker of the apartment house; Jean Dubuc, a barber working next door to the house at 347 St. John Street; Cyrille Emond, wanted for questioning in connection with the jail break and H. Desecrochers, found in the same cellar room as the fugitives when police arrived.

Police looked for others, possibly a woman. Amedee Delisle, the barber at whose shop Bernard came for his shave after the flight, told of seeing him signal to a man and a woman in the street while he was being shaved.

Dressed as Women?

Also, the manhunters were checking a report that Fontaine and Bernard, dressed in women's clothing, had come to the rooming house with a woman the night of their break from the jail.

Another unanswered puzzle was the circumstances surrounding the two prisoners' possession of guns in the jail. On the pretext that they feared Internal Information might impart, they had themselves brought into an anteroom to meet lawyer Paul Lesage Sunday night.

There they entered, both whipped out revolvers and ordered the lawyer and turnkey aside. Then they ran-sacked the jail office for more guns and ammunition and fled the prisoners under the jailors inside to stall off pursuit.

In all outcome of the escape, Assistant Jailer Ernest Lesage, Charbonneau and Sergeant Alphonse Verdon, in charge of the guard at the time, are under suspension pending investigation.

Seen in Barber Shop?

A flood of tips, meanwhile, poured in to police from the district's whereabouts. From one' end of Belgrade they then the manhunt headed back and forth tracking down fruitless clues.

But about the only thing known with certainty about the fugitive band is that it is a desperate one that might give the pursuers a lively chase. Either after the gunfight had been sure he was struck and that later Delisle confirmed this belief from a spot in front of the barber shop into his barber shop had a wounded ex-con.

Police refused to disclose the source that sent them armed to the hideout of the gun-carrying pair, but Col. Leon Lambert, head of the Provincial police, disclosed the information had come to Sergt. Philias Cloutier, chief of the jail guards. On getting the tip, Chateauneuf led twenty policemen to the old three-storey wooden building where the pair lay hidden.

regarding fur prices

The absence of any surplus quantities of raw Furs and the persistent advance in price, over a 12 months' period, is the good reason for the woman who intends buying a fur coat, to do so in the next month.

We offer this advice quite honestly in the knowledge that furs will definitely cost considerably more next season.

Our present stock of furs is complete, due to early purchases of both skins and manufactured coats, the styles comprising the Swagger, Princess and Fitted Models.

First alarm brought from the downtown area and available equipment and firemen who carried the children from the smoke-filled buildings by other buildings and neighboring homes. Most of the children were prepared to evacuate by the time the firemen arrived but many of the smaller ones were bundled into blankets and other bedding and carried by firemen to safety.

Supports 'Red Hot'

The flames, from unknown origin, were making swift headway before last of the orphans were carried outside, and Capt. Hugh Nolan, in charge of the district fire brigade said iron supports in one section of the building were "red-hot when we got in."

Groups of firemen concentrated on blocking the blaze from spreading to the long dormitories where the children and Nuns were first threatened, by about six hours after the outbreak firemen still played water on the sections of the old grey-stone building, once a schoolhouse and later a refuge for unemployed men.

Fireman Slips with 3 Children

Firemen, L'Archerveque and the two children he was carrying were injured when he slipped and fell while running downstairs. It was believed they were not seriously hurt. Fireman Tremblay suffered painful but not serious cuts when breaking open a window to provide fresh air for the children, waiting to be carried out.

No estimate of the damage was made immediately but one Slater said the splendid structure of the building was still solid.

FAREWELLS SAID TO TWEED COUPLE AT MANY PARTIES

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. McCutcheon Presented With Gifts

Tweed—Prior to their departure for Weston, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. McCutcheon have been the guests of honour at various functions. On Thursday night a supper was held in the Church Parlours of the United Church of which they are members. Approximately ninety members of the congregation were present to bid adieu to a family which has filled a very large place in the life of the church and community in general.

After the supper was concluded the meeting was called to order by the pastor, Rev. R. R. Nicholson, who referred to the splendid Christian characters of Mr. and Mrs. McCutcheon and called on Mrs. W.S. Gordon to speak on behalf of the Women's Missionary Society.

The following verses in blank verse was read by Mrs. W. S. Gordon:

To our much-esteemed friend Mrs. W. J. McCutcheon.—

And so you're going away,
Taking your family too.
For five short years you've been here,

Why do you have to go?
We almost say you're cruel.
You're thinking only of us.
Can we look with pleasure,
On that empty seat of yours?
Many things you've taught us,
How together we should dwell,
And for each other's pleasure.
We should always do our best.
We cannot do the things you did,

How very much we try,
We cannot words evenly.

At morn and even song;
Nor can we sing a solo
At our Women's Assembly throne.
And bring the joy that you did
To the eager listening ears.
These dollars that you gave us,

To help along our work.
I'm sure we'll struggle long.
To make amends for them
The many gracious favors.

You have chased along the way.
Have made us love you in
An honest, friendly way.
And so you're going away,
In other ground to shine.
We hope they won't be slow
To catch your charming ways,
But will set out right heartily,

To link you to their crowd.
We know them they too will give them.
And there's lots you'll get from them.
So we send our own dear lady.
With grand and loving grace.
From out our humble friendly rink
To fill a bigger place.
And so with prayers and blessings.
We send you on your way,
May your hours of remembering.

Bring you memories of your stay,
In memories blossom through the years.

As memory's sure to do.
We trust it will be prider,

Through the joy of knowing you.
We trust it will be comforting.
Missionary Society.

A beautiful occasional chair was presented to Mrs. McCutcheon on behalf of the Woman's Association by Mrs. G. R. Sprague, president of the W. A., who read the following address:

Dear Mrs. McCutcheon,—

We, the members of the Woman's Association, have gathered to express deep regret of your removal from our midst.

You have been a willing worker in every department of our church and we feel that in your going we shall leave a vacancy that cannot be filled. We are sure that the church to which you are going will be much richer for your services, and we hope that you will be spared health to enjoy your new home and church work.

Will you accept from Tweed Women's Association this gift as a small token of our appreciation of your untiring efforts and as you use it, we trust you will remember us.

Signed on behalf of the W. A. of Tweed United Church,

Regina E. Perrin, President.
Cosey Meiklejohn, Secretary.

Mrs. Sprague, Chairman of the Board of Stewards, presented Mr. McCutcheon on behalf of the Official Board with a fine leather chair bag. Mr. Tummon said in part, "We have much pleasure in appropriate gift because we know you will always want to come back to Tweed and it is our hope that then you can bring them all and stay a few days."

Mr. Tummon then opened the bag and remarked: "It appears to be empty but I see it is not. It is crammed full of best wishes and no matter how small or large they are the other things you cannot crowd them out.

Mr. Tummon also presented Jack McCutcheon with a pen and pencil set.

Mr. McCutcheon replied briefly and appropriately.

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Allen and Miss Jean Richardson attended the Royal Bank Dance at Belleville on the Friday night.

Miss Houston has been accepted on the staff of Belleville Public Schools and the Board regretfully accepted her resignation at a meeting held on Friday night. Miss Houston is the last remaining link of the Houston family in Tweed. A number of years ago her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Houston and other members of the family, moved to Belleville. Miss Houston, however, continued to teach in the Primary room of the Consolidated School and a great many children of Tweed and district west and south of the village received their start in education from her.

Mr. Lawrence Manhotie left on Sunday to join his brother, Cassel, at Sachigo River Mine in Northern Ontario. He will be employed in the mining camp where his brother has been living for several months.

Tweed Rebekahs held a bridge and euchre party in the I. O. O. F. hall on Friday night. Miss Audrey Frost and Miss Florence Massey were winners of the Bridge prizes and Mr. Harvey Vance and Mrs. A. F. Houston of Belleville were winners of the euchre prizes. Lunch was served at the conclusion of the party.

Mr. W. E. Tummon was elected delegate to Presbytery to represent Tweed United Church. Presbytery will meet on February 9th.

Reports are beginning to that encouraging results are attending operations at Rich Rock Mine near Elzevir. Consolidated Sheltered is operating the mine.

Mr. A. M. Wilkinson, cheesemaker of Tweed, has added to the many awards he has taken in cheese exhibitions, that of a silver trophy for cheese grading. At the recent convention of the Western Ontario Dairymen's Association held in London, he had a perfect score in the cheese grading competition, tying with Mr. L. B. Scheck of Wellesley.

St. James' Anglican Church held its Christian Memory Service in the Veterans' Hall. Reports of the various activities of the Church were received, all of a very encouraging nature. The election of officers resulted in the re-election of Mr. H. A. Mouck as Rector's Warden, Mr. H. D. Reynolds as People's Warden and Mr. A. Wilson as member of the Executive Council. The Rector, Rev. T. Phin is also a member ex-officio. Reports were also presented showing appreciation of the interest and cooperation of all the members of the congregation.

DODDS KIDNEY PILLS

Keeping a step ahead of trouble

These men are guarding the talk tracks, "plugging-in" on shattered localities wherever sleet or snow or wind endanger—arranging alternate routes to maintain service under all conditions.

Like every telephone employee—linemen, installers, operators, supervisors, engineers, clerical forces—their watchword is—"The call must go through!"

Telephone employees appreciate the intimate quality of a telephone call . . . how vastly important it may be . . . the need for accuracy, speed, courtesy, helpfulness . . .

Their concern for the high character of telephone service accounts as much as anything else for the leadership of this Dominion in telephone usage. Telephone calls per capita in Canada exceed the usage of any other country.

Users are continually voicing their appreciation of the service of telephone workers. They tell us of lives saved, of disasters averted, of emergencies surmounted.

There is no service of which public appreciation is so freely expressed, so gratefully acknowledged. The long record of testimony is one of the prized rewards of an exacting occupation.

We pay this public tribute to our telephone workers of all ranks everywhere.

CATTLE AND SHEEP STILL ON PASTURE

Kingston, Ont., Jan. 25 (CP)—A further indication the winter "isn't like she used to be" comes in the weekly report of the local agricultural representative, who said that in the districts under the Kingston-Cornwall County cattle were still out on pasture, because of the absence of snow. Sheep throughout the country have been out on pasture almost continuously.

EVERY WOMAN FACES THIS QUESTION

How do I look to other people? So many women risk their beauty by neglect of constipation. It often causes loss of pep, sallow skin, dull eyes, poor complexion.

Yet common constipation can be relieved easily. Just eat a delicious cereal supplied by Kellogg's. ALL-BRAN with milk or fruits every day, three times daily in severe cases. This delicious ready-to-eat cereal supplies the "bulk" needed to exercise the system—and vitamin B to help tone the intestinal tract.

Within the body, ALL-BRAN absorbs more than twice its weight in water, gently sponging out the intestines. It never causes the artificial action of pills and drugs, that often prove ineffective.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, you see, is a food—not a medicine. It relieves common constipation the way Nature intended—in a natural way. Buy it at your grocer's. Made and guaranteed by Kellogg in London.

DUST MAGNET WILL CLEAR AIR

New Device is Announced at Electrical Engineers' Meeting

New York, Jan. 26 (CP)— Man can get pure air, for the first time in history, with a new electric dust magnet announced today at the annual convention of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers.

Until now "pure air" has meant that of the plains, woods, mountains and sea, because it is usually healthful. But science has found that even the "purest air" found over the oceans is filled with countless particles, dust, spores, germs and occasional bacteria.

The new magnet, called an "electrostatic precipitator," takes out these particles, down to 0.005 per cent. even those no bigger than the invisible wave lengths of light.

Scientists can study the attracted particles, including those which give woods, mountains and seashore their lusive "invigorating" quality.

FIGHTS SEEN AS STIRLING TIES SAILORS

Yacht Club Boys Battle to 4-All Tie in Hastings Loop

Stirling, Jan. 26—(Special)—A revival in hockey interest of the old Trent Valley Days took place in Stirling when the Stirling "kid" team held the fast skating Belleville team to a 4-4 tie in a real fast game on Monday night. It was Stirling's first home game and it studded as it was with old pep and fire a good crowd of fans echoed their sentiments to the rafters. When the Belleville crew took to the ice for their warm up they looked like a real finished team, but throughout the game something went haywire with the combination play. They are a smart bunch of hockey players and also ready to take the lead in roughing it. They finished even on the score and about the same in the batting.

The Game

Belleville started on the offensive on the opening period but seemed weak until Robinson banged home his first counter and then the boys from town went to work. Shortly after his brilliant first counter Robinson was sent through the ice out cold from a heavy body check. From this point the local heroes became intense until "Friday Fraser" took a hard right on the jaw from Robinson and the fists flayers and some of the spectators joined in. Four penalties were handed out in the first period which ended with Stirling in the lead by Robinson's lone tally. Belleville turned on the heat with the start of the second period and ran in two fast ones with the credit going to Harvey and Cooper, who got one each. Then they seemed to ease up on the speed and Robinson scored the tying goal on a long shot.

Stirling sent out their kid line and three youngsters gave the city boys plenty of worry breaking up rush after rush. Just before the period ended Robinson, who was the shining star of the game batted home his third counter for the evening to make it three-two for Stirling.

Penalties and Fights Rasse

There was a tenseness in the air as the teams came out for the last period and one could almost feel something would happen. Getting started defensive tactic and Belleville carried the play sending every pass up Hasty body checks, hard bumps, spills and threats brought the crowd to their feet members of the home team. F. Fox was called on to make stops that looked like sure goals and the veteran goalie turned in an excellent performance. Another penalty handed to Dean close in to tie the game up again. Stirling went out in front again as a result of a nice passing play by "Cherry" Fraser and his brother "Friday" Fraser with the latter scoring and with Belleville players swarming the Stirling side Fox banged home the final goal of the game to make it 4-4. With only thirty seconds to go Ekhler took a minor penalty for interference but fend started all over again with spectators surging onto the ice and players hurling each other. Every body was in but the goalies and even they took a pass at each other. Later the players mingled in the crowd shaking hands and smoothing out the rough spots. John Public started for home after a hectic but amusing hockey games seen in Stirling for years. Fans still seem to enjoy a game that isn't a tea party and the local hockey body has definitely got advertising from that game to pack 'em for the return game. Amazing incidents of the game included smacks on the noses of many officials and spectators who were beat in acting as peacemakers. Perhaps they will not be so hasty to render assistance the next time, now they realize that even their own players don't appreciate it. The spectators pay to see the game and have no business on the ice, at least that's how the players of both teams seem to feel about it.

Line-ups

Belleville—Goal, Winton; defence, Ekhler, Hamel; centre, Cooper; wings, Ekhler and Semark; alternates Jay McGuire, Gover and Harvey.

Stirling—Goal, F. Fox; defence, R. Scane and J. Mahaffy; centre, Robinson; wings, G. Fraser and A. Fraser; Alternates—J. Dalnard, J. Dalnard, F. Butler and Reid. Referees—Wallace and Knott.

PRISON OUTBREAK

can make to prevent a recurrence," said Jolliffe.

Newspaper notices will be inserted inviting recommendations from outsiders who feel they have experience or knowledge that would be of advantage, he said, benefit. . . J. G. Gillanders, K.C., of London, committee counsel, asked that those persons first communicate with Ralph C. Bone, Guelph, assistant counsel, to indicate the nature of their suggestions.

G. F. Neelands, deputy provincial secretary since September 1, 1931, and superintendent of the reformatory for ten years preceding, was the first witness called.

Accommodation for 738

"There is accommodation in the Ontario Reformatory now for 750," Mr. Neelands said. "There were 738 prisoners at the time of the disturbance.

"The percentage of escapes from this 'open prison' has been greater than from closed prisons, but the rehabilitation advantages outweigh this high custodial risk.

"Prisoners brought here are those under 21, regardless of their past record, and men over that age who are first offenders," said Mr. Neelands.

A daily log, showing occurrences regarding prisoners at the reformatory, is kept, he said, from inception of the Sunday riot, he told the inquiry.

News of Outbreak

"Dr. Healdy telephoned me in Toronto about four o'clock Sunday afternoon and told me of the disturbances, but did not think it was serious," said Mr. Neelands. "He phoned again at 4.45, asking me to hurry to Guelph, that the men were breaking down doors and making a noise.

"The prisoners were quite evidently in charge of the institution. They were custodians of the prison when I arrived here about 6:30 to 7:00 o'clock," said Mr. Neelands. "There was plenty of evidence of smashing, noise and disorder.

"Dr. Healdy informed me conditions in the institution were very bad, that the prisoners were out of control. He said many had escaped.

"A guard told me the prisoners were trying to smash through the auditorium, but when we arrived in the administration building, I saw no prisoners escaping, but saw some in the yard.

Saw Fires Burning

"Small fires were burning in various parts of the buildings. They were in darkness, the lights having been broken. There was a display of noise of breaking and smashing but I saw none of it.

"I suggested to Inspector Jordan and other police officers in the administration building that we round up the prisoners. I suggested that from my knowledge of prisoners the showing of firearms would quickly subdue them.

"There have been only two firearms in the institution. In the bakery were revolvers in the keeping of Sergt. A. T. Maguire. Guards did not have firearms, except in case of special emergencies.

"I telephoned Inspector Jordan at Toronto and told him to bring tear gas if necessary and as possible," he said.

"Gas equipment arrived about 9.30 and police officers went into it area where there are three floors of cells and three floors of equipment.

Windows Smashed

"We found smashed windows, smashed equipment and small fires and piles of blankets along the corridors," said Mr. Neelands. "We placed prisoners in the cells."

"Was there any objection by prisoners, any trouble?" asked Mr. Gillanders.

"I understand there was a row now, but I was not there," he replied.

"Have you any suggestions or complaints you might make regarding the institution, any suggestions as to cause of riot?" asked Mr. Gillanders.

"I have no knowledge of causes, except what I have been told," was the reply.

"Have you any suggestions to make regarding changes in institutions?" asked Mr. Gillanders.

"I would prefer to leave them until close of investigation," said Mr. Neelands.

Fire, Hunger and Disease Add to U. S. Flood Horrors

With half a million persons homeless in the flood wrecked valleys of the Ohio and Mississippi rivers, with nearly 50 dead already known and flood-gorged rivers still rising to carry threat of even greater catastrophe, disease, crime, hunger, cold and fire were adding to the horror of the greatest flood disaster in United States' history. Along an 1,800-mile front, which included 12 states, wartime relief forces were operating in an effort to alleviate the destitution and death threatened by the flood ravages. Property damage climbed to uncounted millions as President Roosevelt called an emergency relief conference in Washington and placed all resources of the federal government at the disposal of relief agencies. Darkness engulfed many cities as power supplies were cut off; boats piled streets deep with flood water rescuing trapped residents; police and national guardsmen were patrolling under orders to shoot to death any caught looting. Firemen fought a fire in Cincinnati that did $2,000,000 worth of damage when gasoline tanks were carried adrift, upset and spread flaming oil along the top of the flooded streets. These scenes from the devastated areas graphically tell the story of disaster. Above Left, is the crest of a roaring wall of water that swept down on Portsmouth, Ohio, when a million-dollar flood wall, built to withstand all expected pressure of water, collapsed. Cincinnati's gasoline fire is pictured Center. It was started when a broken "live" wire fell into the floating gasoline. At the Right a Wheeling W. Virginia, policeman rescues a tiny tot from the marooned house by boat, the mother handing her child down from the window. Below, Left, is a section of the army of refugees in Pictured Lower Left, fleeing from their homes with nothing but the clothing they wore. Right, a typical scene down on Portsmouth, Ohio, where this family and hundreds like them fled to higher ground as the swollen Ohio river menaced their lives. The hungry children were fed as they ran. The thrilling rescue on the Right occurred in a Portsmouth, Ohio, street, plunged into the flood waters, the young man was saved when watchers on a partially razed building tossed him a rope and pulled him to safety. B.C.I. and O.S.D. Score Wins In Interscholastic Group Defeating Napanee, Picton

Napanee Handed Their First Defeat by Local Students

FIGHT BREAKS OUT

O. S. D. Was Always The Best Against Fast Picton Squad

The Belleville Collegiate seniors and the O.S.D. "Yellow Jackets" advanced in the Bay of Quinte senior interscholastic O.R.F.U. race last night, when the B.C.I. squad handed the Napanee Collegiate a 9 to 2 drubbing in the curtain-raiser of a double-header and the O.S.D. seniors blanked the Picton Collegiate 3 to 0 in the second tilt played at the latter arena. Both games were keenly contested and well played with Belleville entering into the Belleville Collegiate-Napanee game with a general spirit enamed with players on both sides and alternates all participating as personal fouls were limited.

In the opening game the B.C.I. "Collegians" handed the previous leading Napanee kids their initial defeat of the season and advanced into sole possession of second place in the group standing. Napanee scored first on Percy Ballard in the loose puck in front of the Belleville net. Play was rough from then on out the period until Rowbotham broke away carried the rubber past the Napanee defence passed to Muir, the latter beating Moore nicely for the equalizer. In the second and later Muir scored again on another pass from Rowbotham and in the period ended 2 to 1 for B.C.I.

Scored Three In Second

Belleville Collegiate forged well to the front in the middle stanzas with three goals Muir scoring on a fine solo effort, Logie Bascom on a O'Neill for another and Culhane basking in a loose puck after Adams had shot and carried the rubber to test Moore without success. Walt Cherry scored Napanee's second and last goal this frame on a hard low drive from Gilbert's pass.

The third period saw fireless running high and five penalties meted out. Muir and Muir combined nicely to score on a nice two-man combination effort, Muir having a perfect pass over to Logie, who scored. Northcott added the 7 to 2 with an individual solo effort. It was during this frame that a free-for-all fight broke out with players from both camps freely exchanging pounds. Muir starred for B.C.I. as Logie, Rowbotham, and Adams followed. Gilbert, Moore, and Barrett looked the best for the losers.

The line-ups— B.C.I.—Goal, Jackson; defence, Logie (Capt.) Grandy; centre, Ortwig, Rowbotham, Amo, Sube—Hisbon, Adams, Muir, Pepper and Hooper; Napanee O.I.—Goal, Moore; defence, Riley, Switzer; Centre, Gilbert, Wright, Mercer, Culhane—Barrett, Leary, Culhane, Wartman and Nicol.

O.S.D. Blank Picton

Showing too much speed the O.S.D. "Yellow Jackets" literally back-checked the Picton Collegiate into submission and then went on to win a well deserved 3 to 0 victory over the Prince Edward County "students". Frank Cunningham's "Yellow-coats" were the class of the finest performance of the season and starred to the limit each and the group with their victory. There was no score in the initial frame although the "Yellow Jackets" had a decided edge in the play. Trawl was sensational in the O.S.D. net and was given good support by Melnyk, Ballin and Koell. Coach Cunningham's second line of Watson, Kinisti and Nalepny turned in superb efforts and repeatedly baffled the Picton sextette into trouble with some of the scientific, while their back-checking left nothing wanted and thwarted numerous attempts of the visitors in scoring.

Melnyk opened the scoring early in the middle frame as he lifted a long shot from the centre ice zone, that drifted past Martin for a goal. With the score standing 1 to 0 for the O.S.D., in the last frame, the Picton squad applied the pressure and power plays to keep the play well in the Yellow Jackets' zone, but they could not score as the defence to ward off repeated rushes, due to the stiff checking on the defence to ward off repeated rushes, due to the stiff checking on the part of the Belleville forwards. Kinisti grabbed a loose puck, out-foxed his rivals and sallied in on the unprotected Martin for the score.

Wannamaker, Hicks, Lockyer, and Oolliver looked the best for the vanquished Picton squad. The fast skating and combination play of Coach Cunningham's second line was fine, the back-checking of the entire team, coupled, with good defensive play and clever forechecking gave the O.S.D. their initial win of the year. The game was clean, not a single penalty being handed out.

The lineups— O.S.D.—Goal, Trawl; defence, Melnyk, Ballin; centre, Kinisti, Watson, Nalepny; wings, Major, Perry, Sube—Walton, Kinisti, Nalepny, Pierce, Kosti, Picton (C.I.)—Goal, Martin; defence—Wellards Colliver; Centre, Wannamaker, Hicks, Lockyer; wings, Sube—Lockyer, Vincent, VanDusen, Grayston, Francis.

New York—Lou Gehrig, tall, handsome Jack Dempsey is plotting his future with one eye on the remarkable career of Babe Ruth. Tilden, he says, . . . He's not interested in Big Bill Johnston, the New York State Athletic Commission Chairman-elect. . . . He's after bigger things. . . .

Right now Jack sides from professional boxing to be a gentleman and remarkably effective way he's campaigning for the job of assistant President Roosevelt in 1940. . . .

Meanwhile Gene Tunney narrows deeper in seclusion . . . Tex Rickard's note with Christopher Morley, the author, passes on Dempsey's restaurant in favor of an East Side hotel. . . . Dempsey's pals, Jimmy Cannon, George Bernard Shaw, and reads the public away in his Stamford, Conn., home. . . .

Story by Lou Gehrig: At Joe McCarthy's dinner to the New York baseball writers. He had everything a little McCarthy called members of his Chicago Cubs team together for a talk about the evil effects of liquor. . . . Joe was very calm and quiet about the whole thing. . . .

When the players angry about being dragged out early in the morning, arrived in McCarthy's room, they found only ice glasses. One half filled with gin, the other with water. . . . He then displayed his glasses. . . . The story is, he dropped the worm in the glass of water. . . . It wriggled and Joe beamed. . . . Then he pulled it out and dropped it in the gin. . . . The worm curled up and died. . . . "Do you know the moral of that?" piped McCarthy. . . . "Sure", yelled back Hack Wilson, "it proves that if you drink gin, you won't have worms".

Tip: Zeke Bonura may be yelling for $19,000 but he'll sign for $15,000 . . . Fact is, Prez Barry has been invited to play an exhibition match in London in the Spring during the Coronation ceremonies.

Football coaches right now are hallooing over "D. X." Bible's stories in getting $18,000 a year and a 10-year contract. . . . Coach Dietz, ball at Texas. . . . Ordinarily a 10-year contract would be good for discussion again for ten years, but this one will be smeared and waved before the coaches at every clamp of over-emphasis . . . And since the Texas President's paid $7,500, the argument will be hard to beat.

McLaughlin's Announcement On All-U.S. Team in 2 Years Laughed at by Hockey Experts

Thinks He Will Have "Born in America" Ready by That Time

GAMES TONIGHT

Leafs, Tangle, With, Loop Leading Canadiens at Toronto

(By A. E. Pulford
Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Jan. 26—Fred McLaughlin's Nationalist movement with its half a million dwelling rooms tonight as National Hockey League teams gather for games in Toronto, New York and Boston.

His announcement he will "rescue the Chicago Black Hawks" Tuesday and make their an All-American team in the league in the Mignault chuckle the hockey boys have had since the late Lou Hudere blew with a log.

The hound to provoke the little jollity in Toronto where Montreal Canadiens and Maple Leafs play and at Boston where the New York Rangers and Bruins tangle.

Fred's announcement in the Hawk dressing room as they prepare to meet Americans in Chicago Stadium tonight, as in the others but there will be at least a bit of suppressed interest in the wake of his latest hockey idea.

He proposes to develop in two years 11 American players who will be the best team the world has ever seen in the big time. He already has four American-born players and if his plans go not after football players next fall, give them two seasons training in a hockey factory" and turn them out big league stuff. The building scares the hockey experts as they admit it could not be done in 10 years.

Take "Grys" Exercise

McLaughlin, who insists his players take gymnasium exercises and daily hockey every coach in the game frowns on it, is irked at Canadian domination of the game. Recently he is reported to have advocated United States immigration officers bar Canadian referees, four of whom have been on Chicago owner probably looked over the field of American-born players and found Lt. H. L. Reeves he decided on developing his own. There are 6,000 men working of them learned their hockey in the north.

Hawks have four in Mike Karakas Alex Levinsky, Doc Romnes and Bill Thoms, goalie. Other Americans in the big league are Rogers Jenkins of Detroit, Art Coulter, Goldsworthy, Boston, Cecil Dillion, New York Rangers and Lorne Chabot, Montreal Maroons.

It would be interesting to watch the reaction of Hawks to their owner's statement when they meet Canadiens tonight. There is little in it to spur the Canadians for they have no belief that the Americans they meet a team that could even relish the Canadian division as Hawks do in the American.

New Yorkers likely will have Joe Jerwa on defence. They got him in the game with Montreal Maroons Sunday night. It made the second Wing star they have picked with the same injury. Doug Young, Canadian and defenceman, was put some weeks ago.

"The Greatest Pitcher was Christy Mathewson" Says Bob Emslie, Former Umpire

St. Thomas Arbiter Thinks Class of Baseball Today Faster

IS 76 TOMORROW

Was Called From Stands to Umpire—His First Game After Pitching in Majors

St. Thomas Ont., Jan. 26.—(CP)—Babe Ruth may be preparing to celebrate his 76th birthday tomorrow, but Bob Emslie, who Emslie looked back today over half a century of baseb ball and decided: "The greatest pitcher was Christy Mathewson".

Emslie, both player and major leagues, for 38 years, Emslie thinks baseball today is the best National League now than they did when he played in the early days. He likes the speed of the present-day game, the better physical conditions of players. But he does not think the stars shine any brighter.

"There are some remarkably able players in the major leagues today, just as there have been clever pitchers all through the years," commended the grey-haired veteran who himself was one of the first pitchers chosen for the 1876, when he hurled his way into the big league.

"But there has only been one Mathewson. . . He was the chief of them all. He had everything a pitcher ever had and he knew how to use it. Besides, he was a gentleman—always.

Was A Fast Ball

"They play better, faster ball today than they ever did," he admitted. "The ball is too, are generally faster. But they're not producing any better pitchers than Mathewson, Cy Young or Rube Waddell, no better hitters than Ed Delahanty or Willie Keeler, no better first baseman than Hal Chase and no better baseball players than Honus Wagner or Larry Lajoie.

"And there never was a smoother-working piece of baseball machinery than the Chicago Cubs in the early days of the century when they were owned by Charlie Murphy and the Tinker-to-Evers-to-Chance double plays made an infield as slick-fielding as any ever made in baseball.

That was quite a statement by the umpiring dean of baseball, but St. Thomas who never gave an interview before his retirement from the National League more than a decade ago and even now doesn't like to have his opinions printed. A native of Guelph, Ont., he has lived here many years.

Began Career as Hurler

Emslie began his career as pitcher with Harrison, Ont., in the summer of 1878 and played for Guelph, London and St. Thomas before turning professional. He was born in Camden, N.J., Baltimore, Philadelphia, Toronto and Guelph before his arm "went bad".

On his way back to Toronto in 1897 to watch the Leafs and Hamilton play an International League game, he was called on to umpire. That started him on a career that kept him busy behind the bat in the National League reserve list in 1925.

"In those days, the Umpire and catcher stood back by the grandstand until a player-manager decided he been called", he said, referring to his early arbitrating days. "Then they moved up. Getting close-in pitches didn't help the umpire's speeding-up process; calling the first two fouls strikes helped even that.

"Why before they made that rule I saw Muggsy McGraw sit at the plate and keep the fouls flying over the grandstand for five or 10 minutes. Many others could do the same. Those boys had wonderful records for getting those on balls".

Dislikes Leveller Ball

As he visits Big League Ball Park frequently now, making use of the fielding improved after the two National and American League gave him a couple of years ago, Emslie has learned to dislike the "leveller" ball.

"There's more hitting, it's true, maybe more base-running and high scoring averages, but there's less inside baseball and that's what I like," he said.

He smiled when he was asked what Ed Delahanty, outstanding home run hitter of his time, would have done to the lively ball.

"He'd just have to step a record the present-day kings of swat would have had trouble touching," he said. "Delahanty got his home runs with great regularity against the less lively ball, and the fences were farther back than they are now."

Emslie could play anything special for his birthday. For years he has walked from his home daily to a bowling alley for a game of ball do that as usual. In the summer he plays golf.

Sport Callings

By Ken Colling

Our in Peterboro the city fathers are hoping, yes praying for a good fall of snow and continued cold weather for their annual Winter Sports Carnival, which is being held over the coming week end. Every known winter sport has been included on the three-day program, reduced fares on all railways are in effect for this outstanding event. Last year the Winter Sports Carnival proved highly successful, but the citizens of Peterboro are looking forward to a bigger and better program for their winter spectacle this year. Local persons interested in aiding tobogganing, skating and fancy skating should take a jaunt out to the Lutlock City and take in the sights. To add color and glamour there will be parades, bands et al, while outstanding skiers and fancy skaters are being sklers and Peterboro for this kaleidoscope of Canadian entertainment. Personally we had hoped something of the kind would have developed in Belleville before this, but it seems the business men and citizens have beaten us to the punch and are making their annual Winter Sports Carnival a splendid advertising medium.

After a slight revulsion within their ranks, that apparently had the desired effects, the Trenton intermediates are once more in the limelight with a rejuvenated team full of "pep" and vim, which is going to, when first the intermediate O. H. A. club in Trenton was organized. Trenton has been one of the guiding lights of the Trenton and District loop, suggesting that only justice making good showings in that loop be handed to the O.H.A. body. The person shouted hurrahs and heehaws of Tommy Gorman, when he first cornrete the idea died the death of all such suggestions, but it is not long before the "old grunt" was back in harness and casting. Over the week end the Trenton hockey brass took him to the cleaners and returned to Tommy Cain's erstwhile idea of a team of junior players a chance. When the Trenton intermediates opened their season at the Belleville Arena on Wednesday night many new faces will be in the Trenton lineup.

"We have developed some really good young players in the junior league and it is upon their shoulders we are placing the burden of the intermediate club. We have hopes in the race and feel our youngsters are just as good as the more seasoned one Trenton official today.

O. W. A. "Farmer" Forbes was electing president of the Canadian Automobile Racers' Association at the annual meeting held at Sarnia recently. . . . Jack Hammond from Kearns, while William Guilfoyle is secretary. At their annual meeting the C.A.R.A. decided to stage automobile races in Toronto, Hamilton, Ontario, from Sarnia to Belleville. Doubtlessly this decision came before the Automobile Association of Belleville Park Commission, who in the past have staged motorcycle, automobile, or of late years, motorcycle racing at the Belleville Fairgrounds. Incidentally, however, as they only have horse racing during the Belleville Fair nowadays, Belleville Park Board will lower the bars and stage the first auto race in Belleville. Motorcycle racing would take very well locally or not we cannot say, but if the interest shown in motorcycle racing is any criterion as to the calibre of the sport we are desired locally, they can count automobile racing on the main of local sporting events proudly.

It must be in the air—last night Belleville and Belleville-Napanee interscholastic hockey game fisticuffs and a general battle broke out, with players and substitutes all ranging the ice and taking the odd lusty poke at their nearest rival, which added spice and zinger to the 7 to 2 defeat handed the Napanee kids by the local "Collegians"

DAILY SHORT STORY
You Can't Eat Flags

By Ruth Aston

A sinister, menacing crowd they huddled together on the water front long after the Fourth of July celebration had gone home. After a day of yacht racing, the boats had docked and nothing was left to show the vanished gaiety but the blackened stubs of exploded firecrackers. Still the group pressed together shoulders bent, striving to keep out the cold as they listened to their spokesman raising his voice above the roar of the wind.

Ben Farnham shuffled down from street in the direction of the cheap, dirty room which he rented. His money was gone after lemorrow he would be hunting a place on a park bench. His hands were thrust deep in the worn trousers pockets, the collar of his threadbare sweater turned up about his neck. It was a tough July, as cold as the middle of January. Ben was hungry; he walked slowly past a small hamburger stand, breathing in the good smell of frying meat. His right hand gripped the little automatic, his icy fingers on the trigger; later, he would have thick, hot steak, juicy coffee—the street would be deserted.

Did they think they could give him charity? Well, he'd show them as you'd toss a crust to a sea gull! Or would do a dance of the dancing dog—smile and look superior as they called out Ben's bread or hungry men? No. He'd steal before he'd accept their alms again. He'd rather be dead than be a beggar.

It was then that he noticed the group standing near one of the piers, and with an impelling but unnerved across to join them. The speaker was tall, heading up the group, and his voice was broad shouldered, like a prize fighter and wore a thick turtle neck sweater that made him look even huskier. His voice was a hoarse growl, vibrant as the snarl of a lion. In his hand was a small soiled flag, dropped from someone's buttonhole. Dirty stars and faded stripes.

"The flag!" he scoffed. "The d—n flag they keep in our faces! We want jobs. We want decent clothes—food we don't have to thank no one for. And they wave the flag at us! We can't eat flags we can we? But we'll show those rich guys. We'll stick their stinkin' flag in their faces—and their guts with bullets! We'll grind their bloody faces in the dirt!"

Ben grasped his gun; the words gave him renewed courage. But before the big fellow could continue his speech a policeman came toward the group, swinging his club. "Move along, you fellows. No room for guys like you."

Ben followed the sudden men as they crossed into the business street and ambled by Tony's grill. Several of the men glanced toward the lighted window and made bitter, sneering remarks. Ben looked down the street. It was not a decent except for the scattering crowd moving on slowly. With his cap pulled low over his forehead, he shouldered his way through the door of the restaurant.

The little Italian in white apron and cap was sitting at a tall stool behind the lunch counter reading the paper. He stood up, grinning when he saw the customer. "You like da nice T-bone steak?"

"You're damned right I like it," Ben frowned menacingly, and laid his hand with the automatic on the counter. "Make it snappy."

Tony nodded. "You hurry hurry," he stated matter-of-factly. As he greased the hot grill he went on talking in a friendly tone. "Those fellaks that passed," he said, "they don't know when they are lucky. No! In some countries they starve. But here they eat. If they have families their bambinos are fed, and not allowed to play naked in the gutters."

He threw the steak onto the sizzling grill. "It see a great country. I come here broke, but I get da chance. And now I own this little business."

"You started at the right time," Ben snapped. "Work's scarce now."

Tony shrugged his shoulders. "Some of them could find jobs. But that kind don't worry Ben. They want pay checks! Beeg ones and no work!"

"What do you know about it?" demanded Ben angrily.

Tony pointed with one hand. "My sign in the window: Dishwasher Wanted. She has been here three days! But they ben laugh and go by! I started as a dishwasher. And look at me now." He swelled up his chest. "Beeg business man" he laughed.

"What do you pay?" Ben asked.

"Three good meals a day. A clean warm bed, and three dollars a week, oh hello!" The little Italian was grinning at someone over Ben's shoulder. The young man turned swiftly his hand clutching his pistol more tightly.

The policeman looked in the door and suspiciously. "What's going on here?"

Tony laughed showing both rows of gleaming white teeth. "Those man, he wants caps for hese plates!"

The policeman eyed Ben in disgust. "Don't you know the Fourth is over?" He passed on, swinging his club.

Ben, shamefaced, stuck his gun in his pocket as Tony placed before him a steaming platter of T-bone steak and french fries. "I haven't any money," Ben hesitated, his knife and fork hanging hungrily over the food. "Could I pay you by dishwashing?"

Tony grinned. "Sure," he said. "It'll be good business having a smart young American. You're no holdup man! you show the gun before you eat the steak!"

CANADIAN TRAPPER LEAVES DISGUSTED

Niagara Falls, Ont., Jan. 26 (CP) —George Hughes, fur trapper, went back disgusted to his wilderness cabin minutes after immigration regulations had been waived to let him join his food round.

With three Indians and two boats, Hughes drove 600 miles to enter the United States. He was stopped at the border. Friends informed United States immigration authorities who, as soon as they heard of the volunteer, granted permission for his entry.

But Hughes and his Indians, tired of the delay, had started back toward Marth's Lake in the Timagami Reserve.

Uchi Lake Gold

New Hammell Enterprise Attracts Much Interest

A company known as Uchi Lake Gold Mines has been formed with capital of 3,000,000 shares, of which 1,500,000 shares will go to vendors including Hammell Gold Mines, Ltd. of Or Mines Holdings J. E. Hammell and the prospectors interested in the gold property and eleven more claims since added to the group making fifteen mine in all. All vendor stock is pooled for two years. It is understood that the 500,000 shares offered at sixty cents for development of the property has been over subscribed four times and that efforts are being made to satisfy applicants to whom the Hammell interests are indebted and the general public as well.

The property shown it is said, a highly mineralized section 340 feet in length from which average samples of $10.75 have been secured. It has a strong width of twenty eight feet. Work has demonstrated that length of the zone at 1,000 feet, with the south end in low ground, still open. It is located north of Uchi Lake.—Port Arthur News Chronicle.

JELLICOE LOOMS ON MINING MART

Big Expectations Held of Future of Jelli.

Port Arthur, Ont.—(Special)—Early afternoon local brokers, telephoning about town in search of Jellicoe shares, failed to find any offers or upwards and unable to locate stock, says Prov. Arthur News Chronicle.

Interest in the district making strong during the closing session of the week was again monopolized by Jellicoe, which continued its upward climb. Today it entered the second circle of dollar stocks, representing an advance of more than 100 per cent in the past two weeks and when announced the close was Some odd lots were moved at the opening and when the session closed at 81 and when the brokers hung up their telephones for the day, early in the afternoon, it was being bid about 97 or 98. As usual with unlisted stocks the spread was generally accepted. The official statements regarding drilling on the east body are of two holes 300 feet each averaging something over $30 for the 600 feet of drilling. Rumor has of the pest couple of days is three to one ounce in the entire five feet. This comes from sources which appear reliable and it has not yet been made an official statement. Another talk that is not official is that a diamond drill is now on the property and high grade cores is about 1,200 feet from the shaft. Rumor has also it that it will require considerable more work to prove this. The buying is on the theory that it will be proved.

Next in point of local interest is Leitch, also affected by reports of ore widening out on the 500 foot level. This is another report which the public apparently believes although it has not been officially made. Buying on the strength of it has put the price to $1.60 bid.

Bankfield has benefited some from the interest in Jellicoe and today may extend into its property and on the general belief that it is doing well on the seventh level. Prices moved to close today at 1.70, being at times as 1.75. Sturgeon River has improved with Leitch and is also moving upward.

Macleod-Cockshutt and Hard Rock have been comparatively out of the picture. Little speculation has been rushing to get in on the improvement. To some extent this may have been affecting in matter of price by slightly restricting to those other issues which go further to go before becoming producing mines.

Siscoe Gold Mine

Drifting on the "K" zone on the eleventh level which is a length of 165 feet open at the west end where the face is stated to be very rich. Drifting on the twelfth level on the same spectacular zone showed 30 feet of ore every with ounce per ton grade with both ends open.—Port Arthur News Chronicle of January 23rd, states.

Market Comment

Mackay-Sharpe profound has moved up about 30 points in the last two months. On the 1936 operations, since 30th, 1936, the company is unlikely to show a very large profit, but it should show that the loss at least will be substantially reduced. Lake has a line of dividends on the preferred amounts to only a share, which should be available at $126 a share. The large arrears and the unusual redemption price on the preferred gives holders a strange position in any recognized reorganization. They have to move. No dividends can be paid on the common stock, however, until the loss of bonds have been redeemed. If anything, the speculative position for the preferred shares. Dividends, Gross are not known to be immediately prospect.

Standard Stateline:—During the past week the Toronto stock market before the pacific outlook for the year is clouded. Recent violent movements of security prices are likely to be highly irregular, but selected issues may be expected to go forward on their specific merits. Under such conditions investors, investors and speculators must be guided by the closest attention to commitments as conditions affecting individual issues justify.

Mr. Jackson, therefore, maintenance of safety will invested position is warranted, shifts can be made under such changes being counterbalanced by new purchases.

Pitch Service:—With stock prices in Toronto Exchange closely pressed resistance points and registering a new high for the year, technicians point to a continuation of a rise which is not yet overdone. Many with business prospects still showing improvement despite motor shop Bowling Corporation 3½%. Available, and combined with a still large Canada Dredge 76½ volume of funds seeking means of investment demand seeking means of improvement in the stock levels seems imminent. Such conditions appear under way to stimulate the attitude of investors and give full consideration to the most difficult dividends and other fundamental factors before assuming new commitments.

Hoit, Renfrew & Company Ltd.

The Hoit, Renfrew and Co. Ltd. have on hand a limited number of STOCK, which will receive a 10% stock dividend, in funded debt and certain notes. Negotiations are now under way for the company to move to the corner of Mountain and Sussex streets, where a suitable building will be erected on the southwest corner.

TORONTO INDUSTRIALS

Toronto, Jan. 26 (CP)—Industrials sprang into prominence on the Toronto Exchange with selling showing a tendency to dry up. The trend was regarded by the Toronto New York weakness, along with a little profit-taking and adjustment selling.

Most of the interlisted leaders, Consolidated Paper, Abitibi, Imperial Oil, and the two big distillery stocks, Walkers Common and Distillers Seagrams, showed fractional losses.

Utilities, Steels and the miscellaneous industrials were firmer with general trend while the foods held their ground well, and the golds and building stocks were steady to quiet trading.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, Jan. 26 (CP)—Mining shares took the downward course on the Toronto Exchange today with Centremon Base Metals and Oils were definitely lower while the golds after holding up stubbornly in the early trading, succumbed to heavies here and there, particularly in the secondary section of the list.

Dominion, Wright Hargreaves, Little Long Lac, Central Patricia, Consolidated Mining and East Malartic were all lower and in the oils losses of 10 to 50 cents appeared for Calvery-Edmonton, Home Oil, Dalhousie, Nordon and Foothills.

Rhinon Bay was the weakest of the Base Metals, dropping back to 1.30 on a loss of 1½ points. Sherritt and Falconbridge had sizeable losses.

GILLIES LAKE MINES REPORT

President's Letter to Shareholders Tells of Development

In a letter to shareholders by Bernard H. Hyman, General Manager of Gillies Limited, covering Gold Mines Limited, the following report is given:

"Since starting to advance 500 drift west an advance of about 30 ft has been made. This vein has now widened out to 13 ft. It would appear that number 35 and 9 vein are coming together at this point. The ore from here is going to the mill. The west drift on the 11 vein has been advanced approximately 30 ft. an assay of eleven dollars was obtained in the back over three ft. A muck sample from the cars assayed forty five dollars. Another vein is on the south contact of the porphyry. To the north of this drift two rounds have been taken out and have cut vein material containing very fairly values. Another round at least will be necessary to get the full width. An assay will be on this yet. All this development material is going to the mill. The 600 north crosscut has intersected a couple very quartz stringers showing free gold and arsenopyrites and mineralization. More stringers and mineralization, this work will be required to prove their importance. Diamond drilling is being conducted on the 2200 level and samples have assayed as high as thirty dollars. The 800 raise is going ahead and timber and chutes have been completed. This raise will be about sixty weighing 306 ounces. The production for the month is despite the development material going to the mill is being treated at a given period in December.

"We are pleased to announce that since we have opened up vein 509 and 336 (which are the new veins referred to above) we have been obtaining development ore and in spite of the fact that we have had to have crossed our tonnage there has been no reduction in the tonnage that we are being milled. In fact our recovery for the first twenty days of January shows an increase of approximately $3,000.00 over the same period in December.

To the Shareholders.

In reports received today from Hamlin B. Hatch, our geologist, he states our mine is in better physical shape today than at any time since the inception of your Company and is most encouraged regarding our new discoveries vein 509 and vein 336. Our engineer's report will be sent to you shortly after the annual meeting is held.

Greenhouse Owners Foresee Best Year Is Just Ahead

Sidney Lockyer, Picton, Tells of Huge Orders For Tomato Plants

GROWERS HAPPY

That elusive corner around which Prosperity has been hiding has at last been located, is best by the canning factory industry of Prince Edward county, which has enjoyed a record year, according to Sidney Lockyer, owner of one of the best greenhouses in that county, who was in the city last night.

The sharp skyrocketing in prices of canned goods which swept suddenly out of a cloudy business sky last autumn has been responsible for the increased activity along all fronts of the industry. New factories will be rushed to completion for operation in 1937. Old plants which have stood idle for a number of years have been purchased by canning interests and independent operators, modern machinery installed and preparations made for a record season in the coming year.

Farmers in the district are wearing smiles these days as the result of the crash. Prices of canning produce have leaped up within striking distance of pre-depression prices; larger acreages are being contracted for by the canning factories, and for the first time in years the agricultural representatives being visited by representatives of these interests with a view to securing the best of the harvest of the bumper crop in sight.

Preparations for Spring

Greenhouses throughout the country are making special preparation for the growth and handling of the greatest production of tomato plants ever known. Every day orders are pouring in and in some cases extensions will have to be made in order to accommodate the demand. Seven greenhouses in town village and in places in the rural sections which have formerly been devoted will hum with activity in July. MacSherry for the canning factories of the new plants in factories which hitherto were confined to the canning of tomatoes alone.

Private canning plants which specialize in the canning of chicken and by-products are also booming. These small plants which are operated by private individuals have been revived with renewed vigor with the past two years with the best to join the ranks of the new plants in the city of Toronto, of Wellington.

Enters Canning Field

Thomas Hubbard, M.P.P., for the county, has also entered the canning field. In association with Mr. W. E. Benson, the local member will erect what is claimed to be the largest plant to be ready for operation this year.

In spite of present predictions of optimistic Prince Edward come true this year, Sidney Lockyer and Charlie" will present a colorful kaleidoscope picture of plenty during the coming season. The green of the pumpkin, the scarlet of the tomato and the green of the corn, the interesting with the brilliant reds and yellows of the berries. All in all it looks like a gala year for the folks "across the Bay".

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE REGENT

"Love on the Run", Penny

Plenty of fun and romantic excitement is in store for patrons of the Regent Theatre at the Bells to-wednesday, Thursday and Friday, when Clark Gable, Joan Crawford, with "Love on the Run", a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer smash hit co-starring Charles Coble, Joan Crawford, with Franchot Tone, Mitchell Leisen's production at the head of a top notch supporting cast.

Here are the highlights: "Love on the Run" means Miss Crawford, Mr. Gable and Mr. Tone, all three since their memorable success in "Dancing Lady".

It is the production in which Miss Crawford and Gable, the popular favorites of "Forsaking All Others" and "Chained" "Possessed" to celebrate the anniversary of co-starring appearance. It was directed by W. S. Van Dyke, who piloted "The Thin Man" and "Marietta" and "San Francisco" fame.

The spirited, ultra-modern, comedy melodrama presents Gable as a handsome American heiress who leaves a pompous nobleman at the altar and flees to Europe in a new fleet from the church right into trouble. Miss Crawford is the fascinating stenog at a New York newspaper who bumps into Gable on the boat to Europe. Tone is cast as Gable's rival who chases the lovers in a mad whirl over the map of Europe. Also prominent in the cast are Elizabeth Allan and Reginald Barrie as deep-dyed villains who head a spy ring.

"Love on the Run", based on an original Alan Campbell and Gladys Hurlbut story, appeared serially in a national magazine, stresses the romantic comedy, which the reporter out after story, with a romantic wallop for the climax.

The story moves with the speed of a runaway locomotive as the romance between the reporter convinces the diminutive heiress that spies, the distraught heiress that spies, the reporter, and spirits her away from London to Prague in Czechoslovakia, and then to the property of a fake Baron and Baroness, really the spies who are planning a stratosphere flight to take Hitler and Mussolini to England.

Water Famine Feared

Flood-stricken cities in the United States midwest, dreading another calamity with the worst disaster in their history, today started to marvel at water famine and disease as the Ohio River flood surged northward and southward, extended feverishly to-reinforce the Mississippi's defenses.

The known death toll in the 11 flooded States mounted to 127, and Louisville's health commissioner estimated at least 300 bodies of victims attributed directly to the floods.

Hastening of water supplies and impaired sanitary conditions caused fear of epidemics in Cincinnati, Louisville, Huntinton, W. Va., Evansville, Ind., Portsmouth, O., and several other cities.

Estimates of property damage was boosted past the $300,000,000 mark and the army of homeless swelled to 730,000. It was enough for the whole population of Boston was on the road as refugees.

Fear gripped the start of the "second flood" predicted by Lieut.-Col. Eugene Reybold, District Engineer of U.S. Army engineers in charge of relief operation below Cairo—is expected to reach within a week.

From army headquarters at Washington, Quartermaster officers clothed out to crop area commanders to have complete evacuation plans in readiness by 3 p.m. January 30.

Secretary of War Woodring ordered them to prepare to evacuate a minimum of 500,000 persons along the 2,000 miles of levees on both sides of the river. Scores of railroad flatcars were mobilized to carry out the wholesale exodus.

Reports from the Cairo, Illinois, area, where the Ohio and Mississippi rivers meet, said the crest of the Ohio River was expected to reach 60 feet by morning, the highest point in the city's history.

Portsmouth, Ohio, cheered its mayor's statement that "we've got it whipped" while the Ohio slowed toward a standstill and the citizenry waited to restoration of essential services.

In Washington President Roosevelt was personally directing the coordinating the United States government.

Prisoners At Reformatory Too Well Treated—Guard

Should be Made to Know They Are Doing Time is Claim

FAVORS CELL SYSTEM

PRISONERS ... ...

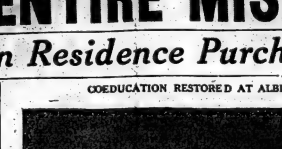
Guelph, Ont., Jan. 27 (CP)—Prisoners at Guelph Reformatory are too well treated, Robert Cunningham, a guard, told the inquiry conducted here by Judge James Madden into the riot of Jan. 17.

"They are well clothed and have a warm place to sleep," he said. "They sleep a lot warmer than I do. The fact of the matter is they are too well treated.

"They should be made to know they are doing time and made sorry they are doing time.

"Too many young people are put in dormitories together," he said. "I think if the cell system were in effect here there would be no trouble at all.

"The older prisoners talk to these young fellows and lead them on. Some of them would like to have the roof one day and turkey the next.



"Do you mean the older men inflame and excite the young men?" asked Gordon Gillanders, commission counsel.

"Yes, I think if cell system were in effect here we would have no trouble at all.

"If I was at the head of the government we would not have as nice a place as this one."

SHOWER TENDERED MRS. 'MAC' MOORMAN

Thirty guests gathered at the home of Mrs. Stan Brooks, 97 Dundonald Street last evening on the occasion of a miscellaneous shower tendered Mrs. "Mac" Moorman (nee Miss Mildred Graydon). A feature of the evening was a special presentation of a beautiful satin bed spread by Miss Janet Mott on behalf of the girls of the local "Bell" Telephone office, many of whom were present.

Games and prize games occupied the greater part of the evening, while a dainty buffet luncheon concluded the happy party.

HIGHWAY WORK TO BE DISCONTINUED

Approximately one hundred and seventy-five men will be laid idle within the next few weeks, when the highway project at MacDonald's Corners, about eighteen miles south of Madoc will be abandoned temporarily, Gangs four as it is more familiarly known, will close down for re-organization purposes, it was stated today by officials of the Employment Service of this city. The majority of the men employed come from the surrounding townships, it was reported.

Firemen Prompt in Fighting Chimney Fire

Fire squads rushed to West Moira Street shortly before noon yesterday in answer to an alarm when a blazing chimney resulting from overheated stovepipes threatened to ignite the roof. Prompt application of chemicals extinguished the blaze without any material damage being done.

TOWNSHIP ROADS QUITE SLIPPERY

Township trucks loaded with sand rushed to the aid of traffic yesterday on the highways in the northern part of the county as the thaw which followed the heavy rains of the week-end transformed the roads into dangerous sheets of ice. The majority of the hills and other traffic hazards were liberally sprinkled with sand to make passage safe.

The taking off charges, many farmers resorted to cobbin and the old fashioned cutter to make their journeys while in many cases teams of horses and sleighs were utilized to negotiate the journey between farm and village.

"HUMAN SEAL" TO DO ACT FOR CARNIVAL

He calls himself the "human seal." Krikor Arkelian, a young Canadian Armenian youth who swims in icy waters, wears flippers on his feet, moustaches, arrived in Belleville today and after interviewing Chief Kidd, general chairman of the V. O. N. annual charity ice carnival, stated he would make a personal appearance at the Belleville Arena and slays his "whim on ice and eating ice cream in a bathing suit act" gratis for the V. O. N.

Krikor says he thinks nothing of taking a dip in icy waters when the temperature is well below zero, but he features his famous "ice cream act." According to his stories related to Chief Kidd, Hokiman will sit in a tub full of ice and consume an ice cream cone. "Yes, I'll even buy the ice myself," added Krikor.

Final plans for the mammoth charity ice carnival program will be completed tonight when all committees convene at the police court rooms.

FIREMEN BERATED FOR 'MAKING MESS'

"Gratitude I calls it," muttered a member of the Belleville Fire Department last week as he silently listened to a tirade on the part of a housewife who berated the members of the fire squad for "making a mess" in the house after they had extinguished a blazing chimney.

"We try to be as careful as we can," explained the fireman, "but there is a certain amount of "mess" as it is called, which must result from the application of chemicals and the subsequent cleaning out of the chimneys.

JOHN B. ROW

Sarnia, Jan. 27 (CP) — John Blocker Row, 86, died Tuesday at his residence on the outskirts of Wyoming, after an illness of several years. Born in Belleville, he was a farmer for most of his life, twelve years of which were spent in Sombra Township. He is survived by his widow and two daughters, Mrs. Geneva Colbert of Thorndale and Miss Ethel Row, at home.

Pair of Robins Seen On Highland Avenue

Mrs. Joseph Waddell Heicood, stopped motoring yesterday on Highland Avenue. She had heard a familiar sound, the chirrup of a robin. When she looked up she saw not one but two hungry redbreasted creatures perched in a tree. One at least of the two was making merry despite the wintry weather.

Occasionally a single robin has been seen here in winter, but not two together. Mrs. Waddell says she has made the first discovery of a pair of summer birds making this their winter residence.

Allege Driver of Car Blinded By Lights

Mrs. M. Chadwick, Toronto, suffered two cracked ribs and two automobiles were badly damaged on highway No. 2 four miles West of Belleville during a rear-end motor crash last evening. Mrs. Chadwick was removed to the surgery of Dr. J. A. Whalen where the injury was remedied.

Mr. David C. Collyer, Toronto was proceeding east on the highway when he was suddenly "waved over" by a car travelling in the opposite side of the road. Coming to a halt, Mr. Collyer was requested to send a tow truck out to assist the stalled motorist. While in conversation with the parked motorist, however, another automobile, following the driver of Mr. Collyer's car and driven by Thomas Chadwick, also of Toronto, crashed into the rear end of Mr. Collyer's car. Both vehicles were badly damaged during the impact and Mrs. Chadwick sustained personal injuries. Provincial Constable Truscott investigated and learned that Mr. Chadwick had been temporarily blinded by the lights of the parked vehicle.

HOLLOWAY STREET CHURCH CLOSES PROSPEROUS YEAR

Rev. R. E. Newman Lays Stress on Spiritual Endeavor

BUDGET BALANCED

Year's Activity Reported And Officials Are Elected

At the annual congregational meeting of Holloway Street United Church held in the Sunday School rooms on Tuesday evening, Rev. R. E. Newman held out a future of great opportunity in serving the men and women, boys and girls of this city. "This," he said, "is a time of reports and frustration for the future, a future in which the congregation and the minister are seen working together under divine guidance. There is the challenge of service.

"There are great problems facing the people, and where can they find help such as you as a congregation can make day after day. It is not so much a question of God is important, but it is something more. We need more than the doctor brings in his medicine chest. We need more than the doctor brings in his medicine chest. We need the gathering here to keep the church merely, but are here ready for service.

Good Samaritans.

"We are forced under God to be good Samaritans. More and more I am reading the book of the Good Samaritan and it is absolutely essential.

"Now as we enter into the financial reports, yet imagine anyone making a report on the results of worship, prayer and the spiritual work of the church.

Mr. Moore paid his thanks to those who had helped the minister by their response to the financial appeals and said that the outlook for the year 1937 is bright.

Service began with the reading of the names of the members of congregation who had died during the past year, Mrs. Jane Schryver, Mrs. Caroline Reddick, Miss Mary Ann Dougherty, Mr. James Zebedee, Miss Annie Strachan, Mrs. E. Fox and Mrs. William Bennett. While the congregation stood the names were read and a minute's silence was observed.

The auditor's report of the treasurer's books presented by Mr. Chas. Moore showed a total revenue of $13,450.07, imported duties and taxes were weekly envelope givings of $12174, loose collections $1134.56, anniversary collections of $466.87, special collections of $672.64.

Budget Balanced.

Not only did the church balance its budget for the year, but with the succession but it paid off a note in the bank from former years. There are a few small accounts carried over into the new year, but the books of the church are balanced in full.

Mr. Moore reporting on envelopes showed that there are 320 envelopes which have been taken out and of which 156 are used regularly. The average collection on Sunday is $42, the church expenses per week being about $60, the deficit being met by special collections and other means.

Missionary and maintenance givings were $5942 of which the Sunday School and two classes contributed $45.78.

Women's Association.

Mrs. James C. Cordes, for the Women's Association, showed proceeds of $210.35, expenses $258.32, leaving a balance of $48.97. In addition to this was the balance carried from 1935 of $66.74, to make a total of $115.84 balance at the end of 1936. The association has also a credit balance of $1,513.97 from former years, which with the balance of $115.84 above, makes a total of $1629.81 from which $25 was voted to the church school at the last session, leaving a net total balance of $1,607.81.

Proposed Redecoration of Church

Rev. Mr. Newman pointed out the proposed redecoration of the church which the women of W.A. had asked that a committee of three be appointed to meet a committee of the women's organization in regard to this work. The large amount which the W.A. has on hand for the big beats of the undertaking of redecoration, the minister said.

Mrs. Hoyle for the W.M.S. reported total of $394.97 including donations from the mission band, mission circle and C.G.I.T. groups.

The W.M.S. is a spiritual power said the minister, expressing the hope that the men could be got together in missionary meetings.

S.S. Report

Mrs. B. McMurray for her son, Mr. Elton McMurray, presented a report of the Sunday School showing 22 officers and teachers, 123 visitors, 123 average attendance of the school and $154.49 collections. Other sources of revenue brought the total to $210.56 of which $46.38 remains in the bank at the first of the year.

Mrs. Sherry for the Adult Bible class reported receipts of $35.54.

Miss M. Rose for the Y.P.U. reported membership of twenty-five, carrying on invaluable work. The minister urged encouragement for the vital work of this group.

C.G.I.T. Work

For the C.G.I.T. Mrs. R. E. Newman reported thirty members, the local organization having attained a standard required by the Girls' Work Board at Toronto, one of the few groups with the required standard. Total receipts were $45.51.

Mr. Newman reported for the Evangelic group, had a total revenue of $199.52, which included $85.16 carried forward from 1935. During the year the group made a grant of fifty dollars to the church board.

Mr. James Hudgins, clerk of the session, who was also elected as secretary during the meeting, reported on the work of the year, stating that the Easter sunrise service was well attended, the camp meeting well supported, the membership of prayer attended and spoke of co-operation of forward movements.

James Cordes reported for the total revenue of $23.72 with $17.69 on hand. Mr. Newman expressed thanks to the loyalty of the choir.

Pastoral Report

Rev. R. E. Newman in the pastoral report stated a total of 230 families under pastoral oversight, 18 persons not included in the families, making a total under pastoral oversight 750. There were six baptisms, marriages 10, burials, 36, removals from membership by death 17. The total resident membership stands at 360 with 5 non-resident members, total 365 for 1936, Sunday school enrolment, 207, C.G.I.T. 30, W.M.S. membership 72, church property valuation, church building $50,000; manse $4,500, furniture in church and manse owned by congregation $300, total of $54,800, on which the insurance is $38,000.

At the close of the meeting refreshments were served by the ladies and a social half hour was spent.

Donations for Flood Relief

Before the gathering broke up, the minister suggested that donations for the relief of flood sufferers might be received. Donations of ten dollars were given. This amount was handed to the local Red Cross branch to be forwarded to Red Cross headquarters to be sent by the Canadian organization to the United States.

Club Hears Address on Good Lighting as Investment

That good lighting was one of the prime essentials of the business world as well as the schoolroom and the home was the theme of a brilliant address given by Mr. George G. Crossin, Illuminating Engineer of the Hydro Electric Power Commission, Toronto, before the members of the Rotary Club at their regular weekly luncheon held in the Hotel Quinte yesterday.

Taking as his theme "Good lighting as an Investment," Mr. Crossin pointed out in simple sentences the advantages to be had in the office, the show-room, the show-window and the business place in general through a system of good lighting. The home and the classroom could not be without it. It was of splendid benefit to the sight. It eliminated the strain usually associated with a system of poor lighting. Not only the place of business but the home and classroom could not afford to be without it.

Previous to his address, Mr. Crossin was introduced to Rotary by Mr. Cawald H Scott while the appreciation of the club was given by Morley Duff and President Joe Ehortt.

Rotary Maker Grant

The luncheon was held in the usual Rotary atmosphere with President Ehortt in the chair, Jim Riggs presided in his usual capable manner at the piano while the songs were led by Rotarian Charley Spalding. Two sergeants-at-arms officiated in charge of the usual coin, with Mack Robertson giving Steve Flinoff's remark statistics in this particular office.

One of the first of Belleville organizations to show in a tangible form an expression of sympathy for the sufferers in the flood ravaging in the Ohio Valley in the United States Rotary yesterday voted a liberal grant to the American Red Cross Society to be used in the relief of the victims of the raging waters of the Mississippi and Ohio Rivers.

Another new member in the person of Ken. Dyson, Canadian National Railway ticket agent, was introduced to the members by the president. Harry Moorman will represent the Rotary Club on the Municipal Council committee.

Standing up and acknowledging the congratulations of their fellow club members on the occasion of their birthdays were those of the week just past were Rotarians Ken Dewar, Charlie Symons, Morrison and "Tommie" Bone, as the president called them in the order named.

POLICE BLOTTER

One lone inebriate shared the cell block at the police station with three lonely transients last night. There was also room for all to stretch while sleeping. All were allowed to depart early today, the drunk being instructed to return in time for Friday's local police court.

Found abandoned on Foster Avenue, where it had been noticed for the past two days, a bicycle was brought to the police station last night. The bike was doubtless used by a mischief maker or delivery boy as it is equipped with a metal carrier on the front. The bicycle is being held for identification.

Last night's sudden drop in the temperature was attributed by the paramount reason for the abrupt falling off in the number of departments to apply for a night's lodging, when only three put in an appearance at the police station.

PRISON DAMAGE $21,489 ESTIMATE

Inspector McJannet Gives Report at Reformatory Probe

Guelph, Jan. 26 (CP)—A "liberal" estimate for repairing damage done to the Ontario Reformatory at the riot January 17 is $22,489, William McJannet, Inspector of Prisons, told Judge James E. Madden when an inquiry into the disturbance opened here today. The total took into account the fact that much of the reconditioning work was by prison labor, he said.

Damage to glass and sash was the greatest," he said. "There were 11,000 pieces of glass replaced, 302 new sash, 14 completed window frames and sash, and 97 sash were repaired in our own work shop.

"Plumbing cost $1,000 just for purchase of new materials. They unchipped lavatory and wash room equipment damaged by violence, not by fire. Add a little labor charges to the plumbing. Total plumbing and heating cost was $1,813.30.

Damage In Detail.

"Damage to the school was $2,000, to the church, $1,000, mostly by fire; guards' quarters, $200, mostly by smoke; the old cell block, $1,000; recreation room, $800; $500.88 for gift work in the kitchen. Doors were smashed by a battering ram and three torn from completely from fastenings."

Paint cost estimate was $1,000 for reconditioning the cells and blocks, places where radiators were torn from walls, twisted out and plugged. There was 1,500 volumes of fiction destroyed from the library.

Cost of repairing metal beds was $200. "We can do much of the straightening in our own shops here and reclaim much of the mattresses," Mr. McJannet said.

It would take two additional weeks to repair and restore the damage, he suggested.

CANADIAN AID TO SUFFERERS

Readiness of the Canadian Red Cross to receive and forward contributions to the flood sufferers in the United States is something of which Canadians are proud but just what should be expected. The peoples of Canada and the United States have a close friendship and the blow which has struck the Ohio Valley is one which is deplored on this side of the international boundary.

Belleville organizations are showing themselves awake to the heavy needs in looking after the homeless citizens driven from their homes in the flood area. The Rotary Club on Monday, made a contribution to this cause and at the close of the annual congregational meeting at Holloway Street United Church last evening donations were taken up on behalf of the U. S. flood refugees.

While Canadians show their practical sympathy, they are grateful that they have been spared such an experience and pray that the calamity may disappear and that the work undertaken in flood relief may be amply supported so that the utmost aid can be furnished.

TRIBAL DIETIES OF NATIONALISM

One of the grave menaces of the present day is the growth of nationalism, an outcome of the shattered state of nations afted the world war and the days which followed that historic struggle, when so many nations lost their status and balance.

This question has been taken up by Rev. Dr. Watson, President of the American University in Cairo who discussed the situation at Riverside church, New York, and contrasted former restrictions placed on Moslems by their religion with present-day progressive reform and pointed out the need of a world social horizon in religion to combat "the tribal dieties" of nationalism.

"After the World War and until a decade and a half ago it was the fashion to talk and think in world terms," he said. "American exports were contemplating world markets, and our democratic ideals seemed to be receiving such a warm welcome that they appeared to be conquering the world.

"Then the tide turned and these attitudes were replaced by hostilities and world enmities. The world reverted to primitive tribal attitudes of mind, only we no longer live in tribes but in great nations, which makes the tragedy all the greater. Christianity was also adversely affected, and we are now in great danger of losing the dynamic incentive for world leadership.

To preserve a world horizon in religion, it is essential to have an adequate conception of God, Dr. Watson asserted. Nationalism in the Moslem world, he said, is taking the place of the great political allegiance to Islam which formerly made it as strong as the ancient Holy Roman Empire.

"During the World War we discovered that Pan-Islamism was going up and exploding, and today all the pieces are coming down as national bits," Dr. Watson continued. "When we follow the changes in the old traditionalism of the Moslems we cannot help but say that these are the moving finger of God on the face of the nations.

"In Egypt the ruler is not the Parliament or the King, but public opinion. Over 90 per cent of the people have treasoms, because public opinion says it is unlucky to wash a baby before he is forty days old. Not in one year, but gradually over periods of years, public opinion advances and, as it does, the individual goes ahead too."

A New York minister gave Sunday, motorist a new angle on their attitude, when Rev. L. H. R. Hass, pastor of Hanson Place Baptist Church, Brooklyn, said that the act of kneeling by the side of autos on Sunday morning in making preparations for a trip instead of going to church was a form of idolatry. He declared:

"Tools are tools, not gods. Men think so highly of their tools that they worship them as if they were gods. Men make nets to catch fish and then they turn around and worship the nets. That is idolatry.

"You may see some men too tired to kneel in prayer in church, but on Sunday morning you will see them kneeling by their automobile to get it ready for a trip. That is idolatry.

"A minister lost his library and files in a fire which swept through part of the church. He seemed bewildered and at a loss and soon afterward he resigned his pastorate. Evidently he had so leaned upon his tools in that study that when they were taken away he was a tool above God, that is idolatry.

"One man makes the Bible his idol. God gave us the Bible as His letter of love, but we may have God in us and thus a One man makes the church his idol. We ought not to love the church more than God."

A SUCCESS RECIPE FOR 1937

This is success; to live beyond deceit,
Too big to play the liar or the cheat,
Too big to lean when burdens heavy grow,
Asking a favour from a friend or foe,
Standing to life and all that it may mean
With head erect and hands and conscience clean.

This is success: to live from year to year
Not asking always sunny skies and clear,
But wise enough to know and understand
Life never runs exactly as we've planned;
Seeking the best, but when the worst is met
Taking the blow without too much regret.

This is success: with all to play the friend,
Willing to give and glad at times to lend,
Laughing and singing whenever you may,
And walking bravely through the rainy day,
Giving your best throughout the passing years,
Neither deceived by flattery nor by sneers.

This is success: the love of friend to win,
To taste no pleasure that may lead to sin,
To take no profit from the hand of shame,
But by a fair fight win or lose the game;
Apart from life such triumphs as you see,
But still through good or ill to play the man.

—Edgar A. Guest.

BANKS WERE ALWAYS LOOKED UPON AS "BIG" MONEY INSTITUTIONS—catering to Big Business and big money and only recognizing the workingman or small money man by condescending to take care of his savings in a savings bank account. Hence the news that a Canadian Bank of Commerce had inaugurated a new policy—that of making small loans to farmers from sixty dollars up came as somewhat of a tradition upsetter, a shock as it were to life-long ideas of the country's management of finances. For years small borrowers have been obliged to patronize those who made a business of loaning small amounts at large interest charges — and out of this grew up a system of racketeering in the United States where people were held in bondage to loan sharks and paid back many times the amount of the original loan to get free. The banks have never bothered with the small borrower until recently when a New York bank experimented with loans of under and over one hundred dollars. Bank officials were surprised at the success of the plan and stated that less than one-half of one per cent loss resulted. This branch of banking business is not philanthropy but a profitable innovation which brings in new savings bank depositors, benefits workingmen, and pays the bank a substantial rate of interest, and higher average than on large loans, so that a number of small loans are more profitable to the bank than a few large ones and safer. Strange how many years pass before established customs give way to innovations which prove in the public interest—finance clings to safe and sane methods proved by the years and hesitates to branch out in new and untried paths, which perhaps is as it should be when it is understood that they are custodians of the savings of the people, but every symptom of modern progressiveness detected in banking circles is hailed with delight as encouraging signs of the times.

THE MERITS OF CHEESE

Much has been, and still could be written extolling the merits of cheese. The Milk Utilization Service, Dairy Branch, Dominion Department of Agriculture, summarizes the most important facts about cheese for the interest and benefit of everyone in Canada.

Cheese is an abundant source of health-promoting vitamin A.

Cheese is an economical food— high in food value—low in cost.

Cheese can be used to advantage as a substitute for more expensive protein foods.

Cheese adds flavor when used with bland foods such as rice, spaghetti and potatoes.

Cheese, a highly concentrated food, should be served with bulky foods such as cereals, fruits and green leafy vegetables.

Letters to the Editor

January 26, 1937.

Editor of Ontario Intelligencer,

Dear Sir—

In regard to this Rent question which it seems to be was the main issue at last night's council meeting, I might say for the benefit of some of our landlords who are also taxpayers, that I asked our Chairman of Public Works, Alderman Clapp, why he didn't put us fellows who are on relief to work so we could pay our rent. But Alderman Clapp says, he doesn't think it advisable to spend the taxpayer's money by putting us to work for rent, when it would only be from $10 per cent. of the wages, but if we relief people had a job like they are doing for a PEW, it would only cost the city around a third, so the remainder is up to you.

Now, Mr. Taxpayer, I ask you, which would be the best. Let us relief pay our rent, and pay part of it? If they pay it, we have to work and let us pay our own and pay all of it. I don't know how the council expects to collect taxes if we can't pay our rent. So I would like to see what good a food will be to fuel if you have no home to live in? How Mr. Landlord at this time you woke up. All we ask is a chance to live like human beings not driven from one house to another. So in closing I would ask the city council, when they start these vouchers, that they put the item that are on relief on that work at a living wage and do away with these vouchers. After all if we can earn our own living and pay our own rent we will all be better off in the end. Keep on with these vouchers and in time you won't be able to hire a man to do a day's work for you as he will be to getting our living for nothing. We will be too lazy to do a day's work.

So give us a chance to be men and earn our own living.

Little Benny's Note Book

Miss Kitty gave out the report cards in school today, miss being enter bum, and I had to give it to pop on account of that being a rule of the family, and after supper he was reeding the paper and shaking his head to himself in back of the financial page, saying, Tee gads, what a market, it would be better if it was a little worse, because in that case it would have to get better because there wouldn't be any other way for it to get.

Me thinking, Heck, I better wait till pop gets in a good humoring more cheerful. And I said, Why don't you take a look at some other part of the paper and get your mind off of the market, so you can look at the funny page? I said.

The inhabitants of the funny page are always having so much trouble I cant bare it, pop said. But I take a look at the funny bunes, he said.

Well, I started to, saying, Out of the frying pan into the volcano, after I took a look at some other part of the paper and read a few words of the world coming to? Way, again. Why, pop, what we're living in, very amusing if we dont stop to think about it, he said, and I said, Well O, pop, why dont you just enjoy the funny page for him. You dont have to look at Dare Devil Dare getting himself in peril, why dont you just look at Mable and Morris, they're always funny, I said.

I'll tark a chance on your say so, pop said. And he turned to the funny page, saying, Mabel and Morris, my how they do, he said, in a pritty comical team at that, ha ha ha.

Make my chance, and I said, Hay pop, how about my report card do you like the standing it now?

Will it make me laugh? pop said, and I said, Err I dont hardly think so, it's not exter good. I mean it could be worse.

I suppose you really mean it couldn't be much worse, pop said, like the stock market, pop said, and I said, Sirt Yes sir.

And I showed it to him, being the beginning of the sad part.

Miss Anna Hurley Will Head Women's Club in Coming Year.

GOOD ATTENDANCE

All Officers Elected By Ballot And Addresses Dispensed With

Minus the customary addresses, and seldom if ever marked by ceremony, the joint annual meeting of the Men's and Women's organizations of the Belleville Liberal Club held in the city Mid evening, though featured by good attendance, was registered as one of the briefest on record.

Elected by acclamation, Mr. Fred Temple was named President of the Men's club for the ensuing year, while Miss Anna Hurley will be the women's club, defeating Mrs. Geo. Waylor, who was nominated in opposition. Differing from usual procedure, election of officers was carried out by ballot at the request of the majority in attendance when asked to indicate their preference by a show of hands.

Men's Club: Hon. President, R. C. Butler; President, Fred Temple; 1st Vice-President, Richard Playfair; 2nd Vice-President, Dr. C. Kellaway; Secretary, C. C. Prochette; Treasurer, E. D. Snell; Assistant Secretary, Donald Sandwell; Auditors, Arthur Keegan and Harold Mote.

As retiring President, M. E. O. Butler, chairman of the meeting, announced the nominations and elections, requested the privilege of being relieved of the active participation upon the executive body this evening. In his valedictory address, Past President Butler thanked the membership for the full co-operation and assistance, that had been given during every member during his term of office.

Treasurer's Report Held

"Your last year's executive took office under conditions, that were rather adverse. We had the unfortunate of the election to contend with, but we tried to carry on and I believe we have managed to maintain our unity as a distinct joint association," pointed out the Past President.

Mr. Butler took the occasion to pay tribute to Mr. Fred Temple who, as chairman of the entertainment committee of the club during the past year, had rendered sterling work, and had he said been mainly responsible for the functioning of the club as a body during the twelve month period.

In the financial statement submitted by Secretary-Treasurer Snell, it was revealed that a small but favorable balance was on hand, with only one account outstanding.

Previous to accepting nominations for the various offices on the executive, Past President Butler had pointed out that in fairness to those who were not present at the meeting only those present should be eligible for nomination. The advisability of this suggestion was endorsed by Capt. Thomas Hyland.

"Should of those, who are not here tonight may be sick, unable to come. Perhaps they are just as good Liberals as those who find here. Anyhow, we have a precedence on this," refer to the election of Mr. Harold Holton some time ago at which even though he was not present at the meeting," declared Capt. Hyland.

"It was only a suggestion on my part. I did not mean to have this in the form of a motion, but was an issue of it," commented chairman Butler.

"Did you have any nominations in mind, Mr. Hyland?"

"No, I have none."

Only One Nominated

Following the nomination of Fred Temple for the office of president, a distinct pause was noted after the seconding of the nomination.

"I declare the nominations closed. Are all agreeable?" asked the chairman.

A majority of hands were shown.

"I declare it so.

"I'd like to nominate Mr. Leo Bellinger for the office of president" interrupted Mrs. Harold Holton.

"I suggest that Captain Hyland is out of order", commented Mr. McKenna.

The suggestion was so ruled upon by the chairman. Nominations were closed without the acceptance of Mr. Bellinger's name.

In accepting the office of president, Mr. Temple, in his brief remarks stressed the necessity of co-ordination and unity within the joint clubs during the coming year.

"I stand ready to do my part, and will do all that I can to further the aims of the organization I represent. One idea, that I have entertained for some time past and one for which I intend to work during my term in office is the co-ordination of this Club with the South Hastings organization. There is no reason why we cannot hold general meetings with both associations and work in unity with one another. I cannot regard this Belleville Club as a political one in any sense of the word. I believe we should reach out further and serve club and that we should work not only the back yard clean, but the front yard also In order to swell our ranks and attain our rightful place."

Miss A. Hurley, re-elected president of the Women's Club in the interest of addresses declared herself a Liberal, first, last, and always. "I am engaged in work in which I am interested, and work in which all women should be interested. During this coming year I can only ask for the same support the same co-operation, that have been given me in the past, and assure one again, that the same ffiial support that has been given the men's organizations in the past will be continued."

Pica For Greater Unity

Ed. A. Kellaway, 2nd vice-president, assured his election that during the coming term his efforts would be directed solely toward the betterment of the organization he represented and would carry on the traditions of the Party to the best of his ability.

R. D. Snell, treasurer, pleaded for greater unity within the ranks. "Let's all come together and see what we can do; see how good an organization we can have if we try," he requested.

C. Frechette, secretary, in thanking those who had elected him to office gave the assurance that his interests and aims were directed only toward the betterment of the Club and the Liberal Association.

As an expression of appreciation for the valuable service that had been given by the retiring president during the past year, a motion by President Temple that R. C. Butler be named honorary president of the joint clubs for 1937, received unanimous support.

GOOD HERD SIRES PRIME REQUISITE

Fred Hubbs Re-elected President Holstein Breeders

Holstein Breeders assembled in Belleville on Tuesday afternoon to arrange for the sale of pedigreed cattle and elect officers for the ensuing year. Considerable enthusiasm was shown by the members present due to the continued improvement of the cattle and dairy industry with a prospect that cattle will be even higher in the coming year. Mr. Fred Hubbs of Bloomfield was in the chair and conducted the meeting in his usual capable manner. Agricultural representatives from Durham, Northumberland, Hastings and Prince Edward Counties were on hand and briefly addressed the meeting offering hearty co-operation for the betterment of the industry in their respective areas. R. M. Holtby, field man for the Holstein Fresian Society, was the principal speaker and discussed with the members every phase of the industry.

Joseph Wilson of Stirling announced to the gathering, there was every possibility the southern part of Hastings County at least would be a tuberculosis free area. "The majority of the breeders are signing up and the rest will likely be taken in the near future," stated Mr. Wilson. Mr. Wilson recommended the use of good herd sire in order to improve the quality of the herds. He also asked for a revision of the prize list at Belleville Fair, stating that the prizes should be given in some sections and less in others to induce the breeders to take a more active interest.

Mr. Martin of Durham in speaking of the coming sale believed the cattle should be in prime condition and of good quality and that more breeders should enter their stock in the R.O.P. tests. There being no further business, the election of officers was proceeded with and Fred Hubbs of Bloomfield was again chosen president, Ernest Burnside of Madoc was chosen vice-president and F. B. Nelson of Campbellford, secretary-treasurer. R. O. Sulley of Brighton and R. M. Parks of Napanee were named as auditors. Dunham Foster, Bloomfield will again act as Sale Manager and the date of the sale was set for March 31st.

LIFE INSURANCE SOCIAL SERVICE

Charles Rooke is Speaker at Meeting of Kinsmen

Claiming Life Insurance is the greatest social service performed for the general public, in our day Mr. Charles Rooke of the Canada Life Insurance Co., addressed the Y's Men at their weekly supper, last night.

Mr. Rooke expounded on the life insurance business comparing the value of a policy to selling from any other commodity. The basis of commodity is money and Life Insurance is money payable on demand, at par and in cash.

Life Insurance has to depend on its investments for its dividends. Therefore with governmental regulating its contracts and confiscating its bonds the insurance companies suffer great losses but the policy holder is protected from these losses by maintaining the amount of money placed in the different investments under the policy.

Ralph Morden, now with the Canada Life, very capably introduced the speaker; while Lorne MacDougal cleverly thanked Mr. Rooke for his excellent address. Community singing with Ken Ellis singing while Godfrey Scott collected the fines.

BURNS HONORED BY KIWANIS CLUB

P. C. MacLaurin Gives Graphic Description of Poet's Life

A Scotch dinner, an address on Robert Burns by a Scotsman and a ceilidh by Pipe Major Ross contributed to an excellent luncheon of the Kiwanis Club held on Tuesday at the Queen's Hotel. President Eddie Logan was in the chair with Albert Boynton as sergeant-at-arms and James Bankier as song leader and Lee Jr. Riggs as accompanist. The community singing consisted entirely of Scottish songs and it was surprising the amount of same, that was put in each number. As an added attraction for the luncheon, Pipe Major Albert Johnstone in full Scotch uniform piped the diners into the luncheon room and the customary march around the room was made before the meeting was opened.

The meal consisted of Scotch porridge "rolled oats", a plentiful helping of Irish stew, a la salt cheese and more than one plate was sent back for seconds. During the business meeting, the club discussed the advisability of holding a Coronation pageant but the final decision was left until the next meeting. Members of the dance committee reported that plans were proceeding and that the 21st. Anniversine dance to be held on Monday, February 8th, with invitations would be in the mails today. Anyone not receiving an invitation has only to get in touch with any member of the Club. Special attractions have been arranged and a most enjoyable evening is anticipated. It will be the last social function before the Lenten season.

P. C. MacLaurin the speaker of the day, was introduced by Jack McIntosh and Kiwanian appreciation for his interesting address on Robert Burns was expressed by J. O. Henry. The speaker told of incidents back 178 years and in distance to the southwest corner of Scotland where Robert Burns lived and his wife, formerly Agnes McHutchison possessed fierce characteristics, being industrious, frugal and devout, religious and temperate atmosphere Robert Burns was born", said Mr. MacLaurin. The man, who was to become one of the world's greatest poets lived a simple life. His income received only an entrance to High School education. At the age of 15 he left and died and the hard work that he carried on in the afterwards impaired his health. The speaker told of the sale of his first volume of poems the year 1786 and the final sale of 2,000 copies for $2,500. Burns married Jean Armour his mother and his brother, Gilbert. The speaker told of the poet's rise from the heart and his poems were gems of literature that will endure as long as the world last. He mentioned his most important ones and had Jessie Purdyce read "Scots Wha Hae".

LIPTON'S TO DOUBLE PRESENT FACILITIES

No Change in Canadian Management

That no change is contemplated in either management or policy in Canada, was the answer given by A. G. Johnson, of Thos. J. Lipton Limited, when questioned as to the possible effects of the Thomas J. Lipton Estate having been bought by Lipton's Limited of England.

The new board in England has thoroughly reviewed Lipton's progress in Canada in the past few years", stated Mr. Johnson, "and has been so impressed with the possibilities for the future that plans have been rushed through to provide for immediate expansion. A new warehouse has already been purchased, which will give us double the floor space of our present Toronto plant and we are spending in the neighborhood of $100,000 in new blending and packing equipment.

A. G. JOHNSON

General Manager for Canada of Thomas J. Lipton Limited, who reports the purchase of a new and larger Canadian warehouse as part of a general expansion program necessitated by improved business conditions in Canada.

An advertising and sales promotion plan covering the next three years is being projected, which will call a considerable amount of money, Mr. Johnson expressed the opinion that the growth of every member of the Canadian firm at their being an integral part of the great world-wide Lipton organization, carrying on the name and traditions of the poor Glasgow-born boy who lived to be one of the world's best known men, both as a great merchant and as a great sportsman. It is just about 60 years since Thomas Lipton, then 15 years of age, emigrated to America where he worked as a grocer's clerk, street car driver and a cowboy in South Carolina plantation. He returned to his native health to begin a little provision shop in Glasgow. He gradually spread a network of food stores, first through Scotland, then all through England, the business growing to such vast proportions that he established his own packing houses, jam factories, fruit farms, bakeries and innumerable other enterprises, including the great Lipton tea plantations in Ceylon. From which comes the fine leaf which has made Lipton's the largest selling tea in the world.

'Stretch, Bend For Shapely Figures

Outdoor exercise keeps this youthful star shapely

By HELEN FOLLETT

THE HUMAN torso needs plenty of exercise. That's why stretching, bending and twisting are recommended by teachers of physical education for girls who can't spend time out-of-doors. No woman who heads an active life needs arm and leg calisthenics, unless those parts of the body are overdeveloped. Exercises that aid digestion and act upon the intestinal tract, liver and kidneys include movements that put a hard on the muscles of the midsection.

Dame Fashion says the waistline and hips must be trim and graceful. Little Lazybones, who lolls on soft cushions all day, is going to children as she gets older. She can't avoid this condition by making her muscles strong and resilient as they will put up a fight against spread; and fat cells.

For a simple calisthenic that is not exhausting, sit far back in a chair, stretch the back bone, place the hands on either side of the body and turn at the waist line. Start right, then left. Let the head, neck and shoulders as far as they can. The muscles of the back will be strengthened by this simple exercise.

A FRESH SLANT on millinery silhouettes is the fez tilted very much to one side. A fez-type of black antelope with several rows of gold stitching and a tassel fringe of black gold-topped crested much comment at a recent fashion show.

HANDS REACH OUT for warmth; so, with a hat of lacquer red velvet, Jane Blanchot makes a scarf-muff partly of the red and partly of black velvet.

A REAL ARTIST will delight in an exquisite bag of black velvet with a broad, flat bricks frame studded with a series of Persian miniatures hand-painted on bone.

A BRIGHT FLASH of color is the best gift for an all-black costume. Such a gift is provided by a matching hat and muff-bag made of scarlet fox. The tiny hat has a flat black bird in front.

READING THE LIST of popular dress-up accessories is the cocktail hat. A typical model is a scalloped cap of green metallic lamé surrounded by fluted ostrich tips in green, pink and gilded beige.

BY ROUTE for the South are many white and green evening frocks. A typical model for the dancing girl is a full-skirted number in white net with clusters of gold cloth at the hem, and a heart-shaped bertage and for the straps. Gold leaves and berries are worn in the hair.

Influenza - - "The Flu"

This disease is prevalent now in Canada and the United States—it has not so far been as severe as it was in 1918.

It is very contagious and may become worse through such complications as bronchitis, intestinal trouble, or pneumonia.

HOW TO AVOID "FLU"

1. Keep physically fit.
2. Exercise in the open air.
3. Get sufficient sleep in a well-ventilated room.
4. Avoid crowds.
5. Wash your face and hands frequently and always before eating.
6. If you must cough or sneeze, do so into a clean handkerchief and thus protect your neighbors.
7. Follow implicitly the advice of your health officer.
8. Don't visit those who are sick unless it is absolutely necessary.
9. Don't worry about the "Flu."

HOW TO KNOW "FLU"

The disease usually starts suddenly with an "out of sorts feeling"—pains and aches all over the body. "Cold in the head" and cough, elevation of temperature, and sometimes vomiting or diarrhoea.

If these symptoms persist and treatment is neglected, pains in the chest, cough and eventually pneumonia may develop. Remember pneumonia is often quickly fatal.

HOW TO FIGHT "FLU"

1. Go to bed immediately
2. Call your physician at once and do as he prescribes.
3. Stay in bed till your doctor tells you to get up.
4. Remember the period of getting well is longer than the time actually ill.
5. Keep your room at 68 degrees F. and well ventilated

Wife Charming — But He wants a Card in 'Steinheads' Union.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Perhaps, as the "Peace on Earth" season is still with us, you may allow a mere man—also a husband, a father, job-holder and tax-payer —to say a word in your column for the down-trodden male.

I have a charming and lovely wife. If she were less attractive, perhaps, it would not be a case of the iron hand in the velvet glove in our home. But I earn so much for that I have to obey. Still, I'm beginning to think it would've a good thing if the A. F. of L. would issue union cards for husbands.

As a bookkeeper in a large mercantile house, I put in a full day's work. We have a nice little home in the country (for the children's sake), which necessitates my taking the 7:40 train in the morning to get to work on time. So I get my own breakfast (coffee, dry cereal and milk) before I start. And my wife always asks me to bring her a cup of coffee before she gets up.

"When I get home she never fails to have a nice dinner ready and the table cleared, shining and glad to see their daddy. They are both very fine, and my wife teaches them their lessons at home. The house is fashionable. Then my lovely slave-driver insists it's up to me to do the dishes and ready up the house, while she puts the children to bed.

"I wouldn't kick, even at the dishes — but I do kick, silently and with mute curses, at the card games and the town-hall dances. As soon as I see the pimply-faced High school kid arrive, I know my wife is going out for a "pleasant evening."

"Hurry, A. F. of L., and issue cards for husbands! And insist on union hours being observed in the home.

"Non-Union Husband."

Please don't get "mad" with me, Mr. Non-Union husband, but listen while I tell you a truth as old as time. You wouldn't be half as fond of the charming little lady to whom you're married, if she didn't take enough time off to be attractive and keep her contacts with a world outside of pots, pans, mops and dusters, and child-tending and teaching. No, I'm afraid you won't like that, but it's true nevertheless.

If you're wife got up at six, cooked you an elaborate breakfast, tended to the house and children all day, washed the dishes after getting the kids to bed, and then came when you fired her pretty and attractive, and you found yourself sitting opposite a frowsy drudge, you wouldn't be a bit keen on having charming she is.

You would probably begin your letter by saying "My wife is a good woman but she doesn't understand me." So much husbands write those words that I wonder why they don't form a Husbands' Complaint Club and have that little stencil stamped on their stationery.

No man really needs a drudge. She may be as useful as the kitchen sink, but there isn't any flare, mystery, or impelling attraction to her. You aren't proud when you introduce her to your friends, with a ring of pride in your voice, as "My wife."

Good Manners

HATS OFF

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Should gentlemen remove their hats? Is it necessary to remove them in elevators?

F.

A man removes his hat when he enters a room in which there are women. He lifts his hat when a woman bows to him. When he is walking with a woman he raises his hat to anyone to whom his companion bows, or he lifts a man who bows to a woman, he lifts his hat, even if he has never seen the woman before. He lifts his hat when a woman speaks to him to ask him for directions; and if he picks up something that a woman has dropped, he lifts his hat and says "Did you drop this?" or "I believe you lost this." He lifts his hat when he offers a seat to a woman in a car or bus. A man removes his hat in the National flag as it passing in parade .. not only removes his hat but remains bareheaded and standing at attention until the flag has passed. He shows the same respect for the national anthem, replacing his hat, when the last note has been played. And he shows the same respect to the flag or the national anthem of any country in which he is visiting. Some men (especially those who have been brought up in European countries, where it is the custom) stop and remove their hats when a funeral passes.

The rule about elevators is this: men remove their hats in private elevators, but in elevators in a house, a club, an apartment, a hotel, when a woman is in the elevator. Usually too they remove their hats in elevators in department stores. But they usually do not remove their hats in public elevators, elevators in office buildings or they do not remove them in elevators in office buildings or they do not remove them in elevators in office buildings or they do not remove them in

PRISON ATTEMPT PLOT RUMORED

Report Says Second Son of Trotsky Held on Complaint of Workers

Moscow, Jan. 27 (AP)—Serge Sedoff, second son of Leon Trotsky, was reported arrested today upon the denunciation of factory workers at Kramovgorsk, where there was alleged to have been an attempt to poison employees with arsenic paste.
The report was not immediately confirmed officially. It was understood Sedoff had been missing since August.
In Mexico City, Trotsky, once ostracle of Soviet Russia with Nikolai Lenin but now an exile, declared Serge was arrested by the Russian secret police in 1934 and "we are in total ignorance of his fate."

Moscow, Jan. 27 (AP)—Ivan Alexandrovich Knissoff, former Soviet southern railway chief on trial as a confessed Trotskyist plotter, testified today Sergei Kirov had been killed in "thousands" of train wrecks which he organized and accused a Japanese spy ring of others having to inject Russian troops trains with deadly germs.
Knissoff twice identified "Mr. X" as a Japanese agent, one Hirobumi, who he said was a transport expert in Moscow and who formerly lived in London.
The witness, on trial with the former Leningrad Red Radek and fifteen other men for a conspiracy to overthrow the Soviet regime by sabotage and even war, told grim secrets after surprise.
Admitting adjectly to some 3,500 train wrecks during 1935 and 1936, he said they caused 600 persons and injured 194.

Confession of Letters
He identified photostatic copies of two letters which he said he received from "Mr. X" in 1935 and 1936, the first damaging documentary evidence to be introduced. The contents of the letters were not fully disclosed in court.
Knissoff said he said he had received in December of 1935 to form stores, Knissoff declared:

"When I met Mr. X later he reproached me for doing nothing. He said people had to be trained to commit wrecking in wartime.
"He also told me to burn food trains and in October (presumably in 1935) Mr. X told me we might have to poison military trains with bacteria so as to infect the troops."

No Competition with Ladies' College

"We do not," he said, "intend to enter into direct competition with regular ladies' colleges in the country. Our pupils, naturally will be recruited from throughout the Dominion, but probably more points abroad, but we do not intend to adopt too aggressive an attitude in securing registrations. Our object, also, will not be specifically girls' courses. We do not intend to take up or provide classes in Domestic Science, or fit up to the certain finer and advanced stages."

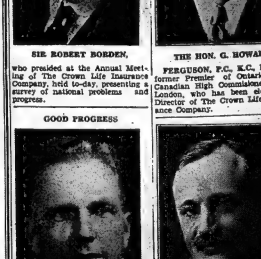
In mellow tones, enlivened with flashes of good natured humour which reflected the optimism felt by every member of the family filled to the progress of the local institution during the past years, Mrs. Harvard covered the work of her late college since assuming office as principal several years ago. Finishing touches to the interior of the corridors without came the drone of classes in session.

Governing Council Sizeable

"Our classes since this new college was constructed are growing year by year. We find the capacity of the institution taxed more for them. The purchase of the Bonter estate recently by the Board of Governors some time ago and after considerable discussion it was decided to acquire this. The setting of the Board was unanimous with Chairman, Mr. H. A. Bonter, K.C., now, of Peterborough, down to the last member. The Board, at present the time was not opportune to construct a new wing on the college here.

"We have at present a total of eighty-four students enrolled here. They come from all parts of Canada, many parts of the world. We have representatives from China, South America, Trinidad. The next country to be represented is Australia, and we have a pupil from Australia in the Bahamas, an ingenious mitzup with a notorious spy ring and for while things look pretty black for Sally and her saviour. But in the end everything is cleared up, not without a generous share of hilarious situations, and Cable is able not only to gather a headlining cable dispatch for his newspaper but also to win the girl.

As may be expected Miss Overland and Cable make a superb romantic team, while excellent support is given the stars by Sara Berle, Franchot Tone and Reginald Mason and others. Not little of the distinctive touches of "Love on the Run" were contributed by the brilliant direction of Woodbridge S. Dyke. He is the man who made "San Francisco" and "Rose Marie" "huff said!



Excellent Features

Supplementing the feature will be "Love Old Style", a very funny Stan Personality Comedy, Paramount Pictorial always interesting as well as instructive and the Lloyd Smithy", a tuneful screen Lad-ful that will appeal to every member of the family.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Gold Diggers of 1937"

"Gold Diggers of 1937," latest in the famous series of every-other-year musical comedies made by Warner Bros., opens today at the Capitol Theatre, with Dick Powell and Joan Blondell, the newlyweds, as its stars. This wonderful picture that has surpassed all others as marvelous screen entertainment is shown at no increase in prices.

In fact, the film predecessors, a lot of fast-stepping, lovely-to-look-at dancing girls trained by Busby Berkeley (no less than 200 of them this time), and is interspersed with such hit songs as "Speed Limit" and "I Hadn't Anyone Till You."

Victor Moore, popular comedian of the New York musical comedy stage, helps support the Powell-Blondell star combination. There is also Lee Dixon, another eccentric dancer from Broadway, making his screen debut, and adding extra torch singer named Rosalind Marquis, Glenda Farrell, Osgood Perkins, Olin Howland, Irene Ware and Charles Richman.

The story, it is said, has to do with "Hollywood," which is here cited as a life insurance salesman, putting over a million-dollar policy on the life of Moore, who is a theatrical producer. Moore takes a shine to the lad and makes him head of his dramatic ventures.

This gives an opportunity for the use of some immense settings, such as a big convention hall in Atlantic City, a whole theatre, and a great estate on Long Island.

Joan Blondell and Glenda Farrell are chorus girls engaged at a salary that is a new high in fun-making, love-making, and money-making, coddling all their previous performances as gold diggers. And there's love interest aplenty, with Joan and Dick romancing, and the brash new comedy team of Farrell and Moore doing a Mr. and Mrs. act the end.

The picture was directed by Lloyd Bacon, Those who saw early showings of the first of the 1937 proclaim it the best of the series, all of which have been highly successful.

Added Treats

As if this grand and glorious feature wasn't enough we are showing two swell shorts a merrie Melody "Toy Town Hall" and a sport item "Lizzy Spills," to complete this splendid show.

AT THE STRAND

"Love on the Run"

Romance runs rampant, adventure has its fling and love conquers all in the new M. G. M. comedy melodrama, "Love on the Run." Now on the Bell screen, until Friday, matinee daily. Teaming their two calmiserating and colorful personalities, Joan Crawford and Clark Gable, in a dashing tale of modern doings by ultra-modern folk, the new picture provides excitement and laughter in an substantial melange of an adventure a fortune-hunting nobleman, two American correspondents and a brace of flaming crooks.

As a contrast to her recent hilarious role in "The Gorgeous Hussy" the versatile Miss Crawford in this picture appears as a distinctly 1937 stream-lined-model girl dressed in those dazzling creations of Adrian that we wear so well. She is supposed to be Sally Parker, daughter of an American millionaire besieged by the nobility of the foreign capitals, and the looks every inch the part.

When Sally, practically at the altar, learns that her fitted husband-to-be is just another fortune hunter she walks out on the wedding whereupon Gable and love come in with a bang. Gable is a master of the mechanics of which he knows only enough to step on and open the throttle. Gable gets Sally in the air and they fly away. The theft involves an ingenious mitzup with a notorious spy ring and for while things look pretty black for Sally and her saviour. But in the end everything is cleared up, not without a generous share of hilarious situations, and Cable is able not only to gather a headlining cable dispatch for his newspaper but also to win the girl.

As may be expected Miss Overland and Cable make a superb romantic team, while excellent support is given the stars by Sara Berle, Franchot Tone and Reginald Mason and others. ALBERT COLLEGE

Seated in his cheery office at the College this morning while a bright winter sun streamed through the casement windows, Principal Bert Howard told at length of the negotiations that led to the decision for some time past in an effort to secure additional quarters for his constantly growing classes.

"We do not," he said, "intend to enter into direct competition with regular ladies' colleges in the country. Our pupils, naturally will be recruited from throughout the Dominion, but probably more points abroad, but we do not intend to adopt too aggressive an attitude in securing registrations. Our object, also, will not be specifically girls' courses. We do not intend to take up or provide classes in Domestic Science, or fit up to the certain finer and advanced stages."

New Era Demands Co-education

"As to the adoption of coeducation again, it comes naturally although considerable thought has been given the matter by the Board of Governors, and by myself and faculty. In earlier days the fair sex was perhaps frowned upon. But today we have women in the world, a new social order. Women are taking their own particular place in the world. They demand the same privileges as the men. The social problem today is far different and than it was when the same system was in force over seventy years ago. We do not, however, anticipate any trouble regarding this. The reason for the discontinuance of the co-educational system at that time could perhaps be explained by the fact that it was believed then that there was a greater demand for a boys' school, and one for boys only. It was a passing phase of thought."

86th Anniversary Observance

As has been previously stated, this year Albert College will mark the 86th anniversary of progress. Suitable commemorative observances for this anniversary will be made by a former student, Dr. E. E. Smith, now engaged in missionary work with Mrs. Smith at the Christian Hospital, China, a graduate of 1893. Dr. Smith has consented to furnish a brief history of the Classical Room of the college and has forwarded the manuscript. Not for a rich man, this cash donation has been taken from his salary after a long service. The contract for the work will be given the local Hoodless Company in the way of new furniture.

History of Albert College.

Albert College, a residential school for young men and boys for the past seventy years, is an institution of higher learning with a long and honorable history behind it. Its reputation has been established by the work it has done for its sons and daughters, a century of higher education under Christian influences. From 1866 to 1938 it possessed university powers. Affiliation under the various Methodist bodies in 1884. Albert became incorporated with Victoria University and since that time it has carried on its work as a Methodist college in affiliation with the university. During its history, both as university and college, Albert has held conspicuous place among the educational institutions of the Dominion. It includes among its graduates some of the distinguished men and women of Canada, and it has given to foreign missionary fields many of its gifted students.

Graduates Scattered Far

In its service to the British Empire it has given three hundred officers and students and twenty nursing sisters who responded to the call of the Great War. Twenty-eight made the supreme sacrifice, while eight received the Military Cross and three the Military Medal.

Its students have graduated from Albert to Queen's Parliamentarians, members of the State Legislatures in the United States and have attained high distinction in other fields.

Our aim," declares Principal Howard simply, "is to provide a college where a young man, and now young ladies may receive sound intellectual education enabling the students to make their place as intelligent citizens of this country, with the ideals and vision of those things that make for true and abiding greatness. We aim to help them discover those possibilities which God has given them in the sphere of activity in which they may reach their greatest service to mankind, and their greatest service to humanity. Albert College aims to be not specifically trained for as well as for business, the university and the professions."

A Fine Old Residence

The Robinson estate acquired by the Board of Governors of Albert College, as announced this morning by Principal Rev. Bert Howard, which will be used as quarters for girl students of the College under the coeducational system being instituted by the College this fall term, is one of the oldest and best known properties in Belleville. Built by the hitcher of the spacious home, generally described as a "Mansion" by local residents, it is a masterpiece of the Builder's and cabinetmaker's art. Not only in the woodwork but in the plastering and joining trades have workmen excelled.

Built One Half Century Ago

The home, according to estimates of older residents and those connected with the building trades in the city, cost originally in the neighborhood of $25,000. It was built by Mr. Smith, the former contractor - builder of Forin Hospital, under and specifications of the late Mr. Charles Bell, brother-in-law to John Bell. It is believed to be just a few years over the half century mark in age.

It was in this building erected that Mr. Chas. Bell took his young bride, the late Miss Robinson, one time resident, of the Trent Road, in the first home location where Albert College now stands. Following residence here for some years Mr. and Mrs. Bell removed to Montreal and the house, comprising about two acres, passed into ex-Alderman, the late A. Robinson, acquired as a home for his family and lived there for many years. It was from here was buried, and for some time afterward members of the family continued residence there.

Following complete renovation and repairing of the house, it will provide accommodation for approximately thirty girl students, who are to be the first classes of Albert College under the coeducational system.

41 Lakes and Streams Stocked In Hastings County Last Year Reported at Anglers' Meeting

Establishment of Another Hatchery in County Contemplated

PRESERVE MOOTED

Directors Named From Which Officers Will be Elected

Forty-one lakes and streams in Hastings County were re-stocked with game fish for angling purposes during the year of 1936, it was announced by Chairman Dr. Van Blaklee at the annual meeting of the Belleville and District Anglers Association meeting held in the Y.M.C.A. last evening, when the customary year's reports were received and the election of the Board of Directors held for the ensuing year. Chairman Dr. Blaklee also announced that the Department of Game and Fisheries for the Province of Ontario, was seriously contemplating the establishment of another fish hatchery in Hastings County, to be located, as all probability in the vicinity of Coe Hill.

President J. E. Shortt, who for the past four years has guided the destinies of the local Anglers' Association and saw the organization grow to its present successful position in the county, thanked the 73 or more members present and reviewed the year's activities of the Association. "Last year we had 163 paid members in our organization, the largest in its history. We had a prolific year of re-stocking of our streams and lakes and also a biological survey of local waters. I understand the Ontario Government proposes to establish a game preserve at Kaladar and Madoc Township, which will add much to the future of game hunting in this district," stated President Shortt as he explained the game preserve would later be given thorough outlined after surveys of the county had been completed.

Ask Survey of Bay

"This spring year we intend to more fully press again the need for a complete survey of the Bay of Quinte waters and the possibility of it with bass and lunge. We are also going to ask for the replenishment of jack rabbits and pheasants for hunters sake," suggested Mr. Shortt as he added, that a move was being made to diminish in the commercial fishing in the Bay of Quinte. Secretary-Treasurer Irvine Hefkey made his annual report, which showed, that 143 members had joined the Association, some of whom resided in the United States. A bank balance was also announced showing the Association in good financial circumstances.

The most interesting report was made by Dr. Van Blaklee, chairman of the re-stocking committee. "During 1936 we had 42 applications filed for fish re-stocking, forty and fingerlings, of which we filled. The remaining one will be taken care of in the spring season. This is a marked increase in the re-stocking of our local waters over 1935, when 24 applications were filed," pointed out Dr. Blaklee. "Local streams and lakes were restocked with speckled and brown trout, lake trout, bass, pickerel, small mouthed bass, pickerel and pike. "We have two streams, Rawdon Creek and Fraser Creek, that have been stocked for years to date with trout and are concretely "closed streams". As you may recall persons were convicted for not removing minnows from these creeks last year. It was at the suggestion of the Government we make two streams out of the four for the re-stocking of trout streams and we named Rawdon and Fraser Creeks; they are being adequately protected," announced Dr. Blaklee. The chairman went on to say, that a minimum of 10,000 fingerlings and yearlings of all classes of trout had been placed in the various local streams and lakes.

Thirteen Lakes Stocked

Thirteen lakes in the northern part of the county received yearling fingerlings of lake trout while lunge yearlings were placed in the Bay of Quinte and four other Hastings County lakes as well as Prince Edward County. "In Weselemkon Lake we had parent bass yearlings placed in lakes in the vicinity," ment. The Government sent out over 76 million game fish as well as fingerlings last year in trout streams," added Dr. Blaklee as he stated that enormous numbers of lunge and bass fry as well as other game fry were provided for the purpose also.

The result of the fishing competition held by the Association during 1936 resulted in the following being awarded prizes last night:—

Largest pickerel—Gerald Lynch, 7 1-4 pounds, 26 1-2 inches.

These prizes were only open to club members, but a non-member brought in a 4 1-2 pound small mouthed bass, however.

Directors Named—

The election of the Board of Directors saw 18 nominated for office with ten elected. For the Board of Directors the officers of the Belleville and District Game and Fish Protective Association will be subsequently selected at a subsequent meeting of the board. Those elected last night were:—J. E. Shortt, Dr. Van Blaklee, Capt. W. H. Bolton, Irvine Hefkey, Ralph Weese, Harold Legale, Chief Alex. Kidd, Rossmore Chas. Bishop and Fred Croft.

During the evening four reels of motion pictures, showing various phases of game fishing delighted the large number of interested anglers present, one of which was of Jasper Jordan, Alberta, Fishing on Lake Isabeau, the various species of trout and the better methods employed in angling were clearly demonstrated in each picture. Films were supplied by the Canadian National Railways. The films and principles of the Belleville and District Anglers' Association were commented on by Game Warden Herb McCabe, who spoke a few words to the gathering and complimented the Association upon its untiring efforts.

REDMEN LOSE TO PETERBORO IN A BRUISING BATTLE

Score is 12-6 And Cheap Goal Starts The Parade

ST. LOUIS HURT

Dazzling Exhibition of Combination Plays Given By Petes

Peterborough, Ont., Jan. 27.—(CP)—Belleville Redmen dropped a 12-4 decision here last night, before a big crowd of fans, the Petes having an edge in the first and third frames to pile up a safe lead.

It was a fast, open game and the quints crew looked better than the speedy Petes dished up smart combination and shooting in close. They had a 5-3 lead in the first frame, were held two all in the second and had a 5-1 margin in the third. Play was even throughout.

Watt had an off night in goal for the visitors, but had little chance on many that beat him.

His defence was fair, though the last sticking home gave him high borne in close on passing plays.

The Quints forwards all worked hard, with St. Louis, Morgan and the two Jackson's being most effective.

Calladine, Burton Vitarelli and McDougall all starred for the winners, with the defence and Goalie playing a steady game also.

Belleville scored from the first face off, but the Petes later took command and ran in five before the finish, the first line getting four of them. Play was even and exciting in the middle chapter, each side tallying twice and there being no penalties.

Outside of C. Jackson goal in the third, the home team looked better off defensively and rapped home five counters before the finish.

The teams— Belleville— Goal, Watts, defence Bentley and Murphy, centre, St. Louis, wings, Burton and Richardson; Reserves, Barrie, C. Jackson, W. Jackson and McGuire.

Peterborough—Goal, Clarke, defence, Magee and Hannah; centre, Calladine, wings, Vitarelli and Burton. alternates McDougall, Orelghton. Gervais, Hall and Richardson.

In the second fixture West Huntingdon played up to their last year's form when they toppled the league leading Glen Ross crew in a closely fought battle by a score of 2-1. Robinson flashy centre man of Glen Ross started things going with Friday Fraser but this was offset by the finesse of Rodgers and Dan Cook from the "Westies" making the team shoot when on their own score. There was no score in the first period but play popped up plenty after Dalland nicked the first counter for the "diversides." The final period was fairly particularly after H. Mott scored the tying goal. Both teams opened up and Mott got his second counter which won the game for Huntingdon after B. Hagerman was taken out of the Glen Ross crew with a badly cut chin when he was struck by the puck. J. Armstrong went in to replace and turned in a fine game.

Lineups:

West Huntingdon: Goal Sarles; defence Reid and McGowan; centre H. Mott; wings Wright and Thompson; subs Thompson and Stanley.

Glen Ross: Goal B. Hagerman; defence Armstrong and Brown; centre Robinson; wings C. Fraser and Dalnard; subs H Brooks, Roy Brooks, Hamilton, Scott and Dalnard.

Referee: Wallace and Townsend.

WEST HUNTINGDON SECOND PLACERS IN HASTINGS LOOP

Defeat League Leading Glen Ross Squad by 3-2

FOXBORO WINS

Bethel Weakened by Absence of Their Centre Player

Stirling, Jan. 27 (Special)—West Huntingdon after losing their first three games in the Hastings' County Rural League are now resting comfortably in second position in the league standing by virtue of their 2-1 victory over the league leading Glen Ross team. Foxboro moved into third position as they downed the Bethel "Crewmates" 7-3 in a game, that was far more thrilling than the score indicated. The ice was in excellent condition and the spectators of the league were given ample opportunity to show their wares. Both games saw all players travelling at top speed for the entire route. Foxboro with an overwhelming lead however, faded a bit in the third period as Bethel came on fighting to reduce the lead. At one stage of the game Foxboro were no less than six goals to the good. Never-the-less much credit is due the "Irishers" who rallied in the final period to show their mettle and beat by two goals.

The Games

Foxboro with their shifty front line of Lee, Ronsky and Hannah gave a great display of smooth combination and their brilliant passing plays were a treat to every one but the boys on the Bethel team who were weakened considerably by the absence of Parks their centre man and injuries to Ray Dickey the star of the league's leading goal getters. Ronsky, Lee, Hannah and several times during the they got Dickey's measure and literally poured the shots in after that. Let go the first counter on a pass from Ronsky, while Ronsky nicked the next two unassisted. Faux finally broke away to beat Binfield on a clever shot to the right corner and the period ended 5-1 for Foxboro. Starting with renewed speed in the middle period Foxboro ran their score up to six with three fast ones, Hannah getting the first and Don Lee the next two, Hannah getting seven on a lone rush.

Bethel had an admirable fighting spirit and came back strong in the last period when they had a goal to the good and after adding down the big lead by two goals with the credit going to Ray Dickey, Faux and Faux. Final score Foxboro 7, Bethel 3.

Lineups:

Bethel: Goal Everett; Dickey; defence Faux and Sills; centre Carscarley; wings Culhane and Lupton; subs Bolton, Dickey, Tapps and Guay.

Foxboro: Goal Binfield; defence Guay and Shargo; centre Lee; wings Hannah and Ronsky; subs Dunn, Lee, Guay, Wall, Simms and Sunderland.

Second Game

In the second fixture West Huntingdon defeated Foxboro 3-2; don't-pay pay to miss hockey games, regardless as to the class or category, these days. All over the hockey realm the boys are adding plenty of spice and power with added speed and distinctive and literally packing 'em in all over. For instance out in the County League at Stirling, where the Yachts Club "Sailors" played Stirling to a four-all tie on Monday night, a couple of good young fellows were ousted, while at the local Arena in an interscholastic game, between the B.C.I. and V.A. students and the Napanee College quint, a real fistic encounter was included in the night's hostilities. In the pro grames the boys are going to town in the same route while last week's R. C. A. F. Belleville Redmen scrap is still the talk of the town. We are not complaining in the little riot, but a little more gusto and the odd fistic outbreaks and gobble 'em up like hot cakes. As long as the players don't suffer personal injury to any great extent, what's a black eye or bloody nose amount, to as especially if they are playing before packed houses.

In order to more fully acquaint the local hockey following with the personel of the R.C.A.F. 'Fliers' we procured the numbers worn by each player and their respective sick names. Naturally the fans would like to be able to call the various players by their sick names, especially while they're back-checking. There's the set-up of the "Airmen". In goal there's Jack Gagnon wearing No. 1; Johnnie (One Man Gang) Lalonde is No. 2; "Carl" Carling-Kelly is No. 3; "Cy" Beck No. 4; "Dan" Cowley No. 5; Eric McNeeley No. 6; "Herb" Laing No. 7; Frank' Lowery No. 8; "Flash' Lecompte No. 9; Frank McCosker No. 10; Stan Partridge No. 11 and "Windy" Wingate No. 12. With the exception of Lalonde's monicker "One Man Gang" which we attribute to him, all of the other nicknames accompanied the Fliers from their previous places of residence. The "Airmen" meet the reinforced Trenton intermediates for the first time this season on the Arena tonight and judging from the inspired atmosphere that surrounds the newly organized Trenton club today, the fans can look for fire-works before the curtain is lowered this evening. The scrap in the Trenton camp for berths—enter the win column, but very few had the day and nerve to tonight is Trenton's big moment.

The Trenton intermediates are quite peeved over the back-checking they received in Peterboro last week. "We can take it, but were forced to take a team of untried players to Peterboro at the last minute. From now on our club will be in their battling every club in the loop and with the addition of two players from the Prince Edward County loop and another trip to Peterboro on deck we'll show them all a fighting team from this date forward. And that includes tonight's game with the 'Fliers' at the Belleville Arena," said H. H. Norrington, secretary of the Trenton Club today as he added the team is not going to be the door mat of the other group clubs for any longer, whatever that means.

Last season some really fine exhibitions of hockey were supplied local fans in the senior interscholastic hockey group. At the beginning of the season this year, however, the players and clubs were not up to standard, owing to the lack of practice but today the games in the Bay of Quinte interscholastic group are top-notch with the result better hockey is being played. The game. In these interscholastic games the participants give everything the game. Minds Alma Mater and the fans are naturally the ones to benefit.

Last evening the Belleville Angels held sway at the Y.M.C.A. It was a revelation to know that 16 boys have belonged to the organization and that at last a definite move forward in better gamed fashion and facilities was "at last assured. All persons in the Hastings Prince Edward and surrounding counties, who are interested in fishing should attend a meeting at the Y.M.C.A. headquarters of the local organization, under Joe Sheriff and his very able assistants. If the anglers do not want to join, all well and good, but for their own good and the assurance of better fishing, every angler in these parts should be a paid-up member. To head Dr. Van Blaklee's report, he has been in charge of re-stocking of local waters for the province, and the re-stocking last Imagine, 41 streams and lakes in this community were re-stocked with game fish, and fixed for the usual benefit of all, who like to fish, especially while being taken. Anglers' Association is to be compliments, for the good work they have today is beginning to show results in all its phases. The Association also is now in the re-splendent of game and last night announced that a game preserve has been proposed by the Government of Prince County. Keep up the good work boys.

A typical old-time Belleville-Trenton hockey battle was staged here last evening despite the 13 to 4 reverse. "Speedy" St. Louis returned home displaying a badly-lagged head, beneath the bandages which are being torn strictly within the remainder of the roster say they are not to be worn in back-checking. "We held the Petes scoreless for the first ten minutes and then weakened and were forced to go after by the opposition. Speaking of front-runners the Petes simply went to town the rest of the game and to score five goals. In the second period again we scored first, and had the better of the play throughout, but the third period spoiled our chances. We'll get ours back on Friday night during the return game. However, I've elicted Manager Thomas today," It's a case of—it's always rough weather when the good Belleville and Peterboro fellers get together, especially when they get together on the ice with a hockey stick in their hands.

McTigue Is Not a '1 Man Gang'

Former World's Titleholder Given General Beating up by Thugs

A quintette of New York thugs staged a vicious and well-organized attack on Mike McTigue, former middleweight champion of the world, in the subway train, the other day and succeeded in handing the former titleholder such a fancy shellacking before making their getaway McTigue, who as his heyday was one of the most popular champions of the squared circle, took a terrific beating of his career and was exceedingly fortunate to escape with his life.

All of which brings to mind the fate of McTigue's opponents in one of his most sensational battles, the Battling Georgeless middleweight, who was found stabbed to death in a flop house in a small town.

Gunar McTigue, then champion, one of the hardest scraps of his career, in fact some of the sport writers went so far as to say the dark one bested Mike in the battle of the town. He was all-

FIGHTING FINN

(Associated Press Staff Writer)

New York, Jan. 27.—(AP)—Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig are busily nursing their old feud. . . Joe gave a long answer when the baseball writers night before last. . . All good baseball writers were there. . . But the Babe was not invited. . . "Guess McCarthy" didn't like church" he added. . .

Joe's backers say the fight started over the Babe's feeling that he should manage the Yankees instead of Marty McManus, because of the notion that Ruth's bitter about not getting a big league manager's job is ridiculous.

Colonel Rupert's refusal to let him go to the National League when the Reds wanted him ranked high on the list of Ruth's chances of getting a major league shot are slim.

Our guess is that comedian Al Schacht once a major league pitcher, sold himself to the Jersey City Club to Clark Griffith of Washington, after letters by Griffith about "A great young pitcher called Schacht" and signing him sight unseen.

Jim Londos is wrestling in South Africa and does all right. . . But as "Jeem" will tell you he has to do at least all right because most of his money's sunk in a New York hotel.

As supplied to Biggar and Crawford by Financial Service.

There has been a tendency of late to favor the very low-priced issues, that is those stocks selling anywhere from a few cents to a dollar or two a share. This would appear to indicate that the more speculative element of the trading public is becoming interested in the market. Some of the better class issues are being neglected in favor of the more speculative ones.

A well secured paper stock which appears to be behind the remainder of the group is St. Lawrence Corporation "A" stock McCuaig Bros. and Co. This company's two principal assets are its holdings of practically all the common stock of the Canadian Pulp and Paper Company and St. Lawrence Paper Mills In the case of the former its interest represents a first charge on the assets and earnings, while the common stock control of St. Lawrence Paper Mills has undoubtedly great potential value. At dividend 15 hooks a large block of the common stock of the Lake St. Gabriel Paper Company, one of the best situated of the newsprint producers. Accumulated arrears of dividends on the "A" preferred stock now amount to approximately $11 a share, and it seems obvious that, with improving conditions in the industry, arrangements will be made in the not-distant future to pay at least these back dividends, in which case the cost of the stock would be substantially reduced. It is estimated that when the price of newsprint $5.00 a ton higher, the corporation can earn around $3.00 a share on the "A" shares.

Royalite Oil—Dalhousie Sterling Pacific No. 4 and ARCA.

The weekly progress report on drilling the Turner Valley shows Area southwest of High River, drilling out cement. The casing was recently set at 3900 feet, a short distance on top of the limestone. Interesting results are expected at Area within the next hundred feet. It is continuing to reveal very encouraging geological conditions.

Dalhousie No. 8, which is controlled by Royalite, is drilling at 5400 feet and expect to strike the lime about the 10th February. Work here is continuing to reveal very encouraging conditions and the management are very hopeful as to the outlook of striking a crude oil gusher at 6600 feet. Royalite Oil has many other sites quite close to Dalhousie No. 8 on which drilling will commence if this well is completed as a producer.

Sterling Pacific Well No. 4 is standing cemented for seven days after a delay due to the extremely cold weather. A derrick at No. 5 is being built.

TORONTO INDUSTRIALS

James E. Madden, Napanee.

Louisville's exhausted police force gained a respite today when Mayor Lee announced the conflict over jurisdiction between local and federal authorities had been settled. He said 200 federal troops who arrived yesterday would share police duties with patrolmen sent to Louisville by airplane and special train from other cities in response to his hurried radio appeal last night.

Cincinnati watched hopefully as the river inched downward from the high stages which had halted its power and water plants, spread fire, privation and threat of disease.

The water supply was rationed and citizens carried it from "water stations" in pails, jars and bottles. Some drinking water came from other cities by tank car.

Movement in Indiana

Mass movements of refugees from flood stricken cities in Indiana gained impetus as Evansville and other cities prepared for the crest of the yellow waters, expected within 36 hours. More than 75,000 had been driven from their homes.

Already the estimates of houseless and property damage exceeded the figures for the 1927 Mississippi River disaster and lent credence to the statement of Dr. Cary Grayson, Red Cross chairman, who described the present flood as "the greatest emergency the nation and the Red Cross have faced since the World War."

As the flood waters in the lower Ohio River Valley paused in their rise to new record heights, an army of 2,000 men directed by United States engineers worked feverishly against time along the 300-mile Mississippi riverfront.

INVESTIGATION OF DERAILMENT PRESSED

RELIEF WORKERS RUSH AID TO 700,000 FLOOD REFUGEES

With President Roosevelt's order to "step on it" ringing in their ears an army of flood relief workers are fighting frantically along a 1,000-mile water-swept front in the United States flood zone to stem rising danger of famine and epidemics among the 700,000 refugees, many of whom were already suffering from hunger, cold and disease. The death list was climbing daily, the list of homeless and flood-stricken hourly. Greatest threat of all was the grim spectre of pestilence. At the left, a nurse, Gertrude Walters, is shown taking the temperature of one fever-ridden sufferer, one of the refugees from Wheeling, W. Va. Part of the Evansville, Ind., army of homeless is pictured at top finding sanctuary in a warehouse on high ground. JUDGES RESERVE COURT JUDGMENT

Appeal Court Will Ponder on Two Phases of Millar Will

Toronto, Jan. 27 (CP)—Ontario Court of Appeal today pondered the baby race clause of Charles Vance Millar's freak will as mothers hoping to share in the $500,000 left by the sportsman-lawyer waited anxiously for the court judgment.

Judgment on appeals against Mr. Justice W. E. Middleton's rulings on the will which left the fortune of the Toronto mother having the most babies in the ten years after Millar's death, was reserved by the Appeal Court yesterday. Mr. Justice Middleton found illegitimate children were ineligible and Mrs. Pauline Mae Clarke appealed this decision.

Appeal against Mr. Justice Middleton's judgment the baby race clause was valid was made by Millar's next-of-kin, Alexander Butcher and Arabella Watt, Port Burwell, who claimed the derby was against common morality. The court reserved judgment on both these appeals and also on application by Mrs. Clarke's counsel for a separate inquiry into the legitimacy of her children, five of whom are said to have been born while she was estranged from her husband.

BACK AGAINST WATER

With a shortage of drinking water already critical, Cincinnati, victim of the record breaking U.S. floods, is also threatened with a lack of electric light power should the swirling waters rise and damage transformers. This electrician is working frantically at the switches in the Cincinnati powerhouse as flood waters rise about his feet, to keep the power supply intact.

Every one of these houses is empty, its residents having fled to higher ground as swollen waters of the Ohio river swept into Louisville, Ky., and forced the entire population to evacuate. As can be seen, this view of Louisville, taken from the air, flood water has reached to the second stories of many of the houses, leaving each deep. Louisville completely cleared of its population as the waters continued to rise.

The heaviest snowfall in many years confined the former ruler to his retreat in exile, under doctors' orders to remain indoors until fully recovered from a recent influenza attack.

The Amsterdam Telegraph reported Wilhelm so feared recurrent illness that no member of the household with any symptom of the ailment was allowed near him.

SUGAR BEET ONCE GREW WILD

Where the sugar beet originated is a matter of some uncertainty, but most authorities are agreed that it was first found growing wild in southern and middle Asia, and it is known that it was cultivated by the ancients in southern Europe and northern Africa. It was rediscovered in semi-modern times in vineyards and old fields along the shores of the Mediterranean Sea.

DAILY SHORT STORY—
Make-Up

By Hal G. Vermes

"Proof guy of you claims the ad is to make a hot gamble then?" says Madder Mackerel.

"The only one you would lay a nickel on!" says Harry, the Flea-head, "is the blonde."

"You are right," says Madder. "I would bet my life that she wins the event."

"Make it a bet, boy," I. "Make it ten bucks."

Madder is perfectly willing to bet ten bucks on the blonde or ten times ten. Rub-bers are takers' because nobody knows who will win the novelty event with eighty lady jocks mounted on eight maiden fillies. It is a big drawing card but, as Boston Bertha says, with all female riding the hider, who knows what will happen! Maybe they will ride backwards or as most of the lady jocks are chorus girls, maybe they will go into a dance routine in the middle of the stretch.

But though Madder cannot find anybody to bet, he is very much excited about the event just the same and he is rooting for Ila Pryde, the only blonde in the event.

"The girl will win this race," he says, "gets $250 bonus and besides a three-year contract to ride around the ovals here on the West coast. And as for me—been an unemployed chorus girl for the past four years, she needs that dough and that job very much."

"Do you want us to scout down and cry? I say, it's a sad and awful story of the poor little working girl."

"It is impossible to wring a tear out of you kooky cookies," Madder says. "Anyway, speaking me own dead it looks build kill."

"Yeah?" says Harry, as the girls go by on their mounts in the post parade, with the dames and jockeys that three gals has got. I do not think they would have to deal even on a next island."

"Not with Madder around," I say and cuss.

"It is enough!" yells Madder, finally losing up his cool kidding. "I has got to win this heat by fair means or foul!"

"Your way is okay," I explain, "for the stewards has very wisely decided to suspend all rules for this race because they figure the gals would only break them, anyway. So, no matter what happens, no rider will be disqualified; they will instead to give the rest of the field galloping space and they can all go for the fall position whenever they like. And as there is a couple of rough and ready babes in this, I believe me, gentlemen, we are going to see some liveries, and by only hope nobody gets hurt."

And then we cut the chatter because the kids are all in position at the barrier. The starter clangs the bell and they are off.

Ila Pryde gets off to a beautiful start, but just before the clubhouse turn, the three following bider go for her in a gang. As soon as they are up with her, they all turn in sharp and try to push her into the rail. For a second it looks like she is going to have a nasty fall, but she waggles out of it somehow and swings around the turn, though now the rest of the field is ahead of her.

Then the two cowgirls who are in the lead start fighting for the rail position and in the mix-up they both go down in the dust and their mounts run off riderless. I am afraid some one is hurt but when I train my glasses on them I see that they get up okay and all on the rail; and as the pack goes flying by them they bodil'ized having like their hearts would break.

Now the field goes around the far turn with Ila Pryde way back in fifth position and it looks like she will finish up last or thereabouts. But as they swing into the home stretch, she has moved forwards the grandstand and the finish line; Ila gives her mount the best plenty and moves up alongside the bike in fourth place. She runs neck and neck for a second and then the other bide drops back. Ila now goes after the third horse and when she catches up the same thing happens. Then she has even with the second hide and she goes flying along with the fighting for the lead and she gets it. And to everybody's surprise she romps home the first hundred yards and wins ten lengths ahead of the pack.

As she comes off the field, the crowd rushes in with cameras, flowers for the bide, a silver cup and besides a dozen orchids which Madder wants to present her with. But suddenly Boston Bertha Cobb breaks through the mob, and galloping up to the paddock with me and Madder chasing after her.

"Why Sugar," Madder exclaims lifting her off the mag. "why all the wrong when you have won the race, a big thrills and a boy?"

"When I bought up to each one of the girls," she explains, "I saw a Madders shoulder. I whispered a little white lie to them that Clark Gable was in the stand. So Marie held up her horse to look—and I and Alice slowed down so the wind wouldnt spoil her wave; and Millie and the rest held back that they got out their vanity cases and made up."

"So that is how you won the race," says Madder. "And it was a clever idea, indeed. But still, I cannot understand why you are crying your pretty head out."

"Because Clark Gable really is in the stand," she says. "And look at me—I'm a sight!"

MARMORA

Marmora, Jan. 27.—The annual vestry meeting of St. Paul's Church was held in the parish hall on Monday evening under the presidency of Rural Dean A. R. Caldwell. The attendance was the largest in many years. R. J. TARZAN'S QUEST

(Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service)

As the fierce Bukena warriors closed in to capture him, Tarzan stood with folded arms, ignoring them. He knew that if he sought to escape or give battle, a dozen spear points would transfix him. And from the fringe of villagers rose hostile cries.

Meanwhile, Jane retrieved her bag from the luggage compartment and disappeared beneath the plane to exchange the restricting skirts of civilization for a costume appropriate to the jungle. Soon she returned to find Brown and Prince Sborov quarreling.

"My rank entitles me to leadership," the prince was shouting. "Rot!" Brown grunted; "you're rank all right." Jane interrupted: "We must have a leader all will obey." Then Tibor spoke up timidly: "You, Milady, know more about the jungle than any of us."

HAD AGONISING PAINS IN HER BACK

Free From Pain Since Taking Kruschen

"Like many other sufferers from backache and rheumatic ailments, this woman decided to try Kruschen Salts in a last attempt to obtain relief from pain. To her surprise, the pains did grow less, and in a few months the backache had disappeared. Having made sure of the results, she now writes as follows:—"I was almost sure sciatica I had acquiring pains in my back, and could not turn in bed. During that time I tried various remedies, but obtained no relief, and was seriously considering going into hospital. However, seeing a case similar to mine described in an advertisement for Kruschen, I thought I would try it, and was more than surprised to find the pain getting less, and I have been taking Kruschen for four months, and would not be without it for anything. I must say I am free, from these dreadful pains."

(Mrs.) R. C.

Kruschen is an excellent diuretic —that is, it helps to stimulate kidney functions. When kidneys are restored to healthy normal action, poisonous waste is properly eliminated, the blood-stream is purified, and you get welcome relief from the dragging pains of backache.

FIVE ARRESTED

Gordon Absent District

In the morning darkened, automobiles three speed after squad of armed officers into the village and its environs. As authorities, determined to give Bernard no chance of shooting his way through a second cordon.

In Quebec, where police had been holding five "material witnesses" since Monday night, they announced the five latest persons to be picked up included Jeanne Bernard, Simone Bernier and Simone Bacon, Quebec City girls.

The trio's possible association with the case was not revealed. They were taken into custody late last night with Mrs. Bernard and Fernand Bernard. Previously, headquarters had been holding five women found in the St. John Street rooming house where the outlaws shot it out with the police.

Escapes in Alleyway

From the cellar of the house, while bullets were cutting down his pal and the detectives, Bernard escaped through a side door into an alleyway. That flight from there brought reports of him from dozens of places in Quebec, including a harbor ship bound for Europe and for a shave.

Then, early today, a government snowplow operator telephoned the Provincial police to say Bernard had accosted him near Champigny, seven miles west of here, to ask for his shovel. Refused a bullet, the operator said, he handed them over to Bernard, who slipped them on apparently frozen feet and set off toward St. Augustin.

ACTOR WOUNDED

Wounded During Dress Rehearsal

The opera is to have its premiere February 4.

"The bullet quite distraught over this," Tibbett said. "It was a most unfortunate occurrence."

Among those to be questioned today at Tibbett's home will be Helen Jepson, soprano, who was on duty on the stage when the stabbing occurred.

The scene in the opera, which ended Sterndl's career, was one that after it was played, has been rehearsed many times and had always gone off without incident. Because this was a dress rehearsal and the opera must be letter perfect it was decided to have Tibbett stop through the bit again.

Tibbett, playing the part of Guido Franceschini, villain of the opera, was to stab Joseph Lerner, playing Pietro, while two henchmen of Franceschini held him.

Sees Sight of Blood

Tibbett said he held the dagger a real one always, point in toward the wrist, as he made a swift lunge. But as he stepped back he saw blood on Sterndl's hand. The singer protested the cut was slight. He was treated by two physicians, then still protesting that he was all right, was taken to a hospital. There he died.

Last night half the opera cast, Tibbett among them, went to Newark, N.J., to sing "La Traviata," and just before he went on the stage Tibbett was told of Sterndl's death.

Assistant District Attorney Sylvester Ossenino said he was convinced the matter was purely accidental.

SOCIAL INSURANCE ACT UNCONSTITUTIONAL

Privy Council Rules Labor Hours, Marketing, Wage Measures Invalid

Legislation on Trade Practices is Found Valid

SIX APPEALS HEARD

Rights of Provinces to Legislate For Selves Referred to

London, Jan. 28 (CP)—Announcement by the Canadian parliament that the unemployment insurance, trade of labor, minimum wage and limitation of hours acts are unconstitutional today by the judicial committee of the privy council.

Legislation on trade practices arising from the recommendations made by the royal commission on price spreads and mass buying was upheld.

The principles handed down today on six appeals from the Supreme Court of Canada, the decisions defined the respective jurisdictions of the Dominion and the Provinces in respect to the legislation, as defined by the British North America act. Four of the appeals were brought by the provinces. All were defended by counsel from the Dominion. These also were dismissed.

Fraud in 1934 and 1935

The judicial committee declared the following legislation ultra vires of the Dominion parliament in 1934, and therefore, of no force or effect: Weekly day of rest, Criminal code, section 1, subsection 1, paragraph (o). Provided was in effect, to be by implication beyond the authority of the federal parliament.

Limitation of hours, Criminal code, section 1, subsection 1, paragraph (o). Provided was in effect, to be by implication beyond the authority of the federal parliament.

Minimum wage, Industrial relations and conciliation act, section 57, subsection 1, paragraph (a). Provided was in effect, to be by implication beyond the authority of the federal parliament.

Limitation of hours, Industrial relations and conciliation act, section 57, subsection 1, paragraph (b). Provided was in effect, to be by implication beyond the authority of the federal parliament.

Weekly Day of Rest.

2. The Weekly Day of Rest in Industrial Undertakings, the Limitation Hours, Act, and the Limitation of Hours of Work Act, 1935.

These three acts were based on three conventions agreed to by the International Labor Conference and ratified by the Dominion parliament under the treaty-making power. The Canadian Supreme Court split evenly on the legislation. The Privy Council has declared each act to be ultra vires of the Dominion parliament and dismissed the appeal of the Attorney-General of Canada.

3. The Natural Products Marketing Act, 1934, and its amending act of the following year. These acts provided for the setting up of marketing boards for various classes of products and wide powers for control by the majority of producers. The Supreme Court of Canada unanimously declared the acts ultra vires. The Attorney-General of British Columbia appealed to the Privy Council which has declared the acts valid. The appeal was dismissed.

Trade and Commerce

The following measures were declared valid:

1. The Dominion Trade and Industry Commission Act, 1935, providing legislation for the better establishment of a federal commission with powers to inquire into, within provincially, inter-provincially and for retention by the Dominion as a whole. It arose from recommendations made by the Royal Commission on prices and mass buying. The Supreme Court.

Huge Cost of Governments Subject of Church's Inquiry

Ontario's Position in Confederation Subject of Another Query

SOVIET COOL ISSUE

Ottawa, Jan. 28 (CP)—Cost to the Canadian people of the various governments in Canada forms the subject of a question placed on today's notice paper by Thomas T. Church (Cons., Toronto Broadview). Mr. Church wants to know if any suggestion has been made to the Dominion government for creation of a royal commission "to investigate the huge cost to the people of Canada of federal and provincial government."

In another question Mr. Church asks the government to consider the appointment of a royal commission to make a survey and investigate Ontario's position in Confederation. This should be done, he says, "with a view to giving agriculture, industry, municipal authority and real estate in the province some relief from heavy burden of taxation."

Welsh coal has been thrown into the parliamentary forum by T. R. Church (Cons., Toronto Broadview) who today has eight queries on the order paper relative to the matter. The Toronto member wants to know how many tons of Welsh coal were imported into Canada in the year ended March 31, and asks if the government's attention has been called to the report of the investigations by the "Welsh Recovery committee" relative to the lifting of the ban on Russian Bolshevic in Canada.

Will the government allow the House an opportunity of discussing the removal of the ban on Russian coal, he asks. Mr. Church wants also to know the extent of importations of Russian coal last year and if the report of Dr. H. M. Tory on his coal enquiry will be tabled.

1,000 Fighting Airplanes Advocated to Defend Canada

Sir Henry Croft, British M.P., Makes Statement on Empire Defence

LOANS FOR EMPIRE

Swansea, Wales, Jan. 28 (CP)—A complete air defence force of 1,000 fighting planes was advocated for Canada today by Sir Henry Page Croft, Conservative member of parliament for Bournemouth.

"Objective security within the empire is essential," he said, "in view of the failure of collective security for the world."

Commenting on the need for air strength and equality in the air with the next largest power, Sir Henry urged that Canada, Australia, South Africa and India should each provide immediately a complete defence air arm of 1,000 planes. New Zealand should have an air force of 400 planes, he said, while each of the colony should equip from 5 to 20 squadrons according to its means and population.

Sir Henry suggested loans should be floated by the city of London at the lowest possible interest rates to finance the scheme. Such low interest rates should be made available particularly to those communities willing to equip themselves with an adequate system of air defence.

"What is needed is a new spirit of kinship, reunion among all our peoples of comrade breed in a common purpose," he declared. "We are now not to stand together when separated we may perish under the hands of a covetous martial state."

"BILL" CORBETT SERVES 46 YRS.

The squad-furnished little shunting engine that may run from the ferry dock to the station at Consecon, affectionately dubbed "Bill" Corbett notched up its thirtieth year of service on the job Saturday and brought the engine to a pause that has been finally be placed around the cab before proceeding to the ground. Bill's work was ended. Beg the familiar routine of proceeding to the yards was significance. It marked the end not at their will as well as the only of the day's work for the town's veteran engine with the old Grand Trunk and latterly the Canadian National Railways in this former Belleville resident. As he alighted from the cab he hoisted his oilcan, stood. From the window of the cab he walked out of the yards, reading with unflagging interest.

Bill Corbett, Belleville, Ont., entered the local railway shops in the year 1891, being promoted to engineer on running from Belleville to Brockville and also north to Peterborough. In 1907 Mr. Corbett was transferred to Port Hope, running from there to Cobourg, where he remained since. In 1927 he handled the first car of Ford No. 1. He has an enviable, accident-free record. Mr. Corbett is also one of the best known railwaymen on the line, having been born in Cobourg he has seen 15 years in the service of the town as councillor and has been twice elected to the same office. Following in the footsteps of his father, he has no especial plans other than that of devoting himself in the town's interest.

CAR IS DAMAGED TWICE IN 4 MOS.

Police last night were confronted with one of the most mysterious crimes of recent times committed in Belleville. Following reports that an Austin sedan had been stolen from Campbell's paint shop, on Coleman street, police later found the vehicle, a complete wreck on College St. The vehicle was the same automobile taken from Mr. E. J. Shapiro's residence in Belleville and battered with a sledge hammer some four months ago. The vehicle was again damaged in identically the same manner, then pushed into a hydro post and abandoned on College street, in the early hours of midnight. The car is a complete wreck and the estimated loss is doubtless the work of a maniac.

Shortly after midnight last night Matt Campbell, proprietor of Campbell's paint shop on Coleman St., reported his car which had been entered and an automobile stolen. The car was one of three in the paint shop and had no licence plates or headlights on it. The car had only travelled 12 miles, pounded out and straightened, following its stolen upon its four months ago, and was on the rack for re-painting. At the time of the first damage to the vehicle Mr. Shapiro owned the car, since which he traded the car in on the Sligo Motors and has procured a new automobile.

After Mr. Campbell reported the vehicle missing Constable Bliss and Taylor scoured the city and were successful in locating the vehicle abandoned and crashed into a hydro pole on College St. All sides and fenders, body and rear windows of the car had been battered in allegedly by the use of a large sledge hammer.

It is the former opinion, however, the hammer used to damage the car could not be located, although Sergeant Norman, in his investigations, stated the same hammer had been used on both occasions. A woman resident nearby, informed the police she heard the vehicle crash into the pole and looked out of the window of her home in time to see a man run easterly on College St. "He disappeared over the hill," was the only information the woman was able to give police.

Canadian Slate Company Rapidly Develops Property

Reporter Looks Over Slate Mine Near Madoc And Gives His Impressions

LARGE STAFF BUSY

(By a Staff Reporter)

Madoc, Ont., Jan. 26—The staccato reports or pneumatic drills boring deep in the slaty strata of the property of the Canadian Slate Company, situated one and a half miles north of this village, presage victory to the blasting of tons of slate; the chill that clutches everyone on entering a mine clear, away the so-called debris; the rattle of wheels of small trucks on narrow gauge railways as they haul away the "overburden" to a place of safety, contribute to the hive of activity which is characterizing this new industry now taking this part of the country by storm.

Thousands of tons of slate, as fine as to be had in the world, according to government mining engineers, lie buried beneath the surface of the property of this company. Fifty years ago the property of this county scratched the surface of this property, but the valuable product but failed to develop into a large industry, partly through diligent research and work made preparation for the development and partly making this part only slate of its nature and by-products in Canada.

Fifty Years Ago

Fifty years ago a hole in the ground. Those who knew of the character of its product came and went as their will as well as wanted. They mined and produced slate which went to Belleville House in the cities of Belleville and Peterborough, and Kingston cradle slate shingle produced by these men.

Today this hole in the ground, and its products are being commercialized by the slate and by-products are classed by competent engineers as being one of the finest in the world.

It has been and is being developed. The old hole which is now called quarry was called is gradually being worked to the water level as a new place of property in its immediate vicinity. One acre of solid slate, more than is in the process of production within the next few weeks.

Fifteen feet of "overburden" as it is called the term applied to charge, over an area of nearly one acre is being removed and taken away. Overburden, in the construction of those in charge, is slate which runs in a form of rock, feet, but which, having been exposed to the elements, has become, etc. is of no use for commercial purposes.

Nearly 30 Men at Work

Today nearly thirty men, taking advantage of the mild and ideal weather conditions labored strenuously, carrying on the quarrying operations which will permit of production in the Spring.

Captained by Mr. Ross, the operations are proceeding with demand, the authorities in charge having purchased five acres of land directly north of the present quarry and intend establishing their buildings there for the manufacture and development of their by-products.

For immediate purposes a new building has been erected over the quarry property. Here is housed an up-to-date air compressor plant, equipped with modern machinery plus dynamos for furnishing electric light for the entire building.

A Ruston Diesel engine of 90 horse-power furnishes motive power for the entire operations of the building. A generator driven from the main shaft provides electric light. Shafts and belts are controlled motor lies in its box of concrete. And a natural novelty which is a part of the engine lies in the huge water pump which is flowing for the rain water flowing the roof and which could the engine by a thermo-siphon system, and the cement covered floor of the basement of the new building over which houses the motors is slap to be seen one of the most important machines of the plant. This is the miner for the slate granules.

Slate Is Ground

Stuart E. Sil, one honored and thirty pounds of dynamite and who incidentally is the engineer in charge, gave a representative of the Ontario Intelligencer through the new building just completed and explained in detail the workings of the new machinery.

"The slate" explained the young engineer, "is brought in the building by cars and trucks from the quarry over the narrow gauge railway. Here it is dumped in the crusher, then elevated to the Niagara screen and from there to the dryer. From there the crushed slate is taken to a large hopper and sent down to the elevator to the mixer where it is mixed with oil and then stored. It is again elevated to the storage bins awaiting for shipment."

Dual Purpose Served

A distinct feature of this and one which serves a dual purpose that of not only removing dust from the atmosphere in the building but as a commercial reason is the installation of an air system whereby the dust arising from the crushing process is conveyed by large collectors by a suction system, consisting of 3,000 cubic feet per minute. The dust collected by this process is then run through another screen to remove any foreign articles gathered by the fans of the system, and the dust is then elevated to a "flour" bin. This flour is used in the manufacture of linoleum, electrical insulation, paints, etc.

Five acres of land north of the quarry have been purchased by the company. Here will be erected three new buildings. Here will house three "units" for the manufacture of slate shingles, one of the biggest of which will be the manufacture of a diamond saw. This saw has a cutting edge of diamond dust, is twenty-four inches in diameter the blade costs approximately four hundred dollars and together with its carriage which is nineteen feet in length will in the vicinity of eight tons. The average life of such a blade is nine months of operation at roughly seven months. Its daily capacity is one hundred and twenty squares of slate with each square representing one hundred square feet.

Another of the new buildings will house the structural slate plant. Here will be manufactured blackboards, structural slate, baseboarding, partitions, stair treads, etc.

Schmidtz Laboratory

The thing building will be the home of the laboratory where colors will be applied to various products.

Thirty men at present are employed on the property with an additional forty to be added when spring operations get under way. The business of the company, according to officials in charge, has been the bulk of exportation then. To offset this they have entered a special dispensation from the Department of Immigration to import experienced slate-cutters from Wales. Already, with the first of these men in charge, local employees will undergo a period of instruction within the next few months preparatory to their various jobs.

Payroll Will Increase

The yearly payroll of the company is at present $40,000 and according to an official here this will be increased to approximately $60,000 within the next year.

Reports from government engineers state that the slate quarried from the Madoc hills is one of the finest slates in the British Empire. Officials here today intimated that within the next two or three years all the buildings at present in the old property will be removed to the land recently purchased, in order to quarry slate which at present lies beneath these buildings.

PROGRESS SEEN BY INSURANCE CO.

Confederation Life Finds Economic Recovery Well-Wide

Remarkable progress was revealed in the Sixty-fifth Annual Report of the Confederation Life Association presented to policyholders and shareholders today. Mr. R. S. Waldie, Vice-President, who presided, drew attention to the striking, progress which is being made not in Great Britain, West Indies, China and other parts of the world. From this it was apparent, he said, that economic revival was world wide.

John St. Congregation Will Continue, Rebuild

Eastern Portion of Building Will be Restored Shortly

Rev. Robert Hall, minister, presided over the meeting.

Restoration of the church building will be carried out with the eastern portion of the property. No decision has been reached as to what is to be done regarding the former church building which was gutted. Architectural opinion is that the walls of the auditorium are sound and restoration has been made that the basement of this be filled in and grass grown within the four walls. This however, has not been dealt with.

That portion of the building which will be retained is in a good state of repair as it escaped fairly lightly during the fire.

Simple Home Treatment For Varicose Veins

Swollen veins may become dangerous and sometimes painful, before resorting to operations or injections sufferers should write for free booklet to Emerald Oil at Doyle's Drug Store, or any pharmacist and start to reduce the veins at once. In most cases a small bottle will last a long time, because it is very concentrated and a little goes a long way. Apply night and morning and rub well into the skin. Enlarged veins should vanish until the swelling is reduced.

So effective is Emerald oil that it is highly useful in reducing troublesome swollen ankles, swelling and strain and hastens their disappearance.

HYDRO IMMUNE

Before division last night Mr. Henry said he did not wish to prolong the debate and was confident that an understanding members could render money from electors during the next two bills. Acting Premier Hepburn also made no statement on this suggestion.

After the second bill is disposed of, the last of the Budget will be dealt with immediately.

Solid Liberal Vote.

Liberals lined up solidly behind the government on the bill to prevent collection of judgments against the Hydro Commission, its members or officials, in connection with Hamilton power contracts cancelled by 1935 legislature.

Conservative opposition fought unsuccessfully to have the bill sent to a select committee in which a study of Ontario's power needs could be made. Mr. Henry held that the proposition would fight the next two bills as to fragrant the first, making uncertain prospects for indefinite adjournment of report day.

Legislators were a bit startled last night when James Clark (Lib., Windsor-Sandwich) pleaded for an end to "this confounded hypocrisy about campaign funds."

Mr. Clark's remarks came when William Houston (Con., Toronto Dovercourt) asked him, "Where did you get $720.00 beauharnois gave the Liberal party?"

Both major Canadian parties have taken money from corporations and anyone else, said Mr. Clark.

"What's the use of pretending we haven't," he asked. "It's been done ever since political parties were born."

To end "this confounded hypocrisy", Mr. Clark suggested governments should appropriate funds to finance election campaigns.

Asks Lyon to Resign.

Stewart Lyon, Hydro Commission chairman, was accused by George Challies (Cons., Grenville-Dundas) and St. Mark's Sunday School by Supt. J. F. Baker.

The following officers for the ensuing year were elected and appointed: Mr. W. J. Barlow, Peoples' Warden; Mr. J. F. Baker, Rector's Warden; Messrs M. Fitzgerald and W. R. Belcher, delegates to Synod. Sidesmen, Messrs. Clas. Nobes, Chas. Bennett, Morley Barlow, Jesse Barlow, Ralph Fleming, Ward Mowbray, Russell Bennett and Lorne Baker. BRIDGE STREET CHURCH MARKS YEAR'S PROGRESS

Annual Meeting Hears of Spiritual And Material Developments

REPORTS MADE

Renovation of Church Interior is Considered.

Maintaining at high standard all the departments of the closing of the year 1936 with a balance on hand, Bridge Street United Church congregation on Wednesday evening held the annual meeting in the church parlors, a large number of the members being present.

There was raised for all purposes $14,421 during the year Dr. Semple at the close of the meeting stressed the importance of prayer as the keynote of the church. "We shall never get very far without the spiritual side being stressed. Prayer is the keynote to the supremacy of the spirit," he said.

Renovation of the church interior was discussed at some length and the question was referred to the incoming board.

Rev. Dr. A. Semple, minister, presiding, conducted the devotional exercises, after which the names of those who had died during the year were read.

"Faces Kept in Memory"

Mrs. Bateman, Dr. Emma Connor, Mrs. Johnston, Mrs. Thurston, Baby Taylor, Mrs. Vanderwater, James Lee, Mrs. Thompson, Mrs. Lane, Mr. Young, Mrs. Lewis, Baby Cunningham, Mrs. Ray Cunningham, Vance, Mrs. Thos. Ketcheson, Baby Seldon, Mrs. John Reeves, Mrs. Andrews.

A moment's silence and prayer followed the reading of the roll.

Clerk of the session J. O. Gallow-ay showed in a report by-laws members, 18 funerals, and 11 baptisms.

Tribute to Rev. Dr. Semple

An expression of appreciation of the services of Dr. Semple and the assistance of Mrs. Semple and family was read by the session clerk. Speaking to the minister Mr. Galloway said:

"Another year has passed and at this time we take pleasure to express our sincere appreciation of your services to our congregation.

"During the year, you have given us various types of sermons which have been much enjoyed and spiritual blessings to many of us.

"You have, at all times, been willing and anxious to meet the suggestions of our board. You have been untiring in your efforts to assist also with our finances and have shown keen interest in that we balance our budget, each year, which has been very gratifying to all.

"We also wish to express to Mrs. Semple our sincere appreciation and thanks for her untiring efforts in her services with us.

"We are not unmindful of the splendid contribution to the spiritual lies of the church of your family. Their leadership is an example to many of the older members.

"We hope that your stay with us at this time will be of joy to you and a spiritual blessing to all of us."

The resolution being carried, was presented to Dr. Semple by Mr. F. S. Deacon, the secretary. The minister in reply said: "I appreciate the loyalty, devotion and co-operation of the board of the church in all the plans we submit to the congregation." Dr. Semple referred with feeling to the kindly references to Mrs. Semple and their family.

Growth Seen in S.S.

For the Sunday School Mr. J. E. Dixon reported an enrolment of 304 with average attendance of 224, an increase of twenty, mainly boys. Total amount raised was $450.51. Reference was made to temperance instruction in the school, to the fact that 36 scholars joined the church, and that from twenty to twenty-five scholars had perfect attendance. "I see nothing but success and advance all along the line for the future," said the secretary.

Mr. T. Brown, succeeding Jos. E. Shortt as superintendent of the school, spoke briefly and spoke of the encouragement which Sunday School scholars give.

Mr. H. O. Seldon reported a donation of $25 to the church from the Y. P. S. He said the society realized that there were many problems facing youth, and that any one would be helped by association with such a group. The society has about $30 in the treasury.

Missions Supported

Mary Davison for the mission band reported revenue of $29 and various activities. Invicti Mission Circle report was presented by Miss Audrey Proctor, showing a prosperous group. Miss Margaret Hounsom presented the treasurer's report of this circle. Mrs. Harley Wray reported $305.50 receipts for the Evening Auxiliary and told of bales sent to the north and to Saskatchewan. Other activities were noted.

Mrs. Arthur May for the W.M.S. reported receipts of $1,046.66. Miss I. Brown for the Women's Association reported total receipts of $789.50, parsonage repairs, the purchase of $450 to the manse anniversary fund and a balance of $101.82.

Hymn Tunes

Mr. V. P. Hunt, organist and choir leader reported for the choir, a membership of 35 adults and 20 juniors. He spoke on the question of hymn tunes and pointed out that many of the so-called new tunes are centuries old, wonderful chorales. He thought the congregation should learn some of these and remarked that the opening and closing hymns should be good rousing tunes of old tunes. The choir library is valued at $400.

Reference was made to the fact that he had been leader for nearly thirty years.

Bridge Street Library

George F. Stewart, reporting for the Library board referred to the $5,000 bequest from the late L. W. Yeomans for library purposes. Years ago one thousand dollars was spent on fitting up the library and on book purchases. Since that time the interest on the $4,000, now in two mortgages of $2,000 each made possible purchase of new books and had accumulated to $798 with one hundred dollars more not yet paid. The library fund amounts at $4,886 without liabilities and without counting the value of the library.

He indicated that there was no other way to use the money according to the bequest, except for the purpose of buying books.

Mission Fund

Mr. Stewart reported for the mission fund the total of $3,234.08.

Church Treasurer H. C. Ackerman, presented a report, total collections of $5,432.25, pew rent of $1,038.35 and total receipts of $8,-749.65.

During the year the donation of $130.00 was made to the Prohibition Union, $10 to the Lord's Day Alliance and $200.00 to the Belleville flood relief fund last spring.

Mr. Fred Houston, chairman of the stewards, reported "less arrears than last year, but for any year I can remember".

Election of members to session and to the board of stewards was laid over to be held in the near future.

Renovation of Church

Question of renovation of the church was referred to by Dr. Semple, who said that he thought it must be the major material undertaking of the congregation—the improvement of the auditorium to a state fitting the memory of the founders of the church. "I know that something must be done to have our church redecorated and made more beautiful than it is." W. B. Deacon referred to the need of ventilation and spoke on the rewenting of the pews. He said that there was a feeling in some quarters that the present rent system was not desirable in this day and that givings should come through envelopes.

On motion of F. S. Deacon seconded by T. D. Ruston, the question of renovations was referred to the incoming quarterly official board with instructions to report back to the congregation.

During the evening, Mrs. F. F. Houston and Miss E. Reddick rendered solos and were heard in a duet. Mr. Hunt acted as accompanist.

A resolution was passed thanking the pew steward Mr. P. B. Smith, for his service and expressing hope for his rapid recovery from illness.

GOVERNMENT FORCES SEIZE STRATEGIC POINTS

Madrid, Jan. 28 (AP)—Government militiamen, driving against insurgent ranks in a surprise dawn offensive, captured strategic positions on West Park overlooking University City, the emergency defence counter-attack said today.

The insurgents were driven from the fortified zone of the northwestern Madrid area to a tenuous position in trenches at the bottom of a hill in the park, Gen. Jose Miaja said.

THE FLOOD DISASTER

Beyond conception in its gigantic scale is the proposed evacuation of half a million persons from the lower Mississippi Valley if flood waters rise too high. The area of one thousand five hundred miles in length and one hundred miles wide is virtually that of an empire. In times past there have been occurrences of great exodus, caused by pressure from races behind, but this 1937 exodus is planned is a peacetime exodus, undertaken by the state to save lives of others. In ancient cases of exodus nations had to save themselves. In this instance one part of a great nation is going to save another part.

President Roosevelt's army engineers who have the vast protective levees in this part of the United States under their care are in command of the evacuation scheme. Only such a great undertaking is planned in the event of the lower waters of the Mississippi threatening injury and death. It is the greatest event of the kind in history. Not even in wartime in any land has such a complete evacuation been planned. Only because what has to be done calls for an organized nation. Gigantic undertakings are possible in days of peace and are necessary, just as they are required in the event of war. What this scheme will cost is scarcely considered at all, it is the call of duty to save those who live in the plains along the river.

The flood menace is called the greatest in the history of the U. S., within the knowledge of man. It is hoped that the emergency will not develop for the heavy relief work in connection with the disaster in the Ohio River Valley is enough to command the attention and resources of the nation without a super-flood from the Mississippi banks.

Stories from the flood area are most distressing. The mental and bodily sufferings of those taken from the flooded area can best be left to the imagination. The rescue work is particularly effective, for while many lives have been lost, in a flood of this gigantic proportion it might be expected that the toll will continue to grow. A sad story has yet to be told for in spite of all relief work, A sad told for in spite of all relief. There is little doubt that many will succumb to the exposure and strain through which they have passed.

EXTRAORDINARY CONFESSIONS

It does not appear to be any display or promise of mercy which causes confessions to flow at these recurring mass trials of political offenders in Soviet Russia. In the spectacular case last August, in which sixteen men were accused of participation in an alleged Trotskyist plot to kill Stalin and restore capitalism, the prisoners vied with one another in proclaiming their guilt, in implicating fellow-conspirators and in naming Leon Trotzky as the arch-plotter. The tendency was even more marked and with almost indecent haste, executed. History is now being repeated at Moscow. In the trial proceeding before a military tribunal seventeen prisoners are charged with implications in a plot to overthrow the Soviet regime confessed at once to having participated in a Trotzky-directed conspiracy and one of them, Karl Radek, a brilliant journalist and former editor of the Moscow newspaper Izvestia, made a better job of it by confessing to offences of which he had no knowledge. "I am guilty," he said, "of all charges of all the terrorist plots, even those I didn't know about." To prove that example is summary and effectual, another defendant, J. A. Livshitz, former Vice-Commissar of Railways, not to be outdone by Radek's unashamed admission of guilt of more wrong than is charged, has now acknowledged the crime of espionage. He confesses to having supplied to the Japanese intelligence service secret information concerning the Russian railway system, his motive being a desire to help to assure defeat of Russia in the event of war with Japan or Germany, or both.

It requires courage to confess crime, but it is difficult to understand the readiness of these men to go outside the record and involve others by their "voluntary confessions."—Montreal Gazette.

HEROISM OF FIREMEN

Montreal firemen have lived up to the traditions of fire heroes of modern cities, when they saved everyone of the two hundred orphans in the St. Francis d'Assisi orphanage the other day. Iron supports of one portion of the building were "red-hot" when the firemen arrived. While most of the children were ready for exit by the time the firemen arrived, most of the smaller ones had to be bundled into blankets and other bedding and carried down by the firemen. Two firemen were injured along with two children, one of the firemen tripping as he was carrying down the children. The injured are not seriously hurt.

People do not forget the service firemen and policemen and others render in the performance of duty. Stories of heroic self-sacrifice for others are not rare,

ALL TO MYSELF

All to myself I find the way
Back to each golden yesterday
Faring in fancy until I stand
Clasping your ready, friendly hand.
The picture seems half-true, half-dream,
And I keep its color and its gleam
All to myself.

All to myself I hum again
Fragments of some old-time refrain—
Something that comes at fancy's choice—
And I hear the cadence of your voice.
Sometimes 'tis dim; sometimes 'tis clear
But I keep the music that I hear
All to myself.

All by myself I hold and know
All of the days of long ago—
Wonderful days when you and I
Owned all the sunshine in the sky.
The years come back, as the old days will
And I keep their tingle and their thrill
All to myself.

All to myself! My friend, do you
Count all the memories softly, too?
Summer and autumn, winter, spring
The hopes we cherished, and everything?
They course my veins as a draught divine,
And I keep them wholly, solely mine —
All to myself.

All to myself, I think of you,
Think of the things we used to do,
Think of the things we used to say,
Think of each happy by-gone day,
Sometimes I sigh, and sometimes I smile,
But I keep each olden, golden while
All to myself.

ONLY THREE STAYED DOWN ON THE FARM, according to a tabulation of hundreds of graduates of a well known secondary school. The students drifted into a great variety of occupations and professions. Perhaps "drifted" is not the right word—however, only three of the hundreds decided to stay on the farm. Agriculture is the finest profession and most interesting in all the world—why is it that so few young people take it up willingly as a life work? Why is it they do not realize advantage of being able to work with Nature, get away from the mechanical world into the world God created where health marches hand in hand with honest effort, and even wealth is possible? A few miles farther down the Friendly Road called Life there is no difficulty looking backward and seeing that the lane that leads to the farmland was better than that dusty iron-bound high-way which led to the city and to elusive lights, bound to dim with time, and promises impossible to fulfill. Is it possible that the educational institutions are all leading away from the farm, except the O. A. C. at Guelph and kindred institutions? With every profession and calling filled to overflowing only three out of hundreds of graduates preferred to take up farming as a profession. Perhaps there is a reason, but the thought persists, surely there is some way of teaching agriculture so that life on the farm may be made attractive. Too much glamour is perhaps thrown about urban life where the bright lights, fine clothes, and various avenues of entertainment throw a false aura and present an appearance of value totally at variance with the truth. The drift away from the farm may have been checked but the drift back to the farm is not very noticeable as yet.

BUT NOT ACROSS

When people speak of traffic in New York today they mean crosstown traffic, says the New York Times which explains that the problem of going from the Battery to George Washington Bridge in fair time has been solved. It is now a question of going from Times Square to Grand Central Station. At the moment of writing the task looms up as insuperable. All of this suggests that a bad strategy is due to a much-traduced set of men, remarks the Times. They are the city fathers who drew up the present street map of New York approximately one hundred and twenty-five years ago. Only a few years back the authors of the plan were being held up to scorn and derision for unloading upon posterity their preposterous one checker board arrangement. They were accused of not putting in enough north-and-south avenues and of putting in altogether too many crosstown streets. It seems only the other day that people were speaking of cutting through a new avenue between Fifth and Sixth Avenues. But today, says the Times, behold the spectacle of twenty cross streets to the mile, and people can't get across town.

Letter to the Editor of the New York Sun: I enjoyed your page and has always been a shoulder upon which I could cry in my distress. But I am moved to write you about my newest gumption. It has to do with my dog. He is a nice dog, but too pugnacious. In order to fully enjoy dog he sees, but he especially perjoys picking on Great Danes, collies, setters and the larger breeds generally, which is odd, because he weighs only about twenty-five pounds.

For a while I boarded him in the country, but I had to bring him back because he was biting all the other dogs in the kennel. Now the other day somebody let a kitten into the premises. It is a silly little kitten no bigger than a half-size rat. The terrier could kill it with one snap of the jaws. But he does not. The kitten bullies him all the time, wraps itself around his legs, bats at him with its claws, bites him on the toe—makes a general nuisance of itself continually. And the dog does not even snap at it. Indeed he seems to like being bullied.

I lie awake nights thinking there ought to be some beautiful moral lesson in this for me. I'm hanged if I can find it. And I'm getting worried about my dog. He is setting an unmanly example in my household. I catch the wife and children looking meaningfully from him to me. Is there no such a thing as delegation in this lousy world?

—Martin Frobisher, New York

Michael Ander's beagle, "Mac," deserting rabbit trails in the nearby cedar groves of his Marrisville home in Tyendinaga temporarily last week sought bigger game. He encountered in the form of a full quilled imperforated porcupine. "Mac" returned home uttering canine yelps at every step, his nose bristled with the black darts left by "porky". Miss Jean Anderson removed with this ailment before. He opened the door for "Mac" and as he passed a big stick like a bat so his teeth were unable to close on an unwary hand. Over the mouth and nostrils of the dog he poured liberal quantities of full strength vinegar. While the barbs of the quills dissolved by the vinegar, pulling them out with the fingers was a simple matter. "Sure fire for mad or beat," assures Mike who passes on the hint.

In these days of million dollar prize fights there are still plenty of spectators who can recall the time when John L. Sullivan toured the country and offered to whip anyone within four rounds or forfeit $50. Sullivan had a hard time finding opponents willing to risk their skins at that price. So hard, indeed, is P. T. Barnum, his biographer of the great John L., that he was forced to raise the offer to $100 and finally to $1,000 in order to tempt customers. He fought all challengers who dared to face him on successive nights from September 1833 to May, 1884, he gave exhibitions at over 200 places, but only twice did he have to go to win the coveted $1,000. But all but two of the men he met were unfortunate when John L. deposed of them in the usual manner. Jake Tenn., recovered his senses in 20 minutes and enquired: "Did I win?" Ist. Lect.: Rt. Wor. Tweed—The Brotherhood of the United Church met on Sunday afternoon and Mr. W. Tamblyn addressed the men on the subject of "International Peace." Mr. Tamblyn's dealing particularly with Great Britain, the United States and Canada's debts to each other and Great Britain the two latter countries owing Great Britain the vast sum of $4,000,000,000 which is the total of population places the both United States and Canada deeply in debt to Great Britain. The greatest debt of all is that of language, the spoken and written word by means of which the thoughts of men can be conveyed to others and stored up for posterity.

Tweed and District

Tweed—The Brotherhood of the United Church met on Sunday afternoon. Mr. J. Hammond presided and welcomed the men on the subject of "International Debts We Owe," dealing particularly with Great Britain's, United States' and Canada's debts to each other. To Great Britain the two latter countries owe their idea of government, their language, their literature. Walt Stephenson and Faraday have given the steam engine locomotive and the principle back of the electric dynamo and Edison the electric light, phonograph. Dr. Saunders developed Marquis wheat. In the field of sport each country is indebted to the other. The exchange of population places both United States and Canada deeply in debt to Great Britain. The greatest debt of all is that of language, the spoken and written word by means of which the thoughts of men can be conveyed to others and stored up for posterity.

Train Infant To Rely on Himself

Don't Make Him Feel He Will Always Be Protected at Home

By LISA GRENELLE

Wherever Little Willie was frightened by a shadow moving in the dark, or a dog's bark, mother would pick him up or let him cling to her, place a comforting hand on his head and say, "Don't be afraid, Dear, mother's here to take care of you."

It makes anyone feel bigger and better and considerably stronger to have someone to depend entirely upon and to protect one so much smaller and helpless in the dark, a big dog's bark, or anything else; real or imaginary.

But suppose that instead of "Don't be afraid, Dear, mother's here to take care of you," mother had said, "There is nothing to be afraid of, Dear. Those are only shadows made by your own big eye outside the window." That dog is just saying "Hello." Then Willie, as a result, would have stayed his desperate clutching. He would have nerved himself a little to stand calmly on his own feet, and examine for himself the harmless shadows and the friendly dog.

Temporary Comfort

If mother had dispelled Willie's fear in that way, instead of assuring him that she would always be there to protect him, Willie might not have run to mother so often for comfort and protection.

Telling a child that you will always protect him against all fear might comfort him temporarily, but it will not make him fearless.

Protection may only justify his fear, proving that there is really something against which he need protection. Besides, there are so many forces and circumstances which are beyond you and almost as helpless as Willie himself. Of course, you don't need to tell him that. It would only frighten him all the more.

Such extremes are equally dangerous. There is no need to advertise your weakness to your child, or it's a mistake to pretend you have far more power and strength that you actually possess. For, sooner or later, he will find you out and that will be a tragic day for both of you.

I never have believed in false representations to children. Apparently good the cause, especially parents, per ent and child.

And if a child is made to feel there is always someone to protect him, he will not try very hard to protect himself. With comfort and reassurance always within reach, he should be develop any defenses, any self-confidence.

Valerian Drops Ease Pain of His Holiness

Vatican City, Jan. 28 (AP)—Increasing doses of valerian drops helped ease Pope Pius' pain and permitted him to continue his work today.

His doctors expressed hope that with rest they might restore the Pontiff to something akin to normal comfort, although they said the drops give only superficial relief and there is no chance for improvement in his fundamental condition.

(Valerian drops are a drug compounded from the extracts of the same and are used as a sedative and an internal cleansing agent.)

Carry Body Gracefully

By HELEN POLLETT

School Girls, hearing mothers talk about good posture, are likely to ask them if it is important. It is right that somebody should tell them. Here is a simple way of finding out how the body should be held:

Lie flat on the back on the floor, no pillow under the head. Passing your hand under the small, hollow, you should find an inward curve of the natural column. The curve should be back, chest high and legs straight. Then stand and let the body assume the same position.

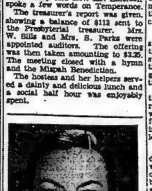
Keeping the number of posture in mind and carrying the body beautifully will do more good in the long run than giving up comfortable chairs every day. The girl who does her daily exercises and then slumped up or walks carelessly doesn't walk the lines of grace at all.

Good posture will correct a scrawny neck. It gives the lungs a chance to get air wasted. It also means the complexion will have a good color. It creates vitality and inspires activity.

The way that an average woman sits, stands and walks is a disgrace to the sisterhood. Some posture more necessary to good appearance than all the make-up the world can produce.

When buying stockings, get size that is one inch longer than the longest toe. A short, narrow stocking pushes the flesh up around the big toe and may cause an ingrowing nail. When that starts there is trouble ahead.

Select the color of hosiery with the utmost discrimination, and due regard for frocks and coats with which they are to be worn. Don't forget that dark tone are slimming and light ones make them look larger.



The brunette, with creamy skin, dark eyes and dark hair, has a wider choice of colors than any other type. She can wear white or black with good effect. She can get away with pastel shades, which the blonde darting can't do unless she is blessed with that inevitable youth. She wears all warm colors well; bright ones like red and jade green say particularly becoming. Dark brown and navy suit her type, make her appear distinctive.

"Committed Lives" Theme of Meeting Of John St. Guild

In spite of icy streets, more than an average number attended the regular meeting of the Young Women's Guild of John Street Church, at the home of the President, Mrs. George Whalen, Dufferin Avenue, on Monday evening, and were more than rewarded by the fellowship of the worship, study and social period of the meeting.

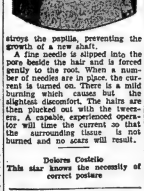
Plans were made to institute nursery and junior distraction at the morning church services, in order to make the attendance of parents with their families possible and profitable. Mrs. Thomas Mc-Intosh was named as convener of a committee to co-operate with Mrs. Yeandle in the institution of this project. Reports were received from various departments of the School for Leisure and further plans for the season were made. The service of Worship, led by Mrs. S. Graham centred about Jesus' last communion with His disciples and the principles of Friendship, which he left them at this time. The meditation was based on the same theme that Friendship is above service; the possibility of our giving this more valuable thing depends on our lives are centred, whether God-centred or self-centred.

The program, presented under the title of "Committed Lives" showed how certain people made stupendous contributions to the world because they were willing to accept life's challenge and not count the cost. There were Dr. Albert Schweitzer, the most famous of contemporary foreign missionaries and Nurse Cavell of Canada, the greatest social worker of the American continent.

Mrs. Jones-Scripton presented a very comprehensive paper on Dr. Albert Schweitzer. We shall hear the unique and outstanding gifts which Schweitzer possessed, being considered as the finest living interpreter of Bach and prominent philosopher, theologian, and preacher, nevertheless he forsook the fame and wealth which he might have had in any one of three great careers and at the age of 30 began the study of medicine that he might alleviate the suffering of Africa's natives. He established a hospital for diseased natives in equatorial Africa, among primitive people afflicted by abominable diseases, and a medical mission. This undenominational institution, Dr. Schweitzer has supported by periodic returns to his native land in Germany.

Jane Addams, also rich in natural gifts, and equally strong in appreciation of humanity, devoted her life not only to remedial efforts in Hull House, in Chicago's Ward, the heart of Chicago's slums, she worked for the betterment of society in the great social reforms of our day, striking ever for the spiritual and moral uplift. Mrs. Howard Trundale, who also presented the splendid paper on Jane Addams, spoke of her interest for the assimilation of the foreigner, of her efforts for playgrounds and slum clearance, of the inspiring work she did for world peace but gave her opinion that Jane Addams would have wished the name of her work to be "The Good Neighbour".

In the discussion which followed each paper Miss Templeton pointed out the great benefit of membership in such character, their similarities and their differences. All agreed with her that the thing which made both great was not the richness of their natural gifts but the fact that they were wholly committed to working with God. Mrs. Jones pointed out that if a group of women were similarly devoted to the effort put into the individual lives but upon the community would be intolerable. Many members made valuable contributions to the discussion, which was spirited and to the point.



TRENTON CHILD BADLY BURNED

Aileen Webb, Sr., Allegedly Pours Gas on Five Year Old Brother

Trenton, January 28.—(Special)—Allegedly pouring gasoline over her younger brother which was ignited either by a lighted match or an overheated stove, Henry Aileen Webb, Sr., five, and Mrs. William Webb, Water Street, Trenton, was badly burned about the face and upper part of the body late yesterday afternoon. The child was attended by Dr. A. E. Driscoll, who reported the child in a serious condition but stated that he would recover although would be scarred for life. The father and mother were not at home at the time but hearing the child screams rushed to find him enveloped in flames. The father took a blanket and smothered the flames and his quick action probably saved the child's life.

Mr. Webb, it is understood had left a quantity bottle of gasoline on the windowsill of the home and when the parents stepped out to visit the neighbors, Aileen, aged six, with her smaller brother secured the bottle and emptied its contents in a cupboard.

In some manner the child opened the bottle and poured the gasoline over the baby brother but it has not been determined how the gas was ignited. The child admitted to her father, it is stated by the investigators, that she poured the gasoline over the child, but did not say what set the gasoline afire. The child was not taken to the hospital.

Clark Gable co-starred with Joan Crawford in W. S. (San Francisco) Van Dyke's romantic hit "Love on the run" now on the Belle screen.

Good Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Mocking the Lisp

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am "keeping company" with a young man and my mother is rather interested in preparing my trousseau. She insisted in monograms and is confronted with the problem of what initials I should choose? Should she put the young man's last initial, or my initial? I have been told that three initials are appropriate — the initial of my first name, the last initial and the initial of my last name? We are not engaged. Please tell me what is proper?

—C.

Since you are not engaged to this young man, it would be definitely out-of-order to have the linens in your hope chest embroidered with his initial. For the moment, your hope chest would be a bit short, rather than THE hope chest that is destined for your marriage with this young man. Therefore your mother should correctly use the initials of your maiden name, preferably two initials (if you don't already have them) or three initials (if you have a middle name and wish to include this initial). Or, if you prefer, you may use the one initial, the initial of your last name.

As a matter of fact, brides-to-be who are conventionally and traditionally inclined, usually choose to use the initials of their maiden names, embroidered on their linens and engraved on their silver. But it is, of course, just as correct to use the initials of the new name, if the future name is definitely determined on. The initials used are the initials of the informal name after marriage. That is, if Mary Smith marries John Brown, her informal married name is Mary Smith Brown, and as she uses this name, it is S. B. or, if she prefers, M. B. Of, if she desires to use one initial, that initial is of the last name, B.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you kindly tell me how to word a letter of appreciation and thanks to the guest and cousins for the clothes that they have sent us during the past year?

—C.

Your letter might be worded somewhat like this:

You dear Aunt Mary and Cousins Jane and Alice,

I wish that I had very special words to use to tell you of the thanks and gratitude that are in my heart for your wonderful and limitless goodness to me during the past year. Your kindness to me has been a masterpiece of thoughtfulness and generosity, and I am deeply, deeply appreciative of the beautiful clothes that you have all sent me have given me such happiness, such comfort . . . you can never completely know what they have meant to me. Everything has been perfect. I should indeed believe in Santa Claus!

Interest love to you all, and I do hope that very soon I am to have the pleasure of seeing you and then thanking you in person.

Devoutly,

Harry ALLEN

AT THE BELLE

"Love on the Run"

"Love on the Run" at the Belle scores yesterday celebrating the reunion of that most delightful of love teams—Joan Crawford and Clark Gable—in their first picture together since "Forsaking All Others."

Directed by the directorial wizardry of W. S. Van Dyke who must be getting tired of the plaudits heaped upon him for "San Francisco," "The Murder" and "Naughty Marietta," the new Crawford-Gable romance unfolded itself with verve and spirit, proving itself to be one of the most engaging and entertaining comedy-romances of the year.

Having only recently scored an outstanding dramatic hit in "The Gorgeous Hussy," Miss Crawford in the new picture reverts to her element for light comedy. As an American heiress she displays anew a spirit of adventure she gives a portrayal that ranks with her very best.—Needless to say Gable provides an admirable companion for her adventures in a role paralleling the spontaneity and freshness of his part in "It Happened One Night."

"Love on the Run" deals with an American heiress in Europe on a pleasure trip, whose millions are sought after by the agents of a shady title. When she discovers the fact, the fiction is quite complete is called off. At that point Gable enters the picture as a newspaper correspondent on the trail of a cable dispatch.

To avoid complications the girl agrees to dodge her almost in-laws by joining Gable in a stolen plane. He's no great shakes as a pilot, but they get off and in doing so Joan recr—s a huge bouquet of flowers and—into her hand at the airfield.

In the air, they discover a note in the roses and from it learn that the owners of the plane are spies. The gift of roses was a case of mistaken identity but it gives Gable a swell story to cable to his newspaper.

From that point on the story gathers speed and is never without action for a lingering instant.

A final reporter enters the case and the trio is chased all over Europe by spies until the proper complexities enable them to turn the tables.

The increasingly popular Franchot Tone has one of his best portrayals as one of the two fliers, whose sense of humor is as contagious as his acting. Cecilia Parker, Owen and Mona Barrie dispot themselves with the proper air of menace as members of the spy ring, and excellent bits are contributed by Ivan Lebedeff, Charles Judels and William Demarest.

"Love on the Run" is the (unvoid) ample entertainment for everyone who has ever felt interest in foreign romance and rollicking adventure, and it may be enjoyed at one of the pictures for which you get your money's worth and more!

A very entertaining Paramount Pictorial, Buster West and Tom Patricola are back again in another uproarious star personality comedy appropriately titled "Hot Money" and a Terrible Love Tune Novelette round out a program of splendid entertainment that is definitely again tonight, and Friday, matinee and evening.

"The Plainsman," Saturday

Gary Cooper and Jean Arthur, the star team of Mr. Deeds, are coming to the Belle Saturday in Cecil DeMille's greatest production "The Plainsman," the grandest romance of the old West since the advent of talkies.

NORTH END OF RINK
FOR THOSE IN COSTUME

For the convenience of those to attend and compete in the second annual V.O.N. charity ice carnival at the Belleville arena on Feb. 6th ness, a special section at the north end of the rink will be reserved exclusively for those in costume. The committee in charge of the V.O.N. carnival program conveyed last night and announced that further and more substantial prizes would be awarded those in costume this year with the idea in mind of encouraging citizens to dress for the masquerade. The committee also felt that it would be better to cut down on the number of prizes, but to make the prizes awarded of greater value, thereby encouraging a better class of costumes to be displayed for competition," explained explained Chairman Chief Judd today. The citizens are urged to enter into the carnival spirit and dress up for the occasion. The cause of the V.O.N. is worthy and deserves the support of every civic-minded citizen. To-night entertainment for all and enter into the Mardi Gras spirit.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Gold Diggers of 1937"

Every two years there is presented to the movie-fans of the world, a musical comedy titled "Gold Diggers," a big and merry medley of rich comedy, songs that become hits, and pretty, hair-dripping dancing girls by the hundreds. Warner Bros. originated the idea and have carried it out with unfailing success. "Gold Diggers of 1937," the current edition, had its local premiere yesterday at the Capitol Theatre and staying until Saturday night, and sent a succession of highly pleased audiences away with broad smiles on their faces and the hum of gay music on their lips.

Dick Powell and Joan Blondell are the stars. It will be an unforgetable picture for both of them, because it was during the making of this film that their divorce action was contested. And it was on the day after their final decree that they were married and left for their honeymoon.

Both look very gay and happy in the picture, and stage as splendidly as ever, and Joan Blondell is still a pleasingly harmonious voice.

Gloria Dickson, a pretty probably will be sung and whistled about as "All is Fair in Love and War" was during the making of the making team, Harry Warren and Al Dubin. This introduces pert girls in amazing precision drills and dazzling with flags and drums—directed of course, by the famed Busby Berkeley.

A logical enough comedy-yarn is provided, upon which the songs and dances are hung. Starting off with Powell, as an unsuccessful life insurance salesman, framing a million dollar policy on the life of Victor Moore, a wealthy inventor and gadgeteer. Moore takes a fancy to him and makes him head of his staff of gadgeteers.

Joan Blondell and Glenda Farrell, as chorus girls, have a hand in continue the fast and funny gold-digging they need no introduction to previous editions of the series. And with Joan Blondell singing through the picture, and Glenda falling in love with Moore—whom she thinks is poor—and "take-over" there's plenty of love interest.

A very good looking ingenue-dancer, a tall, lank youngster named Addison from the New York stage, makes his film debut in "Gold Diggers of 1937," and surprises and delights audiences.

Then there is the fresh and thrilling Glenda Farrell, the peculiarly funny Cuspod Perkins, Olin Howlin, the pert Lee Dixon, Genevieve Charles D. Brown, William Devlin—to learn their many delightful comedians—and, of course, Busby Berkeley's dazzling dancing girls.

The girls are slightly taller, slightly heavier, and less blonde, than statistics say than the girls of previous "Gold Diggers." This show is the better for the extra inches, others being shown in 1935, 1933, 1930.

POLICE BLOTTER

Breaking a rear window in the billiard parlor operated by William Lafferty, Bridge Street, robbers gained entrance and stole a small quantity of cigarettes and candies after midnight last night.

Investigations by investigations revealed, however, that apparently money was the object of the robbery, as the cash register and kindred drawers were rifled and upturned.

The break-in was discovered by local police officers on their beats, the window being discovered broken. Mr. Lafferty was notified and upon opening his place of business at 9 o'clock this morning near the broken window, which had been boarded up by the robber in assisting his escape through the same entrance he had gained admittance. The cash register was also found broken.

Mr. Lafferty and ten transients shared the cell block at the police station last night. The latter, early this morning, but the alleged thought will return in time for police court Friday at which time court charges will follow. No serious accidents were reported in this district yesterday, although Motorcycle Patrolmen have been instructed to "crack down" on those delinquent in the purchase of their motor vehicle licenses of all descriptions.

Black Hawk Players Resent Insinuation They're Not Delivering

New York, Jan. 28.—(CP)—Roscoe Ates, manager of Major Frederick McLaughlin, owner of the Chicago Blackhawks of the National Hockey League, that the team in the All-American squad to carry the Hawk colors into New York next week in advance in Montreal. No one can deny that Coach McLaughlin's Chicagoans will do after they have played the Americans Tuesday but the Blackhawks have their heads set on the top of the Canadian heap and they mean it.

They have a five-game advantage over Montreal Maroons, who don't go into action again until Saturday night, when they tackle Montreal Canadiens. To say they Toronto Maple Leafs "layoff" Maroons played an exhibition game at Three Rivers, Que., last night, dividing the team into two squads for the workout.

Belleville's Junior Redmen Defeat Tweed 8-5 Remaining In Tie for Top Place in Loop

Tompkins Scores Six Goals And Easily Star of Game

LOCALS REAL SMART

Tweed Third Score But Redmen Much The Better in Third

Tweed, Jan. 28—(Special)—Paced by their smart right-winger, Tompkins, Belleville Tompkins Combo scored a clean-cut victory over Tweed Tompkins at the end of their game, by a field day, netting the puck no fewer than six times and laying over a pass to Morgan for another.

Fast ice enabled both teams to maintain a wilderness pace from the start and it was not until well treated to the best game of the season. Tweed's goal in the third period is now quite out of the running; but certainly the qualities of their fighting qualities throughout the game, "Tweed" and "Tompkins" Long were really the pick of the locals although they scored but two goals between them. The visitors have had several others on the evening's performance.

Frost Line Seven

Tompkins Morgan and Cain front line forwards of the visitors, collected all the points for their team. The first period was of little consequence mark, when Tompkins and Morgan combined for the first goal—just twenty seconds later Tompkins accepted Cahn's pass for the second marker. Both goalies were called on to make numerous saves, but were brilliant when good; repeatedly out-guessing the attacking forwards. Tweed's offence was through the defence on several occasions but was well-covered by Sharp, who took care of his shots in masterly style. He was forced to retire in the middle of the period after a close succession of belleville short-handed, but played off Tweed's utmost efforts. For the last two minutes of the period play hardly left the visitors' end of the rink. "Pip" Tumnon got a well-deserved pass to Morgan from Shoggy Long, who played a banging game, and Morgan netted with the score 3 to 1 for the visitors.

Tweed Forwards Shadowy

The opening four minutes of the second period was a repetition of the first frame. Tompkins Tompkins after his scoring spurge in the opening period, was back in form in a marked man. He looks failed to find the net. This, however, was not through his check as it will by his very fast turn of speed, and inside of four minutes he, and Morgan had again combined for a pair of counters, each putting the puck behind Jimmy Simpson on smart plays, during the good shooting order. With the score 5 to 1, and facing elimination, Tweed went out a second spree of their own. Voyer counted on a nice solo effort at the half way mark to make it 5 to 2 for visitors' margin. Scoring broke out in earnest with two minutes to go. Green drew a penalty for a trip and during this enforced rest Voyer and Brunion and J. Tummon ran in three smart goals to tie the score at 5 all. Confusion was rife over the eye as the period ended but retorned to the game after being patched up.

Checking of Pace

There was no slackening of the fast pace as the game went into the final period. Tweed defence was on the penalty box. Tweed defense played masterfully failing to clear a loose puck. Tompkins swooped in like a streak and snapped the rubber into the twine for a clear goal. This source encouraged the visitors lay back and waited for the breaks. Tweed carried the play but they could not penetrate a packed defence. When they threatened to get in close Belleville shot the puck down the ice. Two additional goals, more or less of a gift variety, were added to their total to make the final Tompkins. The former secured the puck in a flurry of beside Tweed net and flipped it into the back in the centre ice for a surprise goal. With Tweed players, many of them, only minutes to go Tompkins broke away with only Simpson to beat, and scaled the rubber behind the goalie.

FALCONS HELPED BY DEDE KLEIN

Former Big Time Player a Star in International Loop

(By The Canadian Press)

Dede Klein one of Saskatoon's many contributions to professional hockey ranks, seems to be one of those players who never escape attention is a "gold mine leaper." There's no doubt Dede can hold his own with the best of them in the International-American League but he can't seem to hold on in the big-time.

Proof of his ability in the minors was exemplified last night when he led the lowly Syracuse Stars to a 5-3 win over Springfield Indians. Recently traded to Falcons by New York Americans the young Les Cunningham, Klein has played a big part in the sport the Cleveland team found will land it in playoff berth.

Klein netted two of Falcons' five goals, including the tally that proved the margin of victory. But in his several tries in the Majors, Klein failed to make the grade in leagues," Klein has failed to make an impression good enough to retain a regular berth as a permanent member of the National League playing forces.

Pittsburgh also failed to make good in Major tryouts Sammy Mikkelson—and his glib line lines for an indefinite period last night. The former Moncton Hawks Hawks, who made the grade with Providence Reds, licked Syracuse Stars, during the Falcons' victorious, 6-2.

Klein took the lead in the first period, when Murray Armstrong relayed after four minutes of play gaining the puck due to faulty clearing by Providence defencemen, Bell and Rick McKelvey. With three of seven goals scored by the Flyers in the last period led his teammates to their greatest goal-scoring day. Barney York scored one goal for Syracuse. The other Syracuse game was marked by clean playing and was cheaply handled by Referee "Bounzer" Holway of this city. Cunningham, Falcons' star, scored three goals as Cowley shot two and had five assists. Thee ice was in best condition for this type of current season and lightning fast.

RIVALRY INTENSE BETWEEN CLUBS

Peterboro And Redmen Hook up in Game Friday Night

When these old sport rivals, Peterborough and Belleville, clash in any phase of athletics, action particularly can practically be assured. Hockey rivalry this season has been intense between these two clubs and commenced away back, when the Peterborough representatives, with a group-meeting and will doubtless continue, when the Petes move into the Belleville Arena for their only appearance of the year versus the Belleville Redmen.

Changing of the utmost and exacting under the abdicating handed them by the Petes in the Littlock City, Eddie Thomas' intermediates have vowed vengeance and primed for Friday night.

year we upset the Petes' apple-cart and the former champs went on a scoring spree of their own. Voyer counted on a nice solo effort at the half way mark to make it 5 to 2 for visitors' margin. Scoring broke out in earnest with two minutes to go. Green drew a penalty for a trip and during this enforced rest Voyer and Brunion and J. Tummon ran in three smart goals to tie the score at 5 all. QUEENS BOW TO VARSITY BY 4-3

Johnny Munro Scores All Goals Collected by Tri-Color

(By The Canadian Press)

McGill Redmen had to make room today at the top of the standing in Intercollegiate Hockey League standing for University of Toronto Varsity Blues moved into the lead with the Montreal Collegians by a 4-3 victory last night against Queens University.

Both teams now have eight points but the Redmen had the edge, being unbeaten in four games while Varsity conquered in but a like number marked against them in five games played.

It wasn't Johnny Munro's fault that Queen's bowed to the Toronto Collegians. Munro, who moved from his usual defensive post to centre ice, proved to be a dangerous all three of his team's goals. But Varsity's two-goal lead in the last minute of overtime Fullerton came through with his second goal to give the Torontonians victory.

U. of T. was not long in taking a fine period in J. Mackenzie Hall handed his way through from the blueline and beat McEwan easily at the four-minute mark. Just eight minutes later Munro scored his first goal with a waist high shot by Cravail.

But before the first period ended there was to be more scoring by U. of T. Ivor Fullerton fired this 2-1 and then Fullerton scored his first goal to send Toronto ahead 3-2.

Queen's had all the better of the play in the second period but was able only to cut down the Toronto lead to one when Munro was shorthanded after taking a pass from Hepburn.

There was nearly two minutes of regular game time left when Munro got his third goal to tie the score at 3-3 and send the game into overtime. Hockey Queens' player took a pass from Joey Callan and skip whipped it home.

Fullerton broke the deadlock in the last minute of overtime.

FLIERS EASILY DEFEAT TRENTON BY 15-3 COUNT

On Lightning Fast Ice And Before Small Crowd Airmen Simply Coast

NEVER HEADED

Benny Bowen in Goal For Trenton The Real Hero of Game

Scoring almost at a will, the R.C.A.F. "Fliers" coasted home to a 15 to 3 victory over the Trenton Intermediates as the Belleville arena last night before the smallest crowd of the current season. One of the features of the game, however was the splendid condition of the ice, it being lightning fast, which the hitherto assisted the "Fliers" in piling up their score with a fine display of combination play. The score by periods was 5-0 and 5 to 2. The "Fliers" went out to a fast early in the initial stanza and were never headed as they kept adding to their numbers. The visiting Trenton squad made a decided second period rally and did score two and put their three goals in that frame, but scored as much. Another thing as did the "Airmen", who over-shadowed the Trenton visitors in the other two frames considerably and at no time were extended. One of the outstanding players on the visit was Benny Bowen, former Belleville player, who was matched with the Trenton pets. Bowen was doubtless the best man in goal-net on the night, but his sensational work between the pipes was nullified by the miraculous work in staving off the onslaughts of the "Fliers" which spread scored by the "Airmen" came through the combination plays and the winners used to an advantage the night's game for good practice purposes.

Captain Dan Cowley, who was elected to the office just prior to the to the on, scored the first two goals of the night and which put him in the lead of the scoring of play. The Fliers added three more in the initial frame, while Trenton was held off the score sheet. Another outstanding veteran Trenton forward, gave the visitors their first counter to open the middle frame, during which Hood took a pass from Kidd to register. Lecompte was the chief goal-getter for the Fliers this period with Eric McNeeley, with three of the seven goals scored by the Fliers in the last period led his teammates to their greatest goal-scoring day. Barney York scored one goal for Trenton. The other Trenton game was marked by clean playing and was cheaply handled by Referee "Bounzer" Holway of this city. Cunningham, Falcons' star, scored three goals as Cowley shot two and had five assists. The ice was in best condition for this type of current season and lightning fast.

Knockdown of Louis Echoes 'Round the Fistic Firmament

New York, Jan. 28.—(AP)—As expected that now famous training-camp knockdown of Joe Louis echoed 'round the fistic firmament today. And the loudest echo of all came directly from the camp of Ed Pa Pastor, who tangles with the Brown Bomber at Madison Square Garden tomorrow night.

Without referring to the news, Jack Louis dropped to the canvas after sparring mate Eddie Malcolm threw a right-hand punch at him in yesterday's training session, the bulletin-board of Pastor posted a statement in which he declared:

1.—That Louis "couldn't dent a peanut," and that he (Pastor) would have extra bandages on his hands;

2.—That Louis' punch was even be a preliminary fighter if he was feeling in the bare knuckle days," and

3.—That the State Athletic Commission had failed to live up to rules and regulations re'attire of contestants.

Having gotten all this off his chest, Pastor got back to business and came up with nothing less than a "Tarzan" deft:

Pastor Says He'll Win

"I will prove conclusively I will stop Joe Louis within ten rounds Friday night if he is not allowed to wear extra bandages."

The Louis Training camp episode was regarded variously as "one of those things" and as a "planned" knockdown. The eyebrow-raiser pointed out that Joe missed the caanvas from a punch it would have taken a champion to get faithful as a spilled bottle of honey on a drove of flies.

The possibility that Pastor might duplicate the stunt undoubtedly would draw the fans at a considerably livelier rate than if he were conceded no chance at all, has been the prediction heretofore. Louis, himself, insisted he slipped. Had the punch landed on the side of head had nothing to do with his going down. His followers pointed out that he came up off the floor unsteadily and pounded like a dunky Malcolm all over the ring. Belligerate observers, all fight writers, were inclined to their opinions. Some said it was the punch that floored Louis, others that he intended he mis-timed a hook and fell.

R.M.C. CADETS DEFEATED TWICE BY LOCAL CAGERS

Intermediates Win 39 to 13 And Senior in Front 29-20

ALWAYS IN LEAD

Cadets in Splendid Condition But Closely Checked by Locals

Remaining undefeated, the Belleville entries in the R.O.A.B.A. hung up another feather in their victories at the expense of the R.M.C. "Cadets" in Kingston last night, when the Belleville Deacon A.C. juniors defeated the R.M.C. juniors 29 to 20, as their teammates, the Belleville Deacon "I" intermediates trimmed the R.M.C. intermediates to the tune of 39 to 13. Both local squads led the cadets in the respective games from the barrier to the finish, although the local intermediates were forced to score 20 of their points in the last half after battling the rugged "Cadets" during a hectic initial half, when the score stood 10 to 4 in favour of Belleville. Handed over the ice, Burley and Edwards gave Belleville the edge and final victory in the intermediate fracas, scoring in the second stanzas. Edwards, who is also a junior, Burley and Cole played inspired ball, while Allison and Dickens were literally checked to the proverbial standstill by Cadets. Cole had the distinction of scoring victory for the Belleville intermediates.

A Close Shave

In the junior game the Belleville Deacon kids led at the half-way mark to the tune of 17 to 11 and added to their scoring proclivities by the score of 29 to 20 over the Cadets. Hazel and Bennett, junior tussle was marked with the Belleville pair at the top of both teams, with the Faulkner-coached kids settling to a good day's game at the expense of the R.M.C. juniors, every Belleville player was the best scorers for the victors, Hazel, Bennett and Nation looked the better on the offensive while Nation, Hazel and Bennett headed the scorers of the night, leading Muir of Belleville by one point. Nation, a newcomer to the fence, led by Robinson and Kikes in the Belleville attack during the second consecutive victory, in the junior game for the Deacon A.C. kids.

Sport Callings

By Ken Colling

The sport fan of today picks his spot, in other words confines his attention to one or two games and when there's something at stake or when a junior, senior or senior. The smallest crowd of the season saw the "Fliers" go in a fairly easy victim at the expense of the Trenton intermediates last night. Before the game ever started, the Trenton squad were whipped and lost a score of 15 to 3. That relates the play, except to say that Benny Bowen, in the Trenton nets gave the Fliers something to think about for future games. The game saw "Cab" Carling-Kelly's charges make time to practice their various styles of scoring and combination plays, as can be seen by the summary. Every Flier played the game as the result of combination, of which the Fliers are exponents.

Prior to last night's game Dan Cowley, lanky Flier skipper and ace Fliers, was elected captain of the club for the season. Incidentally Cowley has always been a popular sports idol and always will be. Dan is a veteran of the V. O. N. charity ice carnival. He will sit in the role of referee for the ice cream cone event, at least that's his story.

This young Mr. Robert Pastor, 22 year old leather pusher and only by issue of season on the Madison Square ranks, has been thrust into the limelight never before given to one so young and inexperienced in the realm of fistiana. The gal will, this clever chronicler cronies mitts with Mr. Louis of boxing fame, on Friday night, and from the distance it looks like another set-up for the Brown Bomber from Detroit. From the outside it would appear as though Louis' sledge hammer mauling would bring to cash in on his financial prowess, but how can you sell such a surprise package in one of these alleged fistic wings some time. Whether Pastor really thinks he can take Louis or not can only be surmised at this time, maybe he makes as Madison Square Gardens Promoter Mike Jacobs seems to cockey these days and predicted a second round knock out for himself.

Lou Angeles, Jan. 28 (CP) — Fred Meeks, an all round school student, was haled into police court for cruelty to animals.

"You mean to say you got drunk in the class room?" inquired Judge Leon Cameron.

"That's right Your Honor," replied Meeks. "I got a shock as you attend?"

"Electric shock," said Meeks. His fine was $10.

Charleston, W. Va., Jan. 28— (AP)—Freed refugees from Hindenburg took the most direct route to stop a fight on a side of Germany. Former evacuation Irish hailed far out in the country. A cow and a bull were the cause.

Nurses didn't hesitate. One took a milk pail and went to satisfy the baby's hunger was satisfied.

Atlantic City, N.J., Jan. 28 — (CP)—It was a shy yellow flower that Mrs. Grant Hubbard husband to write the song, "My Wild Irish Rose." Miss Chauncey Goold, here on vacation, said today.

She said her brother, Lewis, was walking at Glengarra, County Cork, Ireland, where he came upon the flower and, asked what it was he replied:

"Sure, it's a wild Irish rose."

Mrs. Grant still has the rose, pressed in a book.

Red Lake Gold Shore

Rumors circulating during the past few days of the launching of a solution of the pool involving 1,500,000 tons of the shares of the Red Lake Gold Shore Mines are spiked by the official announcement of Dr. H. W. Hutchinson, president of the company, that the pool is being extended until April 1, 1938.

Notice of the extension of the pooling arrangement, Dr. Brewis states, went forward to the Trust and Guarantee Co. pool trustees yesterday.

Market Comment

New York brokers report there is confidence that famine is not supporting some of its favorite shares quite as well as formerly. Demand for coppers has not been particularly vigorous since the metal suffered its recent reaction abroad. Anaconda and Kennecott have been permitted to ebb noticeably from their highs of the year and International Nickel, another British favorite, has been unable to sustain rallies. It is evident that the reaction in some commodities, notably cocoa, has slowed up much of the speculative inventory abroad.

Platinum

Platinum is on the move upwards again. International Nickel will probably somewhat from the rise of $10 an ounce. Platinum is quoted at $83 an ounce this morning.

With Russia's annual production of platinum running around 133,000 ounces, any price increase is a moderately important factor, though a part of the fact that platinum is nearly a by-product. It does not seem that Nickel's revenue from that source is apt to be one of the majors for a considerable period. Platinum output in Ontario, as in South Africa, is and doubtless will continue to be, a controlled by other metals. International Nickel is undoubtedly increasing nickel output and sales, and to that extent platinum revenues will step up, particularly if the current price improvement continues. But main income will still come from nickel and copper.

Production of Gold in Canada Exceeds That of United States

With preliminary estimates of gold production in Canada during 1936 set at approximately 2,730,500 ounces valued at about $121,200,000, it appears that the dominion has increased its output more than 13 per cent. over the 1935 production, it was found figures about 436,000 ounces. This continues with an increase of 296,000 ounces in 1935 over 1934, and indicates not only that the old producers have maintained a steady rate of output during the year, but that new mines have added no small amount of bullion to bring up the total.

Figures recently released by the Mint in co-operation with the Dominion Bureau of Statistics discloses that gold output from mines of this country was 2,713,197 ounces in 1936, valued at nearly $120,000,000 exclusive of output from the Philippine Island. This Canadian production appears slightly larger than that of the United States. If consideration is given to the fact that there is a far greater amount of by-product gained at the Canadian country than in Canada, which is included in the total, there can be no argument that as a straight gold mining area, the dominion has a distinct lead over the United States.

According to an official source, the gross value of all Canadian mineral production in 1936 was in excess of $500,000,000. On this basis the value of the gold output was 36 per cent. of the total, almost exactly the same ratio as in 1935, despite the notable increase of bullion produced.

TORONTO INDUSTRIALS

Toronto, Jan. 28 (CP)—Trading was active through the early session, particularly in the steel and miscellaneous issues on Toronto Exchange. Industrial action, last the market turned quiet in the afternoon, the price tone, however, maintained a firm to steady appearance.

Ford A., British American Oil, Consolidated Smelters and some of the utilities advanced with the steels. United Steel featured the group with an advance of more than a point in heavy trading. Dominion Steel and Coal B firmed a fraction.

Implements were strong, banks quiet and steady, and distillery stocks were irregularly lower.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, Jan. 28 (CP)—Two million shares changed hands in the first five hours of trading on the mining section, Toronto Exchange, with the golds higher and the oils and base metals unchanged to lower changes. Omega, East Malartic, Sheden, Read Authority, Kirkland, Teck Hughes and Kirkland-Townsite traded in heavy volume at higher prices.

The gold had a few other spots including Macassa, O'Brien, Hard Rock, MacLeod-Cockshutt and Red Lake. Advances were up 1-4 to 3-4 and other base metals held. A few of the others also did better including Dalhousie, Noranda and Calmont.

WALL STREET

New York, Jan. 28—(AP)—Steels ran away from the rest of the stock market today in a buying surge that lifted them to the year's highest points, many to new recovery peaks.

U. S. Steel turned over in large blocks, hit 83 and Bethlehem touched 81, both the best levels in more than a month.

Gains of fractions to about a point were chalked up by such Canadian issues as Dom. Steel and Coal B, Hiram Walker and Distillers Corp.-Seagrams, International Nickel and McIntyre were bestirred. Lake Shore on the curb, improved a trifle. Dominion Government bonds were up a small fraction, Canadian dollars gained 1-64 of a cent and the £ 3-5 cents.

Besides the two steel Bellwethers outstanding advances were scored by Gulf Sulphur, National Republic, and Youngstown Sheet and Tube.

SEE KEGS CONTRABAND SEIZED

Truro, N.S., Jan. 28 (CP)—The Royal Canadian Mounted Police reported here that they had seized 950 five gallon kegs of contraband rum, with a customs value of $45,000, in Colchester County's largest rum seizure in fifteen years.

Swooping down on a lonely wharf on shores of Cobequid Bay twenty-five miles from here police said they surprised a gang of men loading a truck. Later, they said, they chased a heavy truck five miles eastward to Oxslow, N.S., before the vehicle was abandoned and abandoned. It was carrying 130 kegs of rum.

PRIVY COUNCIL

Canada declared certain provincial and others invalid. The Judicial Committee found the whole Employment and Social Insurance Act, the Judicial committee remarked that a strong appeal had been made concerning the special importance of Unemployment Insurance in Canada and for some time prior to the passing of the Act. The Dominion, they said, had to deal with any special emergency," but Lordships commented "you found itself on general world conditions referred to in the Treaty of Peace. It is also an act intended to be permanent and there is agreement between all the Supreme Court members that it could not be supported upon the suggested existence of any special emergency.

Their Lordships find themselves unable to differ from this view. Assuming the Dominion has collected a fund, through taxation, it by no means follows that any legislation disposing of it is necessarily within Dominion competence. If the legislation invades civil rights within a province will be invalid. To hold otherwise would afford the Dominion easy passage into the provincial domain."

Retarding the rescue work, however, from engineers who said the river's 91,000,000 cubic feet flow from Lake the gulf showed no signs of weakness and hope was expressed wholeheartedly that the worst disaster was necessary.

Probably No Inundation.

"It appears likely that flood waters will pass down the Valley without causing inundation," was the message Major General A. G. L. McNaughton, Chief of the Canadian Engineers issued through Lieut. Col. Eugene Reybold, district chief at Memphis.

The immediate battleground in the struggle to control the rain-swollen torrent in its surge to the Gulf of Mexico centred around Cairo, nestling on a point at the confluence of the Ohio and Mississippi rivers.

During the night, Mound City, Ill., surrendered to the flood waters as a back levee collapsed and put 8½ feet of water.

Engineers said this was the only unfavorable development in the last forty-four hours, and divided their efforts between directing completion of the second line of defence on the Birds Point-New Madrid floodway and saving Cherokee, Tenn., from a new threat.

The 1,300 residents of Tiptonville, disregarding a warning to flee as the Mississippi threatened to cut a channel across Reelfoot Lake and inundate the Tennessee city, not far from Cairo.

Safe so far from being engulfed, Cairo, bulwarked behind a 60-foot seawall, expressed confidence that it would win its battle.

"Just let the word we're here and will be for a long, long time," Mayor Joseph Bode declared.

As the flood waters poured into the vast 131,000 square mile basin below Cairo, engineers said they probably would reach the top of the 1927 crest. Then they will ease off the crest of the flood with expectations it will hit Cairo about Feb. 2, and Memphis four days later.

problems of life saving in Evansville, and other southern Indiana cities. Evansville estimated its damage at $18,875,000. Losses in other cities, wrecked by flood waters were incalculable at present.

families greeted hip-booted Governor Martin Danny of Ohio as he inspected the bedraggled city of Portsmouth where 1,000 persons still were marooned in flooded buildings and refused to leave. On hilltops, between 20,000 and 25,000 lived in makeshift dwellings. Disease was no greater than usual, and water supplies were being rationed at Portsmouth and several other hard hit Ohio cities.

The southern states of Tennessee, Arkansas and Mississippi counted more than 150,000 homeless and 34 dead. The vanguard of 50,000 refugees poured into Memphis while construction of hundreds more continued.

Two National Guard planes dropped messages over Arkansas City, danger zone, warning lowlanders to evacuate. An area of 100,000 acres was threatened as the levee at Mell-

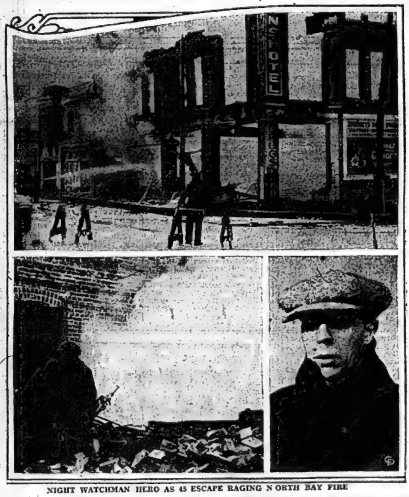
SHORT CIRCUIT PROBABLE CAUSE

Water Pressure Said to be Low in Cobourg Church Fire

Cobourg, Jan. 28 (CP)—Evidence the $100,000 St. Andrew's Church fire here Jan. 3 might have started from a short circuit in the organ was before Fire Marshall W. J. Scott as he continued his probe into the blaze today.

Fred Burn, one of the church officials, testified last night an electrician had looked over the organ and found it suffered greater damage than the church fire could have caused. Because of this Mr. Burn expressed the belief a short circuit was responsible.

Other witnesses testified the water pressure was too low when firemen started fighting the flames. Councillor Harry McGuire said he noticed the low pressure. It was barely able to shoot streams as far as the eves of the church but when questioned admitted the strong wind might have been responsible for turning the hose streams into spray before they reached any height.



Dr. W. Wade said he wondered why the pumper was not put into use and W. J. Maher who also described he saw broken hose stated he was curious over the fact the pumper was not operated. Maher also said the department did not have sufficient active men and younger men should be obtained and trained by the veterans.

Mr. Maher said the pumper, sent for more hose, returned with pieces which had to be connected before attached to the hydrant.

"I was curious why the pumper was not in use," he said. "We have a big stand-pipe in the north end of the town and an additional water main. We were led to believe we would now have plenty of pressure."

Trenton, N.J., Jan. 28 (AP) — Waller Hagen, nationally known professional golfer, was sued for divorce in Chancery Court yesterday on a charge of desertion.

His wife, Edna C. Hagen of Deal, N.J., said they were married April 26, 1921, and claimed he deserted her in March, 1926.

The building in the background is the railway station and the tracks are directly below the boat. It was necessary to travel several miles by boat before safe railway roadbed was reached.

Knights of Colombus Hosts At Get-Together Banquet

Fine Musical Program And Many Addresses Delivered

MANY PRESENT

Officers and members of the Belleville Council, Knights of Columbus were hosts at a gathering of one hundred and twenty-five guests last evening when they entertained at a banquet and social evening in their club rooms. Many were present from Tweed, Trenton and Marmora, and all thoroughly enjoyed the diversified program arranged by the Belleville Knights.

With James Bankier as toastmaster and Leo B. Riggs presiding at the piano, community singing was a feature of the evening and was enthusiastically participated in by those assembled. A delicious banquet was served by the young ladies of the parish.

A cordial welcome was extended to the guests, particularly the out-of-town visitors, by Grand Knight Frank Donnelley who presided at the banquet. The splendid attendance of local members was an inspiration to the officers and augurs well for future events of a similar nature. Mr. Donnelley paid tribute to the committee in charge of arrangements, Godfrey Donnelley, George Lee, J. Wims, Robert Mosher.

Musical Program

During the evening solos by James Bankier, accompanied by Leo B. Riggs were greatly appreciated by the guests. Mr. Bankier was heard in "The Road That Leads Far Away," "Spring Will Return With You" and "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling." Reference was made by various speakers to his kindness and generosity of these two artists, who so graciously gave of their talent on innumerable occasions and whose visits to the Council gatherings were always a delight to the members and guests.

Two talented boys, the Genovrux brothers of Tweed, gave musical numbers, which were well received by the audience.

Entertainment of an unusual nature added to the success of the evening when Flight-Sergeant Symons of the R.C.A.F. gave clever demonstrations of sleight-of-hand which amused and confused the audience. With cards, handkerchiefs, rings, his magical stuff, and cult, art completely bewildered the spectators, while apparently giving a description of each phase of the various tricks. His volunteer assistants, who kept a close watch on the movement of the magician, returned to their seats baffled by his tricks. His exhibition of "mind reading" brought to a climax his skilled entertainment.

As special speaker last evening the guests were privileged to hear Rev. E. M. Lescy, pastor of St. Vincent de Paul Church, Deseronto. Father Lescy was presented to the guests by Rt. Rev. J. P. Nicholson, V.G., who said he was very happy to welcome again to the parish a most respected and distinguished priest of the diocese. Time would not permit him to render fitting tribute to Father Lescy's qualities of mind and heart. The numerous occasions on which he had addressed had given rise to fervent desire to see and hear him again so that it was a great pleasure to present to the gathering an old friend, Father Lescy.

Seeks Informed Laity

Father Lescy expressed the pleasure it gave him to take part in the evening's festivities. These "get togethers" arranged by the Knights of Columbus were of great importance not only to the social life of the parish but also for the good will and welfare of the organization.

In his eloquent and interesting manner Father Lescy discussed the purpose, aims and objects of the Confraternity of Christian Doctrine which is foremost in all parish activities. An informed laity, able to explain clearly and concisely to those interested the doctrines of the Church in a day when religion is being attacked by so many sinister influences, is one purpose of the Confraternity. The other and vastly more important object is to have its members lead the Christ life daily, reflecting in their daily actions their Christian beliefs. Father Lescy outlined in detail the manner of forming study clubs, their leadership, and plan of work.

Past State Deputy A. B. Collins, K.C., moved a vote of thanks to Father Lescy for his instructive address and complimented the Grand Knight for the excellent program arranged.

Monsignor Nicholson, complimenting those who had contributed to the delightful evening, gave a brief and inspiring address on the qualities of Christopher Columbus which might well be emulated today. His self reliance, self trust, steadfastness of purpose, invincible courage were dominated by his abiding faith. In his life he won the acclaim and denunciation of the world but even after being deprived of of the glory of his great achievements, he held firmly to his faith and trust in God. Men are needed today as fearless as Columbus to face and overcome the problems of home and national life.

JUDGMENT GIVEN AGAINST McCOLL

Former Hydro Employee Sued by Commission For $59,205.41

Windsor, Ont., Jan. 28 (CP) — Court appearances ended, Duncan B. McColl, 41, deposed manager of the former Walkerville Hydro System, today awaited transfer to the Kingston penitentiary to start a sentence for misappropriations of Hydro funds. McColl finished with the courts late last night when Justice Keiller MacKay gave judgment against him for $59,205.41 and costs in a civil action brought by the Windsor Utilities Commission.

The gentleman sentenced to five years in penitentiary last month when he pleaded guilty to theft of $40,000 in Hydro funds over a period of eleven years, appeared unmoved by the decision. After shaking hands with all those who testified against him he walked off with Jailer. He conducted his own defence.

In giving judgment, Mr. Justice MacKay deducted $346.11 from the $59,551.52 claim of the Commission. Of the deducted total $180.54 had previously been withdrawn by Commissioner Colonel Bruce MacDonald because of the expense which would have been involved in bringing witnesses from distant points. This left an amount of $55.57 which Justice MacKay withheld because he believed there was reasonable doubt in McColl's favor.

Amateur Contest At Collegiate Much Enjoyed

Amateur talent recruited from throughout this district which was presented for the most part with glee still of professionals, played a fair number of patrons who attended the Town Hall Amateur Contest at the Collegiate Auditorium last evening.

The presentation, which is a distinct novelty to local show goers, has been made possible through the efforts of the local United Veterans of Belleville Association and has been adopted as one means with which to raise money to care for indigent veterans and families of the city. The show will be repeated again this evening with even more of the many acts added.

Prem solos to tap dancing the gamut of entertainment was songs, dancing acts, guitar solos, piano selections and impersonations all contributed to the success of the sparkling program That tap dancing is again becoming one of the more distinguished and popular arts was readily indicated by the many offerings in this class of entertainment. Even acrobatic skits and novel effects were not absent from the lengthy show. The applause tendered each individual act amply repaid the effort expended and indicated the success with which the offerings were received

Included on last evening's bill at the "Town Hall" were Marshall Stafford with his inimitable imitations; Dorothy Calbury, one of the peppiest tap dancers; Madeleine Walden, airy and graceful little toe dancer; Victor Whitley, songs; the Turner family, an amazing presentation of group music; Barbara Dinent, songs and dances; Merle Robinson, music and songs; Mr. Harvey, accordion and concertina; Gloria Morvia, tap dancer; Alec Thatele, guitar; Inez Forster, songs and dance; Arliss Hall, musical saw and guitar; Barbara Plummer, dancing; David Hill, piano and songs; James Lasenby, female impersonations; Junior Reid, acrobatic dance; Melody Moonlighters, distinguished musical troupe; Lorraine Clarke, Scotch dances; Mr. and Mrs. Joe. Samain, dancing.

During the period between November 11th to the present date, it was revealed by executives of the local United Veterans that a total of 50 families have been cared for from the proceeds of the Poppy Fund Purl and groceries have been the main expenditure, with special Christmas baskets also provided. The support of the local public in attending the Town Hall events tonight will enable the organization to carry on this necessary work on a larger scale.

Forgets His Gun Trap And Gets Wounded

St Catharines, Ont., Jan. 28 (CP) —Arthur Harley of Port Davidson planned to his sorrow today that inventive genius and a poor memory don't go well together.

Harley, troubled by chicken thieves set up a gun in his chicken coop that would go off when the door opened.

Today Harley went to collect the eggs. He forgot about the invention. He's recovering in hospital here from gunshot wounds.

Continental Life Reports Improved Business Conditions

A gain of 4.10 percent in business in force bringing the total to $38,-389,621 and increases in assets, income, reserve and surplus, were outstanding features of the annual report of the Continental Life Insurance Co. presented at the annual meeting of the company held today. Total assets are $6,817,441, total income $1,741,125, reserves $7,594,212, surplus $680,330.34 were all their highest points in the company's history.

In addressing the meeting John W. Hobbs, President, spoke of the far reaching benefits and effects of life insurance. "Life insurance is an enterprise in which are directly concerned 3½ million Canadians, or approximately one third the population of Canada, and for an amount exceeding $6,250,000,000. In other words the number of persons insured for this huge sum affects the homes and lives of the vast majority of Canadian citizens. The Continental Life has issued 22,256 policies representing an ownership by these policyholders of over 97 percent of the company's assets. This money represents the hard earned savings of these thousands of people, and therefore any legislation inimical to the insurance companies strikes a blow at the greatest social co-operative enterprise mankind has yet developed. Nevertheless, there are some in public life whose attitude toward life insurance companies as investors is almost as public enemies rather than as benefactors."

W. J. Bowlby, General Superintendent, referred to general improvement in many lines of industry throughout many sections of the Dominion. Greater markets and a continued high rate of activity in the mining industry are no doubt, the reasons for the outstanding progress in 1936, and the cause optimism prevailing throughout the nation for 1937.

N. J. Lander, Managing Director stated that the evidence of general improvement in conditions is to be found in the reduction of policy and premium loans requested during the year now closed, and a steady increase in the number of previous loans being repaid. Also it was most noticeable within Canada and particularly in those parts which have been carrying on costly experiments with ill-based theories, a process of working through to sounder ideas is going on. With much of the Dominion's wheat surplus turned into cash, with mines, fisheries and lumber industries resuming their role of importance there would seem to be very much on which to base the belief that 1937 will be a year of pronounced return to prosperity.

INVENTED MUSICAL NOTATION

Pope Gregory in the Sixth century had a crude system of musical notation, consisting of dots and scratches. Guido effected many improvements in the Eleventh century. Square notes were used, and also colored ones, before the round ones came into use. They were called Maxima, Large, Longa, Brevis and Semibrevis. The vocal clef was fixed at five lines and the treble clef was introduced about the Seventeenth century. The change from square to round notes came about the same time.

56th Annual Statement The Dominion Bank—Enlarged Security Portfolio :— Increased Deposits

At the Annual Meeting of Shareholders of The Dominion Bank held in Toronto on Wednesday 27th, the Sixty-Sixth Annual Statement was presented which showed the Bank to be in a particularly strong position. While the Annual Statements of past years have always shown The Dominion Bank to be in a strong liquid position, the present Statement is outstanding in this respect. Cash assets as at $36,226,253, or 21.1 percent of Public Liabilities, while Immediately Available Assets are at the large figure of $93,263,826, or 77 percent of Public Liabilities. The percentage a year ago was 65.39.

The Bank's Security Portfolio comprising Dominion and Provincial bonds and other high grade securities showed a marked increase. The present total is $51,-638,903 compared with $39,516,078, an increase of $12,022,825 during the last twelve months. Current Loans and Discounts in Canada with Municipal Loans total $35,-970,186 or $12,200,887 less than last year. This reduction is a reflection of liquidation of Municipal and commercial advances, especially in grain loans. Call Loans in Canada and elsewhere show an increase of $4,551,963.

The notes of the Bank in circulation were $5,570,703, a decrease of $231,530 due to the gradual reduction in the amount of notes which the Bank may have in circulation under the provisions of the present Bank Act.

Bank Premises Account now stands at $5,760,000, $100,000 was written off during the year compared with $75,000 in the previous year.

The Bank's Capital is $7,000,000, with Reserve Fund and Undivided Profits of $7,668,977.

Good Way to Treat Piles

Most pile sufferers seem to think that their trouble is just a local condition. This is only partly true. Dr. Leonhardt, after years of study, learned one great aggravating cause of piles was an internal congestion, holding back return blood flow from the lower bowel, with increasing pain and misery.

Dr. Leonhardt also learned the proper way to treat such piles was with an internal treatment which would attack a cause; that this was the best way to get satisfying relief. He worked out his prescription, Hem-Roid, and to-day that is reaching the cause, more lasting benefit and greater freedom from piles would be had.

Hem-Roid is an internal treatment. Its medication is directed to correcting congestion which causes the aggravation in the rectal region. Once this is done, relief quickly follows.

Hem-Roid is a very effective, easy and pleasant way to treat piles. Usually definite results will be seen the first day. J. S. McKeown or any druggist can supply you and if you are not pleased with the first bottle, you may have your money back. Try it and prepare yourself for a pleasant surprise.

Little Benny's Note Book

After supper ma said to pop, William, I warned Benny that I'd storm you of his actions, and now I'm going to suit the deed to the word.

The Supreme Court is now in session, being as how as evidenced what's he been up to now? pop said, and ma said, He's been up to lying and stealing, to put it bluntly in words of one syllable.

Hay, hay, that sounds bad, pop said, and ma said, I dont know what hook or crook told him that my scizzors needed sharpening, but I'd hardly greard the scizzers grinder's bell outside when Benny came rushing up to my room and asked me if I wanted anything sharpened, so I handed him the scizzers and 15 cents, and low and behold he reappears half exhawsted about an hour later with my scizzers full of nicks and scratches and in no condition to even cut a piece of tissue paper.

Yee gods do you mean he tried to sharpen them himself? pop said, and ma said, In other words he lied about taking the scizzers down to the scizzers grinder and he stole the 15 cents, or at least intended to, to say nothing of the grasly havoc he made of the scizzers.

Well, this is serious, pop said, and I said, No sir, pop, I mean wait till you hear. In the first place there wasn't any scizzers grinder at all and I never even said there was and the only bell ma heard was our dinner bell that I rang out on the front payment, and all I did was ask ma if she wanted her scizzers sharpened and she said she did, and if I wasn't my fault if she handed me 15 cents of her own free will power, was it? I said. What did you sharpen them with? pop said, and I said, O, sand paper and different size files and things, and pop said, Yee gods, Well, this court finds that the accused is guilty of falis pretenses but without malicious intent, and fines him 4 posterior slaps with a size 8 slipper, be said.

Meeming his, and he gave me 4 medium size ones and I only hooky.

DAILY SHORT STORY

A Matter of Business

By Daphne A. McVicker

"Whew," Lennox panted as her high heels came to rest from clattering down the stairs. She smiled up at the tall broad shouldered youth who was leaning impudently against the letter Rogers' Entrance. "Wotta job. Wotta life. If I didn't have a new red coat to look forward to and that house party Saturday night, I didn't try out for the fourth story window."

She pushed a coaxing hand against the man's shoulder. "I know you hate window shopping, Gary. But just one more look at the coats!"

It was red. The deep, soft crimson of the inside of a flame in a burning log. It had a tall mink standing collar of gray fur that slipped back into a series of stitched like the corvine. Gary could see the slope of a small head cocked back that coat, a saucy chin and black that was the way of a man. She was as fresh and real and young as the morning against the pane.

"I can see one is Saturday with my money," Lennox glanced "And my goodness, I've spent two-thirds of our pin on the house party my hat."

"I always have the most beautiful girl everything," Gary said absently. Lennox's lips pouted and she looked up at him. Was he to be at last going to say words that she had waited overlong to hear?

"What a job! Ward had gone out about our ad, and I had to interview the prize class graduate of from the imbecile asylum. Who of town. She must spend the week-end with them. She wouldn't. Gary raced down the steps four at a time. He was late for the house party, as a time. The mail wouldn't have be able to go to the home party, as a time. The mail wouldn't have

Then the telephone rang. Anne's been delivered yet at Lennox's apartment. She could wait inside for the coat. He would send it on.

"Such a mess!" she scolded letter carrier. And he had an errand for mother's furious. You see I pawned to do him. the right address. I couldn't. He was carrying a large package. I'll bet it's for some other. I never can heard her when he encountered Jane's postman and secured him

"WINGS OF LOVE"

(The Love Story of a Sky Pilot and Girl Who Planned on a Fifty-Fifty Financial System that Almost Wrecked Their Happiness)

By Janet Doran

Wade swallowed quickly, but the smile she lifted to Sky's intent gaze was as innocent as guiless as if she had rendered the indictment—not Sky.

"I don't blame you," she sympathized. And to herself, fiercely, "everything's fair in love ..... and war! And this is a little of both."

Sky took out his notebook, and wrote the name, Wayland Hotel, and the number, Evergreen, 0697. He frowned ferociously as he wrote. The dark, silken head of Lily-Green the cabaret singer, Sky thought, then meeting over his nose. His thin pressed into a thin line of concentration as he wrote.

Wade watched him, and a smile tugged at her lips. Gosh! Is baby sky would always be such a little boy about such a problem? Not as that about adult. But at moments like this, she felt ages older than he almost maternal.

"Thanks a lot," Sky said briefly. "I've got to be getting off, now, Socially it I'm to get that job."

"I'll bring around a bottle of Mazola," Wade promised lightly, "if you get the job!"

"Don't worry," Sky promised grimly. "I'll get it! So long Wade!" Wade watched him go, his face still clouded with a heavy frown. She did not dream that the frown was from a weary mind trying to find a total to a hopeless column of numbers that persisted in adding to a frightening sum, any way you grouped them.

"One hundred dollars," Sky said softly, "even seventy-five! What a sap, a sucker, a fellow is to think he can get out of debt as easy as he got in."

He grabbed the happy telephone, and called his home number. He got no answer: and decided Susanne was not yet home. "She'd answer," he told himself wearily, "even if she were dead at the morgue."

He stopped again to call his home number on his way to the nearest station to catch a train to Newark, after calling Pullen and arranging for an immediate interview.

He had agreed to five hours advertising and street-frying nonsense at a flat fee of $100,000. Leaving Newark, he called his home number for the third time without success.

Arriving in town, he again made his way to a telephone booth. This time he called his home for a different reason. He no longer wished to save Susanne the trouble of preparing a meal for him, when he was going to be delayed. He wanted to know if there was food in the house.

If not he was going to eat downtown. He was tired and hungry, disgusted with life, and everything in it. He was only mildly disconcerted and defeated, and the thought of a rendezvous with an ice-box supper was too much for the hardy spirit of his pioneer Dutch ancestors. He wanted a hot dinner, and he was going to get it the shortest, quickest possible way.

He came out of the phone booth and he was in no mood to encounter Wade's Shoemacher, wearing her most innocent, guileless smile. The smile of a cat that has already bolted the canary she knows she will enjoy.

"Fancy meeting you here," she drawled, "if I didn't know better, I'd say it was no accident, your changing my trail like this!"

"It was trying to get my wife on the phone," Sky growled dourly, and Wade smiled.

"I'll say she will—where she is," she offered sweetly. Sky did not answer, but his own stormy blue eyes were dark with suspicion. A rankling, bitter suspicion that she was lying. That she didn't know where Susanne was, and couldn't possibly know.

"Since you haven't eaten," Wade cooed softly and Sky was lost before the stark, vestigious appreciation of his hungry stomach.

"I'm all right," he said gruffly. "You're all wrong," Wade assured him severely, "if you think I'll tell you anything, or take you anywhere until you've had a good hot dinner! And hurry and make up your mind, Sky, because I'm going somewhere if you decide you'd rather be alone!"

Sky took her arm and marched her across the street, around a few corners, and into a big, ancient hostelry.

"The Brevoort," he said softly, "my ancestors helped build this section, of town, Miss!"

He ordered a hearty dinner and at all of it, aware of Wade's avid mocking eyes close to him ... the mere width of the table away.

"Now," he said briskly, "where to, Lady Disk?"

Wade shivered in mock distain. "Heaven forbid the term! It's my favorite slumming ground, Sky. In fact my brother 2nd is there tonight, or I wouldn't have known."

Sky balked at this and climbed in after her.

"But, good Lord," Sky protested, "we can't go there! We're not dressed! That is, I'm still in my flying togs ...."

"So am I," Wade laughed, otherwise I wouldn't dare bring a lady's husband into her private preserves!"

"I" Sky said coldly. He froze, again, to her, and his usual aversion to any discussion of family affairs

Wade flung open the last door, and the dance way gayly across the tiled patios flowed the brightly lighted country club door, and the lilting music of a marvelous orchestra.

"I hope we can dance in these boots," Wade called, but Sky did not hear her. As he was watching two people strolling along a balcony, smoking and talking. The girl wore a soft, clinging, white chiffon velvet gown, and the man was garbed in correct evening clothes.

Susanne. Susanne and Del Langley!

CHAPTER 22

Sky did not open the door that night, at all. It was the first time, since his marriage, that he had spent a night away from Susanne, preferring on his runs to Cleveland. It was the first time he had ever been afraid to go home to his life.

Now he was afraid. He knew that if he went home to face Susanne, he would quarrel with her. He knew they would not be responsible for his actions. He was too angry. Too blindly jealous.

He took Wade to her apartment and left her. Nothing she could say could bring him out of his black silence. Nothing she could do.

She said much too, and did even more.

"Sky," she began plaintively, when he had escorted her to her cab, ignoring her gasped pleas, that he wait a moment, that he confide in this, that he couldn't run away, that when they met there, what was to think? That she didn't want to go then; she wanted to stay and dance. The music was wonderful. Wasn't it wonderful, Sky?

"Sky!" she exploded wrathfully, when he flung open the cab door and banged it shut, unconsciously inside. "Whats the meaning of this new man act?"

She yanked her suede comsat jacket around to proper place, and pulled her short, booted legs straight out in front of her, in rigid temper. "Whatever it is, and is a shining beaky willaper, you're known too many of the wrong kind of women, Sky! Women you can yank around like a taxi dancer!"

She paused for eloquent silence. He kept his lean jaw averted and the muscles in the back of his slanting curtain of rain outside the cab window.

"Sky," Wade changed her tactics from temper to melting sweetness, when he remained silent. Her clenched fingers was soft and warm, and Sky shivered at that fact, and quarrel over nothing! After all, it's not Wade Shoemacher, wearing her most innocent, guileless smile. The smile of a cat that has already bolted the canary she knows she will enjoy.

"Come up to my place and have a drink, Sky, and you'll feel better," she said softly. Her voice was low, straighter, and squared his shoulders as if to face an adversary.

"No thanks," he said stiffly.

Wade sighed softly. Then laid her soft cheek against his arm. Touched his clenched fist softly, trying to bring his hand up to her face.

"Please don't be so angry, Sky. It's an difficult waiting up again."

He laughed bitterly at that, but said nothing. Simply moved sharply away from her, farther into the corner of the cab.

Presently the taxi stopped outside her apartment, and Sky reached for the door handle. And instead of flinging open the door, he found himself held firmly.

Wade's arms were locked tight, and warm about his neck. Her fingers were laced together tightly, and her lips, warm and soft and pleading, moved against his face. Moved hungrily, to find his mouth.

Sky's arms, his hands acquired the strength of desperation, as he wrenched free of Wade's embrace.

"We seem not to understand each other, Wade!" Sky growled thickly, and Wade laughed uncomfortably, visibly mortified by his rebuff.

"It's you who misunderstand, Sky," she countered. "I need to borrow a dollar for the taxi driver." Shed that Sir Galahad cloak! It's no longer style. Every married man I know, has a girl friend or so; and he knows his wife goes him one better, too!"

"Charming trumps ... trumps, you know, Wade!" Sky grated, pushing at his leather coat and tie, is if she had in some way contaminated them with her impulsive affection.

"Not at all," Wade retorted smoothly, "they're trumps in your sky! Your wife belongs to the same crowd! Your wife is one of them! She was with Del Langley tonight, and she's always with him. You wouldn't call your wife a trump would you, Sky? And whatever she can do, you should be capable of equaling."

"Let's leave Mrs. Hydels out of this!" Sky growled. "You don't know her! You can't possibly judge, or discuss someone you don't know!"

"Right," agreed Wade composedly, lighting a cigarette and inhaling deeply, to steady her shaking nerves, and rising temper, "but I do know Del Langley, Sky! And I've yet to know of Del dating a girl twice ... unless she knew her way around!" Sky's hands on his hips, head bent, and he lowered his head like a fighting bull, his shoulders thrust forward, his eyes blazing above Wade like an avenging fate.

For a moment, a tense, electric moment, Wade was afraid he was going to shake her. Or else hit her He had that explosive, cyclonic temper of a man exasperated beyond the range of ordinary control, and Wade shivered.

She took several panicky little steps toward her door, and Sky did not follow. Made no move to render the usual conventional politeness. A soft little sigh of weariness—or was it disgust? escaped Wade's lips She shrugged philosophically, and continued on to her door.

"Goodnight, Sky, and thank you."

"Goodnight!" Sky's single monosyllable was not lost on her. Nor was his slamming of the cab.

TORONTO - 240 JARVIS STREET

Prison Break

By J. T. Barber

Flames shooting up from the tool house threw a warning glow across the snowy mound on the hospital roof. The snowy second would prescently be the last mortal remains of CH005 . Ten years ago CH005 was Fred Feral.

Ten years ago CH001, sitting beside the cot in the improvised hospital cell, was Buckley Winston. He was small and dark with shiny black curls, while the sorrel-topped Feral looked immensely older in a sheet like the mummy of a big red god.

Winston sat there thinking. Sometimes, he had to stop because of the noise outside. The men had beaten off the guards with pieces of twisted metal from cell cots and shop machinery. Or again he was interrupted by a slow flutter of Fred Feral's eyelids.

Once Fred had dropped cold fingers on his hand and smiled faintly. "I'm going out . . . at last . . . Kid," he said aimlessly and quite calmly.

But he had not said it with the bombast of the old days, the days when Buckley Winston followed him around in a haze of envy and admiration.

Fred had seemed to have everything. Yet Winston had taken a small satisfaction in knowing that he was wrong about the woman. She had gone to Fred Feral, naturally. Any woman would. Just as any woman can change her mind. She did that, too. But she did it too late.

Fred Feral had married her before she realized that it should have been little Buckley Winston. Now Fred Feral was going back to her as he always said he would—in his own way.

The trusty-orderly shook him and looked at him oddly.

"Yeah," His answer was flat, tuneless.

If we can get the doc-tin from the outside with a little adrenalin for Feral we can keep him alive. Maybe for months."

"He can't live," Winston managed to say.

The orderly pushed him hard. "Listen, pal," the orderly said, "do I know that? A month or a year don't mean nothin' to yon Mr. Ice Bird. It'll make no odds, see? And what's more, a little hero stuff will make you, too, see. You wouldn't hait a lit' pardon, I guess?" He shroud a white pillowcase into Winston's fingers, and when Winston stayed sitting he slapped his face.

When Winston only licked his mouth and covered the trusty, he sped him up and thrust him into the corridor. "Don't be a sap. You wanna get outa here, doit'l you?" he asked.

Winston trembled. Did he want to get out of there? He shivered at the mere possibility of freedom and what it would mean to him. He could be with her then, to protect her, and together they could wait for Fred Feral to die. Maybe months. Maybe years.

So unless Buckley Winston trotted across the prison yard and got some dope for his heart, Fred was going out. Yes, Buckley Winston would go out—back to her and wait. Wait!

The yard was all bright light and narrow black shadows patterned by searchlights and red flames from the shops.

He gathered up the white linen in one hand and began a slow trot across the yard. A couple of men saw him and followed through a sudden fog of tear gas. But the noise the guns got going the whole pack of fleeing convicts was at his heels.

Winston, hugging the pillow-case under an arm, looked back over a shoulder in some surprise. He had been on the point of waving the thing. He slowed down and stared thoughtfully at the fire that rose above the prison shops. He went warm and free as if an impulse from some uncharted star had touched off some flame inside him. He threw away the pillow-case and ran faster, boldly waving his arms. Then men swarmed after him gratefully until the guns and gas drove them back whimpering. Winston was beating on the tiny grate underthe door, laughing until he fell back and then fell face down, full of dope.

The red blaze zoomed up to a last burst of glory and sank. Men were running out into the white searchlights waving the white pillow-case. Up in the hospital room the trusty turned away from the window, coveting an enormous cocktail. He pulled the sheet up over Fred Feral's face.

100,000 LABOR TO FORTIFY SYSTEM OF LEVEES

Levees on Mississippi Will Hold, Say Engineers Barring the Unexpected

INVASION OF SOUTH

Tents Spring up on Highlands and Ridges Thirty Miles From Mississippi

Flood waters of the north, unleashing after a $400,000,000 surgeon of the Ohio River valley, began a plunderling invasion into the heart of the southern United States today.

Scores of villages and countless farms along the 900-mile stretch from Cairo, Ill., to Memphis, Tenn., swam deep in the rising yellow tide of the Mississippi, fed at a rate of nearly 3,000,000 cubic feet per second by the falling Ohio.

With rain and snow forecast, a pick-and-shovel army of 100,000 toilers, levees system, ranging southward from Cairo, mustered to guard the rich cotton delta lands along the Mississippi.

United States coast guard craters shuttled up and down the restive waters on the lookout for wrecks or weak spots or new breaks in the levees. Warned of impending danger, new hordes of refugees streamed from their low-lying marginal lands along the Mississippi.

Tent cities sprang up on highland and ridges thirty miles from the river to house temporary "orphans of the flood". At Hornick, near Helena, Ark., a single concentration camp received 1,500 refugees. Thousands of others were removed to East Arkansas cities and to Memphis.

Every levee throughout the lengthy stretch was bolstered today and U.S. army engineers predicted the new aid confidence to hold, barring the unexpected.

Ohio Valley Reviving.

The Ohio River valley, assured that the worst is past, began reckoning its financial loss and its sorrows today while the south found cheer in predictions it would be saved from the full fury of the Mississippi.

Aided by state and federal governments, stricken communities in the United States middle-west started pushed plans for rehabilitation and the care of the homeless. Victims of the disaster numbered 1,- 000,000, latest estimates said, in 330 dead. Property loss estimates were $400,000,000.

As the crest of the United States most devastating flood passed slowly down the Ohio a cold and stormy army of 100,000 men fortified a fer- tile, ordinary levee system in the south against the impact of flood waters which will pour down the Mississippi next week.

Danger Points.

Danger points along the 1,000 mile front between Cairo, Ill., where the Ohio joins the Mississippi, and the Gulf of Mexico were at New Madrid, Mo., and Helwood, Ark., 38 miles below Helena.

As though prepared for a siege, 4,000 men held behind a ring of sandbags to save Cairo, southern Illinois shipping center, from the encroaching flood crest. Most of the city's 13,000 population had fled to safety.

Seven days engineers "pulled the stopper" in the giant 231,000 acre floodway below Cairo to ease the pressure against the sawmill, a mighty dynamited another hole to relieve the pressure and a setback levee near Madrid, Mo.

Thousands of refugees who lived in the inundated area camped along the Missouri border hoping Cairo and southward Mississippi "dike relief" would be saved from engulfment.

300 Work At Levee.

As 500 men labored to strengthen the levee near Medicine Point, evacuation of 100,000 threatened acres of farmlands, was completed. Another crew was at work repairing the levee at Hickman.

The big test of the government's $1,000,000,000 flood control system along the Mississippi will not come until next week. While the engineers were confident for any eventuality, Major-General Malin Craig, United States Army Chief of Staff, and Secretary Dern expected additional steps dikes would hold. He based his belief in the expectation the levees will hold at Cairo and no abnormal floods develop in tributary rivers.

While some predictions were made the flood crest on the Mississippi would be considerably under last year's proportions, Memphis, Tenn., braced itself for the worst.

Every available unit of the Tennessee National Guard was mobilized today and U.S. army engineers predicted the levee confidence to hold, barring the unexpected.

They were charged immediately after they were apprehended by police on Sunday night following the riot and appeared before Magistrate Frederic Wall. The men were placed in the county jail and later transferred back to the reformatory.

About 60 prisoners have so far been questioned, including six or eight alleged to have been ringleaders in the riot that caused more than $20,000 damage, Mr. Gillanders continued.

Indian Woman Charged With Murder of Relative

Brother-in-law is Alleged to Have Attempted to Forcibly Enter House

DIES INSTANTLY

Chapleau, Ont., Jan. 29 (CP) — Mrs. Agnes Sayers, 32-year-old Indian, is held here today on a charge of murdering her brother-in-law Willie Sayers, by shooting him with a rifle as he allegedly battered his way into Mrs. Sayers' home a mile south of here. The shooting occurred last night.

Police said the woman would be arraigned before Mr. Justice Shirre of the Peace, this afternoon, and then taken to Sudbury.

Mrs. Sayers walked into Chapleau and told her husband, who spent the day here, what had happened. Sayers notified Chief Constable J. E. Derry who in turn called Provincial Constable Pelland. Mrs. Sayers was then arrested at the home of Tony Fortunatio, Italian trapper.

The woman was at home with her four-year-old daughter when her brother-in-law, 38, a trapper, demanded admittance. Upon being refused, he allegedly smashed the door panel and was forcing his way through the broken door when the shooting occurred.

Dr. J. R. Ball who examined the body said the Indian had died death was instantaneous. An inquest was ordered by Dr. J. Sheehan, coroner.

TERRIFIC WINDS SWEEP ENGLAND 57 LOST AT SEA

Paralyzing Blizzard Accompanied by Flood Causes Much Damage

MOTORISTS MAROONED

Communities Isolated as Flooded Roads Freeze Solid

London, Jan. 29 (AP)—Stubborn storms spread havoc on land and water across Western Europe today. At least 57 persons were reported to have perished at sea.

The latest ship to fall to the fury of the wind and sea was the 1,100 ton lumber Oliver. She sank in boiling seas off the small island of Borkum in the North Sea. Eleven of a crew of 14 apparently were lost. The great liner Europa stood by, able to rescue only three.

However, the storm-beaten, 4,855 ton Brazilian liner Santos, unheard from since Wednesday, was safely sighted and drifting toward the rocky Portland, Isle of Dogs, and was towed to safety at Lisbon, Lloyd's reported. One hundred persons were aboard.

Floods were an inland ally of the storm. Flashed by a torrential flood to inhabitants of Leguenduel, a flood-dammed river lies on the Aller River in Central France.

Rilmarde, borne on the driving storm, piled up snow drifts in the south of England, marooning scores of motorists all night in some areas.

Rain-swollen rivers in Southern France inundated low-lying farms and villages, particularly in Provence Valley.

NO EFFORT TO DEFEND HIMSELF

Karl Radek Admits His Treason in Moscow Court

Moscow, Jan. 29 (AP)—Unrepentant to the end, Karl Radek, once the foremost publicists at Communism, made no effort today to defend himself when he and 16 co-defendants stood charged with plotting the overthrow of the Soviet Government and delivering Russia to the "final words".

"I admit the treason. I do not defend myself," Radek told the Court adjudicly. "There are no extenuating circumstances."

Unlike Gregory Piatikoff who refused to plead guilty when Judge Ulrich Trovsky, exiled Bolshevist leader and the 17 defendants charged in Russia, Radek made no effort to lift his head.

His weird whiskers and dun-colored old blouse gave the writer the appearance of a tramp when he finally told the Court:

"I cannot even say Trotsky misled me except to say that I warned Trotsky in 1924 to avoid foreign complications. He was silent for a year and then he revealed the fair alcoved with Hitler."

Only the faintest glimmer of hope remained today for the one time trusted Communist officials could escape swift death before a firing squad.

3 DISTURBANCES PRISONER SAYS

"A" Tells of 250 Prisoners Refusing Bread Pudding Dessert

Guelph, Ont., Jan. 29 (CP)—Binder prisoner "A" next came to the Ontario Reformatory late in December, 1934, there have been three disturbances among prisoners, he told the inquiry conducted by Judge James Madden into the riot of Jan. 17.

The other two disturbances were in 1935, once when a prisoner was "in the hole" and the other time when 250 prisoners refused the bread pudding dessert given them two or three times a week.

"You are not here on trial, I am here on behalf of the man as much as anyone else in order to bring out facts," J. Gordon Gillanders, K.C., commission counsel told "A", the first prisoner to testify.

Recent Riot Planned.

"Anything you say will be used as evidence against you at any future hearing given you," said Mr. Gillanders who added:

"Was the riot of Jan. 17 planned?"

"It came to me as a complete surprise," said Prisoner A. "No one I spoke to knew where I rested knew of the disturbance. I am in a privileged cell block and had no contact with any of the boys. There was the beginning of a disturbance in the morning of Jan. 17, 1935."

"At that time there was a prisoner in the box and there were some sympathizers.

"Leaders told the boys to sit down, but it came as a surprise to 90 per cent. of the boys and they didn't know what to do.

Inmates' Committee.

"I am chairman of the inmates' council formed with official approval," Queen Dr. Hemlip came in November.

Hitler's Epochal Address Awaited by Entire World

Berlin, Jan. 29—(AP)—Germany, ready for Chancellor Hitler's announcement of some momentous decision, completed preparations today for the first session of the Reichstag since reoccupation of the Rhineland.

Advance plans indicated the session called by Hitler for tomorrow to receive "an announcement from the government" would be of epochal importance.

Although the entire Reich has engaged in whispered debate for weeks, even high officials admitted they did not know what decisions Hitler had chosen to disclose.

1. Acquisition of a colony or colonial rights with the appointment of a cabinet minister for colonies.

2. New powers and honors for Hermann Goering, his chief aide, who has long been rumored as the likely next Chancellor.

3. Dissolution of the Reichstag in its present form.

Move to Alter Method Of Execution in Canada Referred to Committee

Ottawa, Jan. 29.—(CP)—A new move to alter the method of executing condemned persons was launched in the House of Commons yesterday, met with both support and opposition and was referred to a special Committee for further study.

Dr. J. W. Blair (Lib. Wellington North), who has been championing the lethal chamber as a substitute for hanging for several years, introduced his last year's bill to effect the change.

Lethal gas was a painless method of execution, he said, whereas hanging was painful and sometimes, when bungled, horrible and revolting. The imposition of pain on a person who had to die could serve no purpose and pain with a purpose was "a sin against humanity".

Justice Minister Lapointe was not prepared to give definite opinion, and a change but expressed no opinion as to its merits. He recalled that after Dr. Blair introduced his Bill a year ago he had asked the authorities in five American States which had adopted the method whether it was satisfactory. All confirmed , it was the most humane method possible.

It was Mr. Lapointe who moved to send the subject matter of the Bill to a special committee. As he had no definite views himself he wanted a wider discussion than had developed in the House.

Supporting the move was J. S. Woodsworth, C.C.F. Leader, who favored complete abolition of capital punishment. Also in support came from H. H. Wilson (Cons. Hamilton West) (Correct) and Rev. Dan McIvor (Lib. West Elgin).

CORONATION OATH TAKES NEW FORM

Bills Will be Introduced in Parliaments of Empire

London, Jan. 29 (CP)—Constitutional changes in the status of the Dominions since the coronation of George V, in 1911 will be reflected in a new form of coronation oath when King George VI. is crowned at Westminster Abbey May 12.

The Earl of Clarendon, Governor General of South Africa, announced at the opening of that Dominion's Parliament that a bill dealing with the oath of allegiance will be introduced. Similar bills will be introduced in the parliaments of Great Britain, Canada, Australia, New Zealand and probably the Irish Free State.

At George V's coronation, the Archbishop of Canterbury said: "Will you solemnly promise and swear to govern the people of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and the Dominions thereto belonging, according to the statutes in parliament agreed on, and the respective laws and customs of the same.

The King answered: "I solemnly swear so to do."

With the Dominions having attained full equality, as set forth in the statute of Westminster, it is felt that the phrase "the Dominions thereto belonging" is no longer suitable.

If we don't get one of the worst storms we have had this winter within the next few days then I will buy my hat, that is if I can. Usually it has been rain, which follows these hoar frosts, but it is the snow I am after. I don't like the looks of it", he said, as he ambled away.

Rodent Still Living On Scented Soap

Maybe this rat has solved the age-old question, which has long been bothering mankind, that of reducing with a minimum of discomfort, or can call it that, a month ago a sleek-looking rodent was discovered prone on the floor in the washroom at the rear of the Employment Service office of this city. Lack of the proper diet had forced the sleek one to dine from leavers cakes of scented soap. Teeth tooth and clawmarks were discovered on three cakes of soap which had been dragged from a shelf to the floor. A piece of the soap placed in a trap was the undoing of washing soap, unscented were also disdained by the midnight prowler. Recently the rat was again seen at the rear of the factory of the darkness of the cellarway. Gone was its appearance. Gaunt and hungry-looking the erstwhile fat one was reduced to practically skin and bone. But it still prefers its diet of scented soap.

R. Rollins, a resident of Thurlow Township, is lying in Belleville General Hospital with serious injuries as a result of an accident which occurred on a Tyendinaga Township sideroad on Wednesday night, when the truck in which he and J. Yorick were riding skidded into the ditch pinning both men beneath the wreckage.

The icy condition of the roads is thought to have been the cause of the heavy truck suddenly veering and heading for the deep ditch. Rollins, who is 45 years of age, was driving in the Parish House this week with Clare Patterson, president, in the chair. Professor Wheatley was the speaker, addressing the gathering on the music of King Solomon's Temple. At the conclusion refreshments were served and a social half hour spent.

Yorick escaped with a slight shaking up. According to reports no charges are either cars involved in the accident.

Obituary

MRS. CATHERINE OWENS

Mrs. Catherine Owens, widow of William Owens, died at her home on this Friday morning, January 29th, following a short illness at 10 Ann street. She had been in failing health for some time.

The late Mrs. Owens, who had reached an advanced age, was born in Ameliasburg, but had lived in the city for many years. Her husband and her late husband came to reside in the city from Ameliasburg township at Avondale and about eighteen years ago they removed to Belleville and took up residence on George street.

During the many years Mrs. Owens resided at Avondale she was a prominent figure in the life of the community and was held in the highest esteem by all who knew her. She was of great assistance in arranging for and carrying to completion the erection of the new Case Methodist Church at Avondale and was a regular attendant when it appeared. In the work of the Sunday School and in the Ladies' Aid Society she was a prominent worker as well as in the performance of kind and charitable acts. Upon the uniting of the old Case Church, Mrs. Owens became a member of the new Bridge Street Church in this city and was a faithful member and supporter of the congregation until she was indeed, a woman possessing many fine traits of character and she will be sincerely missed by those who were more intimately with her. It is only a little over a year ago that Mr. Owens passed away.

Surviving to mourn her passing are two sons, Mr. Fred Owens and Mrs. G. T. McMartin, who resided with Mr. and Mrs. James Small, Montreal; two brothers, R. H. Zufelt, Kingston and Mr. H. Zufelt, Stirling.

The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this paper.

Brant Brothers Given Short Terms for Theft

John Brant, 30 year old Belleville youth, was sentenced to six months determinate and a further six months indeterminate in jail on less one day in the Ontario Reformatory after having convicted on a charge of the theft of scrap iron from the property of David Rollins, Thurlow Township while his brother, and alleged partner in the offence, Alfred Brant, 19 years, was sentenced to two months in the Belleville Jail by Magistrate W. J. Butler, K.C. in today's local police court proceedings.

Both of the Brant boys pleaded not guilty and stated they found the scrap iron, which consisted of ten iron brick kiln doors and a lesser number of iron frames, all the property of David Rollins, proprietor of the brick yard immediately west of Belleville on Highway No. 2.

Joseph Labrash, Thurlow, who resides near the brick yard told of seeing two men hauling iron towards the bay, "What kind of iron was it?" asked Crown Attorney R. Donnan, K.C.

"Well I couldn't see very well at first, but when I got closer I saw they were the iron doors and frames from the brick yard. I told them they had better return them, but they said they found them on the old brick property and thought it to be scrap," added Labrash, who when questioned by John Brant later admitted the boys were in the act of taking the iron back when apprehended.

Both of the Brant boys swore they thought it was scrap iron as they had found it between the C. N. R. right-of-way east of Belleville and the bay. "Was the iron your property and did you have any right to remove things from the railway property?" asked Donnan of either of the boys. They both admitted they were on railway property and did not own the iron.

"They are both undoubtedly guilty as charged in the case," declared in this combination. I believe the younger brother is being led around by his older brother, so I'll sentence Alfred to two months while John Brant will serve six months definite and six months indeterminate or two years less one day in the Ontario Reformatory. The older brother had a previous record of convictions, it was revealed.

TO STAND TRIAL FOR BRASS THEFT

Gordon Monohan, Belleville was committed for trial on the next court of criminal jurisdiction by Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C. today on the charge of theft over $25 after electing trial by a higher court on a charge of the theft of a quantity of brass fittings, the property of the Canadian National Railways. Monohan was committed to the custody of the county jail until his trial.

B. C. Donnan, K. C., County Crown Attorney, submitted sufficient evidence on behalf of the Prosecution to have the accused man committed for trial. His Worship stated, Mrs. A. Safe, of the Safe and Lock Sales dealers, produced sale bills which she testified covered the purchase of brass from Monohan. "Is that the man who sold you the brass?" asked Mr. Donnan, pointing to Monohan. "Yes, sir" was the reply. Mrs. Safe identified the large brass fittings as having been purchased by her from Monohan. Fred Chapman, local agent at the C.N.R. identified the brass fittings as the property of the C.N.R. valued at $123.16 and not as $113.16.

"Was the value of the brass taken from the stored contents?" asked Mr. Donnan. "I could not, say altogether, but the value of that one fitting there is $123.16 alone," replied Mr. Chapman. Plainclothes Constable Beard told of arresting Monohan on a nominal charge of larceny and remanding him for investigation.

"Have you any evidence to offer at this time?" His Worship asked Monohan and upon receiving an answer in the negative, committed the accused to the county jail and to stand trial at the next court of criminal jurisdiction.

Owner of Storage Ridicules Report

Mr. Frank Hendricks, Trenton, owner of the Hendricks garage and warehouse, a visitor to the editorial room of the paper yesterday ridiculed reports that apple rot or scald had been found in Trenton apples as the result of the present mild winter.

"We sold two thousand barrels just a few days ago, and there were no signs of rot or scald manifested in the whole lot. The present winter is no more mild than any other one as far as we are concerned. In a well insulated warehouse outside temperatures would have no effect at all. The mild weather has nothing to do with it," declared the warehouse owner.

At the present time between four and five thousand barrels of first grade apples, mostly of the Spy and Mack variety are in storage, it was stated.

Judgment Reserved In Perjury Case

"I'll reserve judgment in this case until I have read over the evidence of the previous case," stated His Worship in the case of perjury against John Osterhout, Madoc, preferred by Crown Attorney Donnan following a charge of theft being laid against Osterhout one week ago. The latter was held that Osterhout committed perjury during his previous trial with intent to mislead the court. Originally Osterhout was found not guilty of the theft of cigarettes from the Canadian Cafe at Madoc, but guilty of the theft of a blanket from the pump. Constables Dymond and Danforth of Madoc, and Gray of Marmora, all testified that Osterhout had stated to them, that—"he had taken the cigarettes and figured they were coming to him because he had not received wages from the Canadian Cafe". Osterhout denied this statement during his trial for theft and following which Mr. Donnan laid the charge of perjury. Howard Graham, Trenton barrister appeared for the accused and stated he could not understand the method of the police, whom, he pointed out, could only remember one particular question asked and answered by Osterhout. "It looks like a frame-up. Surely I appear from my point of view," stated Mr. Graham as he called for defence, and the case was adjourned for judgment for a week.

Grand Jury Ends Two Days

Clarence Woodruff, 22-year-old Kingston youth was sentenced to serve ten days in the common jail after pleading guilty to a charge of vagrancy before Magistrate F. J. Butler K.C., in today's local police court. "As a rule I do not believe in cluttering up our jail with these tramps, but this man has a bad record behind him," explained His Worship after Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan K.C., read the accounts of 14 previous convictions against the 22-year-old ingrained vagrant. Woodruff on numerous charges.

John Smith 48-year-old Halifax transient was sentenced to seven days in jail on his own request. "This man has no visible means of support and was requested to be lodged in the jail for a few days as he is not feeling well", interrupted Chief Kidd, who added stating by saying —"with pneumonia" in view of the transients on the road are single men."

HURRY LAST DAY Joan Crawford Clark Gable IN "LOVE ON THE RUN"

Stirling and District

Stirling—The members and officers of St. John's Anglican Men's Association once again displayed excellent organization work and co-operation on Tuesday evening when they very capably served one of the largest crowds ever to attend a banner night's supper.

Well over three hundred guests gathered for the entertainment event which took place in the Memorial Hall. The ladies of the parish assisted with incidental matters connected with the dinner but smartly working staffs of cooks, waiters, etc. were taken from the membership of the club itself and under the direction of capable Committee workers did their work systematically and many favorable comments regarding the excellent service were expressed by the guests. Busy members hurried about the hall making doubly sure that all in attendance received all they desired to eat and everyone present enjoyed their fill of fine select young turkey.

Following the dinner the same fine system of team play was displayed by the club members as they cleared the hall of tables before the program started. The program committee had made excellent choice in their selection of artists to supply the entertainment for the evening and each number was greatly enjoyed. At about 8:45 p.m. the gathering was called to order and Dr. R. A. Carleton, president of the organization welcomed all the guests present on behalf of the club and introduced the first musical number on the program which was a trombone solo by Mr. R. Wardle of Belleville who was accompanied by Miss Mary Ann Ketchison. A vocal trio by Misses Bridle and Ketchison sisters of Frankford was greatly enjoyed.

At this time greetings were extended to the club by Rev. J. A. Koffend of St. Andrew's United Presbyterian Church on behalf of his congregation; Rev. Canon Greene of St. Mark's Anglican Church, Roseneath, also presented greetings on behalf of the neighboring parish. The next musical number was a soprano solo by Mrs. H. F. Ross with Mrs. H. H. Agler playing the accompaniment, a very appropriate and hearty applause Mrs. Ella graciously gave an encore.

The feature of the evening's entertainment was provided by Flight Sergt. Byrne, R. C. A. P. one of the national flying instructor staff here who at the present time is stationed at the Trenton Air Station.

His feats of slight of hand and magic were of the highest quality and its selection pleased the large audience to assist in the promotion of his carefully arranged act he drew rounds of applause from the audience, who watched in amazement some of the difficult parts of his act of magic ever displayed before a Stirling group. The trio composed of the Ketchison sisters and one soloist then offered another selection and the final number on the program was a trombone solo by Mr. R. Wardle to conclude a very delightful program. Greetings were also extended to the club in brief addresses by James Allen, Scout Master of Rawdon United Church Circuit; Rev. Canon Greene, Rector; Rev. Rural Dean Caldwell of Marmora. Expressions of thanks to all visiting and assisting artists were extended by Mr. T. W. Holmes and Rev. A. E. Hagerman, Rector of the Stirling parish.

Human Seal Gives Exhibition

A group of dazzling citizens rubbed their eyes and shivered in the cold biting north east wind on Sunday when Norman Peter Hickman, self-styled Human Seal, gamefully rollicked in the snow banks eating ice cream, and in the cold swimming trunks, and climaxed his act with a dive into the cold waters of the Municipal Swimming pool.

Hickman is a twenty-four-year-old Irishman and is "touring" in this country at the present time and puts on his Polar Bear act when the gate draws a big crowd. His advertised the fact throughout the village that no water was going to put him to enjoy his aquatic exercise and made good his boast on Sunday. Clad only in bathing trunks which revealed an enviable physique, he rolled of fin a snow bank first and then began his game with diving into the swimming pool which is fed by the icy water of Rawdon creek and after swimming around for a few minutes came out with a "warm smile."

Interesting added attraction at the opening hockey game of the Trenton Valley League which took place at the Stirling arena on Monday night was the Stirling Midget league game between Marcons and the Canadiens. The game was looked over by Referee Art Ireland particularly by the parents of the kids who will accompany find a place on the big teams. The score was 3-3 and the youngsters displayed plenty of natural ability. The line-ups were: Marcons—goal Bob Tulloch; defence Glen Wallshead and Glen Eggleton; centre Burt Bartedo; wings Doug. Bairnson and Don McIntosh; subs. C. Scott and J. Akers Jr.

Canadiens—goal R. Lowry; defence J. Moore and R. Cranston; centre A. Lummles; wings A. Shore and H. Bowerman; subs. P. Weaver and J. Lovell.

The Stirling Citizens Band under the leadership of Maurice Bell was in attendance and supplied splendid music between periods in the senior game.

The meeting was ably conducted by the president, Mrs. Horton, and the following solo and business items were discussed and a pleasing duet was given by Phyllis Dafoe and Jackie Sherry. Mrs. W. Hodgen gave a poem followed by a guitar solo by Leon Wilson. The Scripture lesson was read by Mr. James Reynolds and a most interesting topic was given by Miss Doris Horton on "The Christian Family and Its Problems." The meeting closed with an appropriate hymn following by prayer by Mrs. Horton. Then some games and contests ended the social evening.

Painful to Move!

YOU can prolong life by taking the advice of a famous physician, which is: "Keep the kidneys in good order, avoid too much meat, salt, alcohol or rich food. Drink plenty of pure water, and drive the uric acid out of the system by taking Juvatic in tablet form." The following letter from Mrs. Agnes Hyde of the Isabella Apts., 10 Parliament St., Toronto, is typical of what Juvatic has done for many people. Mrs. Hyde, of 11 Parliament St., Hamilton, Ont., said: "A few years ago I suffered from kidney trouble and felt that I would never be well. I couldn't move without pain. Finally I started taking Dr. Hoxsey Juvatic Tablets. I took them faithfully and gradually my ailment left me."

WORLD'S DEPRESSION LOST

The world has lost from 149 billion to 176 billion old gold dollars through the depression according to the report of Professor Vladimir Woytonsky, European economist, in a report on the social consequences of the economic depression.

He figures the loss equal to the entire cost of the great war. He also declares that it is impossible to deal with such a depression or to prevent another by isolated efforts.

Whatever the cost of the depression, almost everyone in the civilized world at least is poorer through it, some much poorer, some having lost all their savings through depletion of their bank accounts or loss of property because of loss of work; others are left dependent.

The cost, which is to be figured in social consequences rather than in money, is stupendous and depressing to the mind.

Prof. Woytinsky however finds that united effort may do something to prevent the recurrence of such a cycle. While he does not say so in so many words, he admits, what other economists become convinced of—that it is impossible to prevent depressions by isolated efforts.

Many means have been suggested and are being suggested for the prevention of a repetition of such a calamity.

One thing is clear, the world is recovering, though there are many matters which have to be cleared up before the general conditions become fairly ideal.

FLOODING

Flood control is again before the public as the Ohio and Mississippi rivers are on unprecedented rampage owing to midwinter rains. The breaking of levees stretching for miles upon miles allowing the flooding of hundreds of square miles is a proof of the complicated problems of engineering and financing which face the nation and the community which would prevent the ravage of such floods.

One writer points out that in earlier days there was an excuse for developments within the danger zone of streams, because they were largely highways of traffic, but now industry does not rely so much on water transportation. Unfortunately there are many living in the place of those who originally built in the flood zones and running the risk of conflict with nature, which often demands a heavy toll. But river banks have been and are economic and flood prevention and relief measures in time of flood disasters have to be considered.

There is that uncertainty of flood, which makes preventative measures costly. Floods may succeed one another in rapid order or there may be years between so that people almost fail to realize the danger and fail of floods a thing of the past. Some communities undertake temporary measures to tide them over a situation but undertake little of a permanent character.

Preventive measures have always attracted the attention of engineers and those communities where floods are not unknown. The measures of course vary with the nature of the country through which the streams flow.

At the present time the contemplated forced exodus from a strip, one hundred miles wide along the Mississippi and over one thousand miles long and the cost of relief forces one to realize the huge cost of relief operations in addition to the cost of engineering undertakings such as barriers or levees.

Communities which have suffered from floods know that there is always dangpr of recurrence unless some remedial measures are taken and so individuals who know what the cost of flooding is be in damaged property and household effects and on health of body and peace of mind are not to be blamed for bringing to the attention of authorities the need for reasonable plans which might forestal a flood, if such are possible. Preventive measures with any hope of permanency have of course to be thought out long before and are the work probably of years.

A MOTHER'S FAREWELL.

(The Kansas Author's Prize Poem for 1921)

Let not your heart be altogether lonely
Now that the last reluctant words are said,
I take away my face and voice, but leave you
My heart instead.

Our separate lives will only make love dearer,
And beautiful as distant mountains are
When all the little hills erase each other
And leave no scar.

For every westward going wind is my wind,
Dawning I send you, when my sun is high,
And all God's lovely stars are ours together.
Good-bye! Good-bye!

PEACE, PRETTY PEACE

DISARMAMENT, NAVAL PARITY, AND ALL THAT BUNK made pretty reading with the Locarnos, Lausannes and other modifying agreements to soften the harshness of the Versailles Treaty, executed in the heat of horror and reaction from the terrible toll of millions of lives sacrificed to the insatiable greed of the great God Mars.

*

Peace, pretty peace was in the air because Germany was helpless without a fleet or army and other nations were too busy licking their wounds, metaphorically speaking, to think of further carnage.

*

The British Lion thought it a good time to take a nap, and to the lullaby song of peace on earth and good will to men of good will old Leo stretched the nap into a lengthy sleep.

*

When the British Lion awoke Italy, a small nation with a Dictator, was strutting up and down the Front Page with an aerial armada, the greatest the world had ever seen, and hinting that it could with little effort blow the British fleet out of the Mediterranean and make Malta as holy as a Swiss cheese.

*

Hitler's helpless Germany emerged overnight with a great standing army, an efficient aerial navy and chemical apparatus sufficient to kill every inhabitant of the globe, besides having the beginning of a great navy and many new type submarines—also boasting of riddling every paragraph of the Versailles Treaty which had to do with disarmament.

*

And so, the British Lion woke up in an atmosphere in which peace and good will was strangled with poison gas and German zeppelins were flying over strategic points in England and Scotland and Canada.

*

There was a chance for a scrap in the Mediterranean but England wasn't ready and the fleet was withdrawn while all avenues of defence were strengthened and a few billion dollars more asked from taxpayers to protect their property and lives.

*

Just because a few big-mouthed braggarts must needs make warlike motions to keep the people inflamed with a so-called patriotism and blinded to the real worthwhile things of life which are peace on earth, good will to men of good will, and good fellowship with all the world, a decent home, enough to eat, and the privilege of helping in legitimate world's work as an integral cog in the community organization.

A campaign to reduce midnight car door slamming is one of the crying needs of this city, composed an insomnia-ridden East Bridge Street resident, who denies the nocturnal nuisance ranking only second worse to clinking manhole covers. The anti-door-banging citizen adds that the noise is one of the most penetrating of man-made sounds. "If they'd give the door one bang then let it go at that, I wouldn't mind; most of them, however, shut the door, then open it and bang it again. I always wait until the third slam before tossing over on the other side of the pillow and wail for the next car door banger to come along. It's like waiting for the man in the next room of the hotel to bang the second shoe down on the floor. Something's got to be done."

LOOKING BACKWARD

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

Jan. 29th, 1917.

The staff of the Y. M. C. A. and the occupants of the dormitory in the Association building had a celebration on Thursday night in the way of a social evening. In honor of the occasion they invited their friends and the Y.M.C.A. directors. The chair was very ably filled by Mr. Charles Cochrane and his address of welcome was a masterpiece. The following programme was much enjoyed: Toast "Our King and Country", proposed by Mr. P.O. MacLaurin and responded to by Mr. O. S. Clapp; vocal solo, Mr. Harry McKay; Address, Mr. E. P. Frederick; vocal solo, Mr. Bert P. Dickens; vocal solo, Mr. Cook; Address, Mr. J. O. R. McCurdy; Vocal Solo, Mr. W. Ralls; Address, Rev. One thing was quite apparent at the city council meeting last night. In fact it was so plain that to use an old expression "a blind man could have felt it with a stick", which is to say that the council this year contains not only a bunch of orators as you would run across in a day's search and hardly any of them feel like hiding their light under a bushel. When they get their bearings you won't find a faster group of single-handed talkers between Halifax and the North Pole. Many matters came up last night, some important, some trivial, but they were all thrashed out fearlessly and earnestly. The most important matter was the council placing itself upon record as being in favor of a fixed assessment of $15,000.00 per year on the property to Hotel Quinte, providing the hotel is rebuilt. The grant to the Public Library for 1907 will be $1,000.00, the same as last year.

People who have been bewailing the loss of their old fashioned winters" should now be abundantly satisfied.

A team of hockey players from Kingston, under the auspices of the Y.M.C.A. came to this city last evening to demonstrate to the people here in Belleville how the game should be played, but the demonstration was the oddest way about, the final score being 13 to 0. The "Crystals" team was composed of the following players: Rockwoods, Frontenacs and Kingstons second team. The following composed the Belleville team: Jamieson, Bruine, Stafford Weller, Kelso, Lang, McGuire. The referee was Frank McKeown and the goal umpires were H. P. Thomas for Belleville and W. S. Mirch for Kingston. The Kingston players were a fine gentlemanly lot and took their defeat in a good part. They do not the citizens of Belleville appreciate the team work and turn out in larger numbers to encourage them?

Mexico Forgets Its Revolutions To Concentrate on Constructing Modern Schools, Buildings, Roads

A new era of progress has begun in old Mexico. Witness a new modernistic office building for Mexico City, a new oil work on a new Mexican highway and one of Mexico's modernistic schools.

By STANFORD WITWER
Central Press Canadian Correspondent

Mexico City, Jan. 30 — In old Mexico, where the populace for several decades has spilled its time fighting revolutions, workmen are building schools, modern buildings and highways, by day.

A new era of progress has begun with ramifications in every part of the republic.

The staccato notes of riveting machines have replaced the rat-tat-tat of machine guns. Idle thousands, who fomented trouble in the past, are busy stamped parting modern roads for automobiles traffic.

Once-backward cities are the brightening spots of beauty with up-to-date edifices equal to those found in America's most cosmopolitan centres.

Another New Deal

Travellers to Manana land are agreeably surprised to find Mexico on an "economic" basis of late. And, as in the United States, the hand south of the Rio Grande is getting a "New Deal" from President Lazaro Cardenas, who inaugurated a "six-year plan" in 1934 calling for a complete rejuvenation of the republic's physical and moral structure. Results of this two-year-old program are not much in evidence.

The president's ambitious school building program heads the list. It is estimated that more than half Mexico's 16,000,000 inhabitants can neither read nor write. These must be educated before any real gains can be expected. To accomplish the task Cardenas plans to build 12,000 rural schools. During 1936 1,000 were finished. Last year this figure was doubled. Small, modernistic one-storey schools have risen in district where education has been unknown for centuries. The year 1943 has been set as the deadline for the program's completion.

Of secondary importance is the construction of highways. Inspired by the Pan-American road project started in 1923 and completed last July, the administration has embarked on an ambitious program which virtually will spider web the country with paved thoroughfares.

The Pan-American highway cost $11,000,000 but will attract so many tourists to Mexico with money to spend that it will indirectly finance many other "six-year plan" items, such as farm financing and loans to rural home owners.

Tentative supplements to the Pan-American road include a high-way from Mexico City to the Border of Guatemala, from the capital to California and a paved spur to replace the backbreaking trail from Mexico City to the northern states roads are planned connecting Matamoros with United Victoria and Monterey with Juarez and El Paso.

The modernizing of cities goes forward slowly but surely. The past, naturally, is being set by Mexico City where a commission of architects supervises and encourages modernistic construction. Already the capital is in the throes of a building boom with new theatres, hotels, apartments and office buildings springing up on every side.

Purposeful

A new postoffice and municipal building have been under during the last few years in Monterey.

All these innovations in Mexican life have a definite purpose. Highways attract visitors and increase trade among isolated communities. Education fits the somewhat backward Mexican natives for a rejuvenation of labor conditions and the proposed increase of industry in the cities and manufacture exclusively by Mexicans. Modern cities are operating hubs for new business and manufacturing, a vital need at the present time.

The assets for security of policyholders now total $30,111,197.25, an increase during the year of $621,-786.74. At the close of the year, the assets were made up of the following:

14.49—First mortgages or improved real estate.

54.81%—Bonds and debentures.

In an interview, A. C. Galbraith, General Manager of the Excelsior Life, stated that the Company's efficiency organization-wide organization had been reinforced during the year. All departments are carefully selected for ability, and character. Substantial gains in volume and quality of business have been made, with a lower acquisition cost. All policyholders' records for the monthly production of new business had been completed to October, 1936, and the following month exceeded any previous November production. The actual production per agent increased by 13 percent.

New business (fully paid-for) shows an increase of 14 per cent over the previous year and of 37 percent over the 1934 figure. Further development was made in the combined newspaper-magazine-direct mail sales campaign, under the Company's investment - protection - personal Pension policy which accounted for 30 percent of total sales during the year.

Major Galbraith was confident that with the general betterment in business conditions throughout Canada and the steady expansion of the agency force, the coming year would show most satisfactory gains in every department of the Company's activities.

FAIR BOARDS OF DISTRICT MEET TO SET DATES

H. Redner, Amelianburg, Named President of Organization

HEAR J. A. CARROLL

Belleville Fair to be Held This Year Aug. 31st, Sept. 1, 2, 3

With delegates to the Central Ontario Fairs Association enthusiastic over the success of the various fairs throughout this district last year and predicting increased patronage both in people and exhibits in the coming year, the annual meeting of the organization was held in this city on Thursday afternoon, J. A. Carroll, superintendent of fairs in Ontario being the principal speaker, giving the delegates something to ponder over until they reached their respective board meetings.

One of the important pieces of business at this gathering is the selection of fair dates for the various localities but there was no trouble at arriving at a decision. Napanee failed to set their date but will make a decision in the near future. Belleville will again hold a fair of four days, the event commencing on August 31st and continue until Tuesday, Sept. 3rd. The majority of the delegates asked for two days with the second day being the important one. The dates selected were Bancroft, September 15-17, Tweed, September 22-24, Wooler, September 30, October 1, Campbellford, August 26-28, Amelianburg, September 28-29, Brighton, September 14-15, Madoc October 5-6, Stirling, September 21-23, Warkworth, October 7-8, Roseneath, October 14-15, Marmora, October 12-13.

Harry Redner, president of Amelianburg Society was the unanimous choice of the delegates for the office of president for the coming year. Harry Redner has given valuable service to his local society and always ready to assist in furthering the aim of the district body. F. E. Henderson, Napanee, second vice president, F. J. Wessels, Wooler, Secretary Lewis Hay, Campbellford and auditors, G. W. Vernon, Roseneath and Harry Orvis, Wooler.

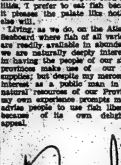
Mr. Carroll Heard

Mr. Carroll, introduced by the presiding officer, congratulated the fairs on their continued success and their efforts to keep abreast of the times but also paid criticism to offer and by the frank discussion, which was held after the meeting some worthwhile work was accomplished. The speaker told the delegates they would have to assume more responsibility in the government of their societies and that they would have to considerably increase their revenue from other sources in order to make their fairs more progressive and in tune with the times. He proposed joint advertising for the district fairs, the same to be paid proportionately by all the fair boards.

He was for the distribution of the prize list, that the greatest good could be obtained from the money spent. Informed the gathering. The classifications in many sections, particularly in the live classes were wrong and there should be an adjustment made. He declared there was not enough difference shown between the second prize money and the light draught, some suggestion for Light Draught were being shown in the Heavy Purpose classes and vice versa. He told the delegates that last year, he had the question was to make a Wagon Horse class instead of General Purpose and that would include horses weighing up to 1,250 pounds either mare or stocky stallion. He pointed out the place where large firms of the cities had their delivery horses they might sell the class Farm Chunks as the big type required chunky, fleshy and low set horses for that class.

Mr. Carroll told the delegates that a wider program would have to be adopted at the various fairs but that would be left to the individual societies. He thought the various boards could take the place of the Farmer's Institutes, which were in reality dead on their feet and which did splendid work. The speaker advised the various boards to lay more stress on local exhibitors, in order to get the people of the community more interested in the fair. He also advised that women be admitted as district and provincial meetings to join in the discussion especially when women's work, and kindred classes are being discussed.

Seymour Twp. Farmers Suffer Loss in Fire



Fire, whose origin has not been learned, completely destroyed the large barn of William Stephani, Seymour Township, near Stockford, shortly before midnight, Thursday. Loss was estimated to be in excess of $7,000, with only about $2,000 covered by insurance. Awakened by the lurid glow of the flames, a hired man of the farm turned in the alarm and awakened the sleeping family. With the help of neighbors the family managed to remove thirty head of cattle and five horses from the burning building. Fifty tons of hay and all farm machinery were destroyed.

"ANY DAY A FISH DAY"

A Message From The Premier of New Brunswick

"To me it seems strange that one should be coaxed or coerced into eating fish and, to my mind, it presupposes a mental resistance to over-emphasize the health-giving and energizing qualities of fish. While I do not doubt for a minute that fish contains superb food qualities, I prefer to eat fish because it pleases the palate like nothing else will.

"Living as we do, on the Atlantic Seaboard where fish of all varieties are readily available in abundance, we are naturally deeply interested in having the people of our sister provinces make use of our food supplies; but despite my necessary interest as a public man in the natural resources of our Province, my own expression prompts me to advise people to use fish liberally because of its own delightful appeal."

Little Benny's Note Book

Us fellows was standing around the letter box tawking and arguing about different subjects, one day and Sammy Judge saying yes and Skinny Martin and Sid Hunt saying no, me saying, G. rosiem, the most important part of a book is the plot, and when you look at the pictures they give the plot away in advants and spoil the book.

Sure, you know what you're reading about before you come to it and waste all the excitement. Skinny Judge said, Good nite and time I was going to take a book out of the library and I looked at a picture in the middle and it said under it, With one bounce the lion was on him. Well believe me with one bang the book was closed and I didn't take it. Maybe how you knotted I was. I didn't want to know even was a lion till I got up to it, he said.

That was your fault for looking at the pictures before you came to the picture Martin said. When I read a book I never look at a picture till I get about 3 pages from the end, he continued and then I tern back and look at the picture and see how it comes out like in real life, he said, and Sid Hunt said, I'm with him on the pictures you never could be sure the plot really could of happened. When I see a book without pictures I think, The heck with it, I'm not going to read it, I know nobody just made it all up when there's no pictures to prove it, he said.

Sid and another reason is sometimes you cant remember whether you've read a book before or not but if the're is pictures in but you can always remember pictures, so look at all the time they save you keeping you from reeding some teh over again that mite of not been weith reeding in the first place, Skinny said.

Being the best argument yet, and me and Sherry was still trying to get the best of it when the school bell come and all the fellows came up and line up a game of cops and rackateers.

NERVES ON EDGE!
DAYS of MISERY, NIGHTS of TORTURE
"I HATE to think of what I suffered with my nerves—the strain, the worry, the awful sleepless nights. Nothing did me any good until my husband got me a bottle of Fellows' Syrup. That bottle soon worked a cog wheel. It began to enjoy life and sleep like a child. I kept on with this grand discussion especially when women's work, and kindred classes are being discussed.
The mineral elements in Fellows' Syrup are like those contained in nerve tissue need. The 60-year-old tonic is prescribed by Doctors in 52 countries to help build nerve force. Fellows' Syrup is the opposite, helps to renew tissue, blood and nerve cells.
Fellows' has many imitators. Demand the genuine. Look for the name "Fellows" on the wrapper. Two sizes at your druggist's.

Frost Penetrates About One Foot

Frost has penetrated the ground to a distance of about one foot, it was reported this morning by employees of the local waterworks department, as a result of the colder weather. For the first time on record, probably, at so late a date no freezeups of outside services or small mains have been reported by the department this winter. Customary precautions against freezing of hydrants are being taken, however. Given favorable weather on Saturday a complete inspection and flushing of hydrants by the business section of the city will be undertaken.

Do something about it and do it today. You can take endless pills —but just remember that drastic medicine taking is an unhealthy habit and often harms its effect.

Correct common constipation naturally by including sufficient vitamin B and "bulk" in your diet.

Kellogg's All-Bran supplies vitamin B with the "bulk" you need. In the body, it absorbs twice its weight in water, and exercises and sponges out the system.

Rid your body of poisons and see how much better you'll feel. Try Kellogg's All-Bran for a week. If not satisfied, your money will be refunded by the Kellogg Company. Eat two tablespoonfuls a day, as a cereal with milk or fruits, or in cooked dishes. Stubborn cases with each meal.

Helps END A COLD Quicker

The 3-Minute VapoRub Massage

Massage VapoRub briskly on the throat, chest and back (between and below the shoulder blades). Then, spread it thick over the chest and cover with warmed cloth.

Almost before you finish rubbing, VapoRub starts to bring relief two ways at once—two direct ways:

1. Through the Skin: VapoRub acts direct through the skin like a poultice or plaster.

2. Medicated Vapors. At the same time, its medicinal vapors, released by body heat, are breathed in for hours—direct to the irritated air-passages of the nose, throat and chest.

The combined poultice-and-vapor action loosens phlegm—relieves irritation—helps break congestion. While the little patient relaxes into comfortable sleep, VapoRub keeps right on working. Often by morning the worst of the cold is over.

Avoids Risk of Stomach Upsets This safe, external treatment cannot possibly upset the stomach, as constant internal "dosing" is so apt to do. It can be used freely, as often as needed, even on the youngest child.

Now White—Stainless

Thanks to a new process, VapoRub now comes to you in white stainless form. Only the odor is removed; it is the same VapoRub—the same formula and the same effective double action.

VICKS VAPORUB

Advice to the Lovelorn

By Beatrice Fairfax

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage.

(Copyright 1937 King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

WHEN GIRL WEDS BOY, HER MAMA CAN BE HIS BEST ALLY

Meet Girl nabob Boy and the mamma's boy. Then comes the march, there is one outstanding fact that will be well for the young couple to remember, particularly Girl.

She is no longer Mama's and Papa's pampered darling child. She has moved from the ranks of a possibly spoiled daughter to that of a young matron who is running her own show.

This is true of Boy in lesser degree. All those things that Mother did for him, and which he took for granted, he may miss.

Has darning or proxy for a young bride, as is sewing on buttons or stitching a stitch here and there. Not nearly so thrilling, these chores, so hearing how adorable she is and how fine she looks in the stars.

Girl has got to face the fact that motherhood is not a never-ending romance. Everyday life presents too many demands. There's the butcher, the baker, the man who reads the electric light meter, meals to be cooked and served, dishes to be washed afterward, etc. A hundred little things have to be done, even in light housekeeping.

And now, after the thrilling excitement of the wedding is over, the rice shaken out of the bridal finery, the honeymoon a thing of the past and the work-a-day world started, then is the time, if it's a shock to Girl to realize that Boy has become a prize for grabs.

His ardent love-making came to an end when the honeymoon waned, and as one bride wrote to me: "He doesn't look at me the same way, no one than he does of his mother." Boy expects her to take his devotion for granted. That the time when they're married, why he should be expected to continue to spin compliments.

And Girl is likely to remember all of those little attentions that Mama heaped on her, and which daunt Boy regarding the wedding gifts. The freshly-pressed party dress, which she found waiting for her when she was going out for an evening, the fact that she happened, like turning on a tap in the kitchen sink.

Now in addition to getting the meals, she has to press her own party dress, see to her own stockings that happen. Remember her role is not quite the simple job it was prior before she had potatoes to peel and greasy pans to wash.

Boy doesn't know the first sign of cleavage between Girl and Boy and thirty to forty dollar Girl, all of her little worries to Mama. Never has she realized what it means to Boy to be the role of pampered daughter for that of tolerant wife overnight, and naturally she wants to tell mother all about it.

Boy likewise is not accustomed to having his mother-in-law in the house. Mama is the root of all evil in family quarrels, for where the holy state of wedlock with enough inhibitions regarding her mother-in-law, without getting any outside help.

There is perhaps no other person in the world of whom he is prepared to be as jealous, as of his wife's mother. He doesn't like to consider her his friend, but approaches her with reserve; thinks of his mother-in-law as

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE BELLE
"The Plainsman"

The beautiful romance of "Wild Bill" Hickok and Calamity Jane" two frontier characters who wrote their names large in American history, is the motivation of the new Cecil B. DeMille epic, "The Plainsman," Jean Arthur and Gary Cooper. American greatness in the making coming to the Belle tomorrow (Saturday), Monday and Tuesday, matinee daily.

The leading roles are played by Gary Cooper and Jean Arthur, the romantic couple who scored in "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town". They are supported by a score of brilliant actors including James Ellison as "Buffalo Bill"; Charles Bickford as John Latimer, notorious gun-runner; Porter Hall as Jack McCall, the man who slew Hickok; Helen Burgess as the Indian Sashem "Yellow Hand"; Victor Varconi as "Painted Horse". John Miljan as General Custer; Frank McGlynn, Sr., as Abraham Lincoln, Helen Burgess, recently "discovered" in a Hollywood Beauty Contest, has been given an important role of Mrs. William A. Cody, and many others.

Custer Massacre Portrayed

"The Plainsman" is produced in the typical DeMille manner which is DeMille's undisputed province in the motion picture field. He mightily sweep embraces several battles, including the massacre of Custer and his men at Little Big Horn, and the infiltration of thousands of eager frontiers into the covered wagon, on horseback and on foot into the rich lands occupied by the Indians.

Among the first to go into the new land is Hickok, sent to find out who is selling guns to the Indians in violation of the law. He meets Miss Arthur, driver of a stage coach, and falls in love with her. He resents her familiarity with other men and doesn't show his emotion.

Gun-Runners Discovered

It is after Calamity Jane and him are defeated that Cooper learns that Hickok and Jane are responsible for the illegal guns. He manages to herd them and their teamsters into Indian territory and there engages them in a poker game until the troops arrive. The story reaches a tremendous climax in the battle of Wounded Knee which the dozen hostile gun-runners face the line man who is guarding them single-handed.

All the care DeMille has become famous for in any production he makes has gone into "The Plainsman". Thousands of real Cheyenne Indians were used, several troops of cavalry and eye-witnesses of the original shooting were approached to Hollywood for technical advice in order to keep the picture authentic. The story is from a novel by Courtney Riley Cooper and the Hickok biography by Frank Wilstach.

"The Plainsman" requires nearly two hours in presentation, and it is suggested for your perfect enjoyment that you see it from the beginning, daily at 2.40, 7.10 and 9.30. Performance start daily at 2.30, 7.00 and 9.10.

The Belle Latest World News Flashes will be exhibited on the same program. On Saturday matinee only a short chapter of "Undersea Kingdom" will be exhibited.

"Love on the Run"

Joan Crawford and Clark Gable are appearing at the Belle Theatre for the last times in the merriest romance of their gay and glorious careers, in the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production "Love on the Run" with Mr. Gable and Miss Crawford as the Americans in Paris who find themselves involved in the thrilling events leading up to the abdication of King Edward VIII.

Mr. Gable is a reporter and Miss Crawford is a girl in the employ of the American Ambassador to France, played by Reginald Owen. Adolphe Menjou is the head of the secret service, and Mr. Gable and Miss Crawford are assigned to keep an eye on Mr. Owen, who is suspected of being a spy. Their adventures in Paris, Vienna and Constantinople are filled with laughter and romance.

Franchot Tone, Mona Barrie and Frank Morgan are also in the cast. Jack Conway directed the picture from a screen play by Manchester Boddy and Gladys Hurlbut.

"Love on the Run" is the last picture for which you get your money's worth and more!

NEW BOOSTER FOR WINGS

Detroit, Jan. 29 (CP)—There's a new booster for Detroit Red Wings today—a girl—born to Mrs. Sydney Howe, wife of the Wings's forward yesterday. Howe's teammates found it hard to believe for Red Wings usually become fathers of boys.

Johnny Sorrell has a daughter as has Marty Barry, and now Howe. All the rest have sons.

Red Wings have had two sons: Herbie Lewis, two; Captain Doug Young, two; Eddie Goodfellow, one, and Wally Kilres, one.

AT THE CAPITOL
"Gold Diggers of 1937"

In order to prove that all comedians don't sit around thumbing the pages of Joe Miller's Joke book in their spare time, Victor Moore, the stage and screen comedian, is showing friends an "Eccentricity Count," which was born between scenes of the Warner Bros. musical, "Gold Diggers of 1937," now playing at the Capitol through Saturday night.

Moore, who plays a leading comedy role in the gay musical, has developed because he likes to study the peculiar mannerisms of the human race.

"Audiences are quick to detect a flaw in your impersonation of the human race," he says. "That's why I'm always doing my scenes before about the funny things my fellow players do and say. A true-to-life impersonation always goes over big in anybody's theatre."

Moore's favorite pushes his hat on the back of his head as soon as he gets a chance, and stopped pricking on a scene. He leaves it that way until the next scene is ready.

Moore's pet peeve is telephone complex. She can't stay away from the set telephone for more than two minutes at a time. She isn't at all backward about her opinion, but fusses and fumes to herself if one curl of her hair is out of place.

As Harriet in a pencil director. She sits with a pencil in her hand and at the end of it until it is half demolished. Moore says her chastity in pencils forms a clue including the eraser.

Moore considers himself as a "Stomach Worrier."

"At least three times a day," he says, "I get worrying about my diaphragm. Not that it's going to do any good, but I'm certain I'm afraid if I should lose too many pounds I wouldn't look like a comedian and would lose my appeal."

"Gold Diggers of 1937" is the fourth of the famous and delightful "Gold Diggers" series turned out by Warner Bros. Studios. Co-stars Dick Powell and Joan Blondell.

TWEED SCHOOL DEFEATS MADOC

Madoc, January 29 — (Special)—Madoc High School dropped another game to the Tweed collegiate quintet when they were defeated by Tweed High School on Thursday evening by the score of 4-3. The game was fast and hard fought. Madoc opened the scoring, when Reeves scored a nice pass from Munro and banged it in the basket. Tweed tied it up as Doyle, barged through alone to score.

In the second period Arber scored on two passes from Munro and Sayers. Reeves accounted for Madoc's tally on a pass from Munro. In the last period Doyle for Tweed tew up, when he beat Hamilton with a shot from the line. Reeves' scored his third goal to make the score a penalty shot.

Martin in the Madoc nets turned in a stellar performance while Doyle, Sayers and Parks did good real work. The Madoc defense put up a good game fagaing only once as Sayers and Arber beat them for a goal.

For Tweed, Tummon, Doyle, Mervaw and Long were the outstanding men. The game was clean with only six penalties being handed out.

Line-up:

BRILLIANT CAREER OF 'PEERLESS HOWIE' MAY BE AT AN END

(By Sydney Gruson, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, Jan. 29 (CP)—Old Howie Morenz, his left leg encased in a cast, whacked the hockey world go by from a hospital bed today while the faithful wondered whether the brilliant career of "peerless Howie" was at an end.

They carried Howie from the Forum—where he's played for all but two of 13 National Hockey League seasons—on a stretcher last night, the leg fractured above the ankle from a mixup on the boards with Chicago's Earl Siebert.

Then a second-leading rush that led to the break; the end of Howie's 1936-37 season and perhaps the end of the season and the busing career as he's known it. Captain Jolliat line after being reunited for the first time in weeks with Morenz and Aurel Joliat, he showed the old-time speed and all the playmaking ability that had earned his decade as a top-notcher.

Morenz, including the four goals scored this season, has scored 270 goals in the N.H.L., not far off the all-time record of Joe Malone. That total doesn't include the playoff scores, and Howie had many.

In between periods of the Hawks-Canadien game, Hart sat on the edge of the bed surrounded by the quietened Canadiens, and said: "What's one of the toughest breaks we've had this year."

Only yesterday, Hart had given what he thought was the secret of Morenz' return to form.

"I think he was loosenlie away from Canadiens," said Hart who has Morenz and company 12 points in front of the Canadian section. "He is happy now. He's playing fine hockey—backchecking well — working his head off."

ALBERT COLLEGE WINS OVER O.S.D. IN SMART GAME

Score Tied Three Times And Play is Very Even

STRONG DEFENCE

Fraser of Albert Had The Pleasure of Scoring Winning Goal

The Albert College senior interscholastic hockey sextette registered their initial victory of the season with a 3 to 2 victory over the O.S.D. "Yellow Jackets" in a scholastic fray at Queen's senior O.S.S.A. game at the Belleville Arena yesterday afternoon. Three times during the battle the championship of the game changed hands, while Albert staged a third period rally to win and subsequently set up a tight defence as the O.S.D. lads carried the bulk of the offensive play in the latter moments of the play.

Albert scored first, when Matty took a pass from Fraser and the Yellow Jackets' defence and scored an snake-high shot. The O.S.D. literally bombarded the Albert goal but could not score until the last minute of play when Kinkel completed a sensational end to end rush and scored with a hard shot that shot into the right-hand side of the net. At every time the game became hostilities in the second canto, Mayle scored for the O.S.D. and putting them in the lead, when his shot was deflected by the net off an opposing defenceman's stick. With a beautiful solo effort Yale knotted the count at two-all, identifying moments of the game and the score stood thus until the last period opened.

Early in the last period Fraser sallied through centre, shifted to left and skimmed the corner of the net to put Albert in the lead 3 to 2. The O.S.D. carried the play with a fierce attack, seeking the point but poor shooting when in scoring position kept them from knotting the count. The "Yellow Jackets" also missed two penalty shots in this stanza.

The O.S.D. proved much better skaters and carried the puck well, but the Albert squad took advantage of every opportunity and were rewarded in victory. Fraser, McDonald, Yale and Clouse played the best hockey for Albert as Boutcart, Mabrey, Mayle, Mallon and Kinkel all turned in fine efforts for the Yellow Jackets who teamed splendidly together even in defeat.

The lineups:

Albert College: Goal, Saunders; defence, Campbell and Fraser; centre, Mady; wings, McDonald and Yale; subs, R. Clouse, Glover, G. Clouse and H. Campbell.

O.S.D.: Goal, Trainin; defence, Mabrey and Mallon; centre, Boutcart; wings, Berry and Major; subs, Walker, Wahrgang, Kinkel, Pierce and May.

Summary:

1st period:

Albert: Mady (Yale) 2.45
O.S.D.: Kinkel 19.00
Penalties: None.
2nd period:
O.S.D.: Mayle 3.30
Albert: Yale 18.15
Penalties: None.
3rd period:
Albert: Fraser 4.45
Referee: Snooze "Red" Townsend.

Brown Bomber Favorite Over Husky Pastor

(By Ed Fiber)

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, Jan. 29.—(AP)—Before the season's largest fight crowd which figures to get considerably less than the last rounds 15 pays for Byron Bomber Joe Louis makes his first important start of the year tonight against Tuffy Griffith in Madison Square Garden's ring.

If pre-fight calculations stand up, some 18,000 of the fight faithful laying as high as $16.50 apiece each on the line to see the bettle, probably won't be more than comfortably seated before the thing is all over.

Each fighter has predicted a knockout victory for himself. The experts are almost unanimous in picking Louis for a happy triumph. The betting odds, as high as 13 to 5 a few days ago, are still on Louis at about 9 to 1, for a quick finish.

This drop in the betting figures was the result of the Bomber's extending a training camp knockdown for Louis on Wednesday—a knockdown which boosted the ticket-purchasing pace to such an extent that the gate promises to come within shouting distance of the $100,000 mark before the boys answer the bell.

Louis Has Advantage

In making Louis the overwhelming favorite, the experts overlook not at all the extraordinary appear on his side. He is considerably more experienced than the former New York University footballer who looks such a fab right hand and left leg, education into a front-line heavyweight battler, and also will be considerable weight edge into the ring, probably scaling about 203 to his New York rival's 195.

However, remembering the 10 to 1-shot flabby to the Max Schmeling flight last year, when a right hand exploded the Louis myth in Yankee Stadium, those who are on Louis in tonight's fight are simply playing along with the experts' predictions.

The 25-year-old Pastor considers himself sufficiently equipped with all the ring necessities to stop Louis. One thing is certain: he insists he won't be frightened into defeat as the ghost of Max Baer and Primo Levinsky when they faced the Brown Bomber flailed back at the Bomber from Detroit.

SEMI-PRO BASEBALL CONTEST ANNOUNCED

New York, Jan. 29 (AP)—Honus Wagner, commissioner of semi-professional baseball, announced today the inauguration of four international series next year, with champions from Canada, Cuba, United States, Mexico and Cuba competing.

The competition, the announcement said, will be in the nature of "world series" between the national tournaments in the four countries that have been completed. Early in September (1938), the champions of Canada and the United States will meet in one seven-game elimination series, and those of Mexico and Cuba will battle for honors in another.

Victors in these two "semi-final" series will then meet for the championship honors of Americas in a final contest in Cuba.

National tournaments are being sanctioned this year in each of the four countries. The Dominion baseball championship finals will be held at Winkle, Kane, with a minimum purse of $5,000 to the winner, Wagner disclosed.

George Mantha of Canadiens Scores Four Against Hawks To Help Team Increase Margin

Habitants Suffer Severe Loss, When Morenz Breaks Leg

BRUINS EARN DRAW

Rangers Lead Until Well Toward End of Pastime

(By A. E. Fulford)

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Even if there isn't another bone broken before playoff time this still will be the most disastrous national league season for injuries to high-priced hockey workmen. The situation has the worried magnates walking around with their fingers crossed wondering where the jinx will strike next.

It wouldn't be so bad if the injuries were confined to third string men, who might be replaced easily, but the latest to bring hit-list up follows who get their $7,000 and perhaps more each season to draw the customers into the big-time stadia.

The latest recruit to the hospital wards is Howie Morenz, Montreal Canadiens' master performer at centre ice who ends a valiant comeback this season after two mediocre campaigns. He caught his skate in the boards in Monday's last night and in falling broke his left leg.

The Stratford streak was injured in the first period and Canadiens went on to win the game from Chicago Black Hawks by 6-5. But that wasn't important in the face of the injury to the great centre. It got scarcely more attention from observers than the 1-1 tie Boston Bruins and Rangers played in New York.

Canadiens 12 Points Up

Vastly important was the question whether Morenz' forced retirement for the season will seriously affect the Habitants' Stanley Cup hopes. They have proved before this season that no one cog is too important in their machine and perhaps they will do it again. They are ten points up in points on Montreal Maroons, runners-up in the Canadian section and they should be able to do some coasting to the playoffs.

Important, too, was the question whether the injury to the 34-year-old Morenz will end his hockey career. While retaining his effective playmaking ability he natters around the ice in recent years and the injury may end his hockey days.

But they said that about Roy Worters when the New York Americans gawk collapsed in New York and then underwent an operation. And Worters himself says he will be back next year in better shape than ever.

Morenz and Worters are only two of the great stars who have been put out of the game for the season. Eddie Shore, Boston's star defenceman, Doug Young of Detroit Red Wings and Harry Oliver of Americans know they won't be back before next fall. Then there is young Cyrille Boulton of Wings who, like Young and Morenz, has a broken leg.

Other big shots have been out of competition for short spells, notably Charlie Conacher of Toronto and Doc Romnes of Chicago. Conacher may be back in the game by the month with his injured wrist healed but no date has been set for Romnes' return. Buzz Boll, Toronto left wing, expects to play against Maroons Saturday after two months idleness with a broken rim.

Going Out Nice Way

If Morenz' career is ended he's going out the nice way. No veteran has ever made a more spectacular comeback than he did this season. And he has a great record to which he can look back.

In 13 1-3 seasons of National League play he has piled up a total of 466 points, a mark that will go down among the great ones in hockey history.

He led the league in scoring two seasons—1928 and 1931. He was on Stanley Cup teams in 1924, '30 and '31 and is the only centre of the last decade who has been compared with the mid-ice men of other days —Cyclone Taylor and Frank Nighbor.

Morenz' injury must have inspired George Mantha to better things. After scoring only six goals all season he clipped in four last night, Mantha and Johnny Gagnon contributing the others. Wildcat Carbonneau scored Hawks' marks with Pep Kelly and Louis Trudel made up the five.

Hawks led for five minutes in the first, period but Canadiens rapped in three quick ones while Earl Seibert was serving a penalty. After that Canadiens had seldom was in danger.

The point Rangers got in the tie with Boston enabled them to keep their slender lead of 3½ runs in the American Division's second spot. Alex Shibicky scored for New York and Bill Cowley and Art Jackson helped and Ray Getliffe made it a tie midway through the third.

TWO SURPRISES IN TOWN LEAGUE

Benedict-Proctor Held to a Tie While R.C.A.F. Beat Brighton

Trenton, Jan. 29 (Special)—The town league provided two surprises Wednesday night. The first combine unexpectedly ended in a tie, after seventy minutes of play, Benedict and Proctor and Canadian Order of Foresters were matched in the opening tangle. The first named went scoreless and it was not until five minutes after the second period started that the initial tally was registered, Ted Bigtod the Silton man on the score sheet by a close in shot. Immediately later, J. Beale was penalized for hooking and incidentally his penalty was the only one issued during the night. Bowden took a neat pass from Graham in front the crease and to conclude the second period. The Canadian Order of Foresters scored within the lead halfway in the third stanza when A. Gay flicked in a shot from behind the puck. The Benedicts sent four men in the attack and played a bewildering offensive, that resulted in knotting the count at the end of time with only a minute to spare before the bell sounded the game. Both aggressively displayed cautious tactics in the overtime canto and the game finished in a draw. Benedict Proctor 2, Canadian Order of Foresters 2. Teams:

Canadian Order of Foresters: Goal, Scott; defence, Scott and Bowden; centre, Bigtod; wings, Kemsburg; wings, G. Redcliffe and Austin; substitutes, Yorke, Graham, Gay, Dawson, Mann, Staples.

Benedict Proctor: Goal, Lohnes; defence, Benham and J. Beale; centre, Gaines; wings, Lent and Wright; alternates, Blakely, C. Ellis, Johnson, Hidgery.

Referee: D. Wiggins.

R.C.A.F. 2; Brighton 0

Brighton's smart representative was handed a shutout by a smooth working R.C.A.F. sextette at Camp Borden in the second performance of the evening. The winners obtained their three points in the second frame when they replaced a smooth working attack. Trepanier combined with Moore to slit the Brighton defence and netted the middle score on a pass from Wrigley. Trepanier completed his second goal of the evening and the R.C.A.F. final replied came when Coughlin laid down a neat pass from close in. Could be Smith's next after he had drawing splendid form and batted the rubber out of his stick to score. Teams:

R.C.A.F.: Goal; defence, Gauthier and Hewson; centre, Lamarre; wings, Wrigley and Hill; alternates, Trepanier, Coughlin, Moore, Shiels, Mumteen.

Brighton: Defencsions; defence, Ukrouki and H. Lambert; centre, Hamilton; wings, Smith and Harry Lambert; alternates, Hamilton, Gilbert, Corbert, Kealing, Lindsay, Chapman.

Referee: D. Wiggins.

Aurie, while Aurel Joliat, closed the gap between them and Syd Howe and Sir-Jackson in fifth by gaining an assist.

Sport Callings

The Trenton Quints, Sun has his hockeyrdom quite proficiently.

We hear there is to be a contract raid upon the ball players of the C.O.M.L. by two Northern Ontario baseball clubs in the near future. Two local ballsters are seriously thinking of the north young men, get ready, while contracts have been made by the Northern diamond moguls in Petarboro and Noranda. What the results will lead to is hard to tell, but the story is so idle rumor. Only the future already knows. Regarding one of the contract holders, he's a good diamond sagittarius and a certain move.

Joe Wait, Murphy and Fred Bentley say—those Petes shall not pass tonight. Incidentally the two Petes are exceptionally fast three nights and a speed embarrassment will likely be seen tonight.

Joe Shortt, Ki-Y league maestro, says the applications are coming in by groups and by the various groups of the Ki-Y league. What has been most essential in the Ki-Y group gaining in past years has been good refereeing. If players are to be developed through the proper channels, they must learn the rules from the time they first commence to play the game. Poor officiating will do more to ruin hockey than anything else, we know of.

Incidentally if our lacrosse O.H.A. players would only be interested, they could do much in stimulating interest in the Ki-Y boys. Would it not be a splendid idea to have as many of these lacrosse players as possible coach a respective Ki-Y team this season. Such an arrangement would certainly help over a team and be pure publicity for the Ki-Y group and instruct the players as to the proper methods of play and thereby help the O.H.A. to advance a step further in the interesting game. We understand that Cecil Cook and Joe Shortt are going to try to organize such a league in the representation they would be only too glad to assist.

The Chilcan Hawks scored twice goals to win 90 out of 100 N.H.L. games last night, but they failed to score enough to beat the Flying Frenchmen, the Canadiens, who scored 6 goals to Major McLaughlin's charges' 5. We expect to hear some fancy hockey in the prevailing squawk from the Major before, sundown. In the other big hockey game the Rangers and Bosun split points after a one-all struggle.

The Canadien's victory over the Hawks was perhaps the most costly of the year. Howie Morenz, Cecil Hart's sharpen the services of Howie Morenz the "Stratford Flash", who was injured in the first period by Earl Seibert and crashed to the ice with a broken leg. Howie is above the saddle. He will be out for the season. Howie is expected to return to the Canadiens of Montreal next year and the game's other stars, the Stratford boy, Gordon Drillon, the Montreal boy, Toe Blake and Montreal Maroon deals a serious blow to the cause of Canadiens.

The odds dropped from 2 to 1 on Louis as Pastor was given an outside chance to win over Joe Louis tonight.

Shipping Damaged

Heavy seas inflicted heavy damages to shipping on the coast of Portugal in a gale which reached 90 miles an hour, although the worst passed inland.

Winds moderated in the Straits of Gibraltar and Western Mediterranean where even the most powerful vessels, British men-of-war included, sought safety in harbors. The Moroccan ports of Casablanca and Rabat were closed. Shipping in the vicinity was at a standstill.

The 12ton Dutch motor sloop Wilde Gerhard sought shelter at Rochford after colliding with a Spanish vessel. The Wilde's captain, his wife, his eight months' old baby, and four members of the crew were rescued.

The worst disasters were the loss of the French trawler Lorette with 30 men aboard and the British trawler Amethyst carrying a crew of fifteen men, missing after flashing distress signals in the North Sea Tuesday.

Adrianopo, Portugal, near Oporto, the storm sank or damaged 23 vessels, including the British steamer Ashanti and the Norwegian steamer Ingria, within the harbor.

HOUSE SHORTAGE IS CALLED ACUTE

Question is Referred to At Directors' Meeting of Chamber

All the regular weekly meeting of the Directors of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce on Thursday, Mr. Walter H. Biggs, the newly-elected President, occupied the chair and the following directors were present: Messrs. E. V. Illsley, H. B. Fairfield, W. H. Morton, E. F. Bernstein, J. B. Boyce and Secretary-Manager J. O. Herity.

Mr. John D. O'Flynn and Mr. Fred N. Hooper were guests at the meeting and spoke briefly in acknowledging the welcome extended to them by the president on behalf of the directors.

Mr. Bernstein referred to the great shortage of houses in Belleville and stated that only three houses were erected in this city last year under the Federal Housing Scheme. A general discussion of this Scheme and the later Property Improvement Act, followed Mr. Bernstein's remarks and it was decided that the conditions upon which these two Acts to building are granted, should be laid before an Open Forum meeting for discussion some time in the near future.

On Tuesday evening, February 2, an Open Forum meeting and dinner will be held at the New Queens Hotel at 6.30 o'clock. The guest speaker will be Mr. Clinton Henderson, Immediate Past President of the Municipal Board of Trade; a Director of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, and President of Messrs. Henderson, King & Chartland Ltd., Montreal, one of the largest exporting firms of produce in Canada. Mr. W. Mol. Clarke, Secretary of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, Montreal, will also be present. An interesting and enjoyable evening is assured to those who attend this meeting.

LEVEES

Herculean Task.

A herculean task was involved in restoring the towns along the Ohio waterfront from Pittsburgh to Cairo and government agencies developed a broad rehabilitation program with provisions for placing about 300,000 persons on relief rolls.

Louisville officials stood on the estimate of 200 dead made four days ago as the Kentucky metropolis struggled with war-time fervor to care for thousands of the 230,000 persons driven from their homes.

Across the river, Jeffersonville, Ind., its 12,000 inhabitants reduced to 800, escaped it was "more bad not out". The 200 survived the flood in a barricaded factory on the river front.

An alarming reduction in Cincinnati's water supply caused daily water ration to be cut in half as the city's disaster council made plans to have 10,000 WPA workers start a new pump.

After surveying the damage wrought by the flood, Governor Leon M. Datzy of Ohio proposed a conference between governors of the "flood states" and the federal government to discuss a long range flood control program.

Rehabilitation Problems.

He said the state could not possibly raise enough funds to meet the needs for rehabilitation.

At Huntington, W. Va., the police force was augmented by American Legion volunteers to aid law enforcement after one man was killed by thieves seeking valuables in the flooded area.

In the south, Memphis and other "cities of mercy" perched above the reach of flood waters, opened their arms to 10,000 homeless and physicians redoubled their efforts to fight sickness. One out of every ten refugees suffered from pneumonia or influenza.

A score of minor villages in the Mississippi valley basin are under water along a 200-mile stretch between Cairo and Memphis.

Guild Restaurant Invites the Public Thorough Remodelling Has Taken Place at 245 Front St.

Soft lights gleaming down from an atmosphere of creamy colored tints and soft shades of brown, upon which the Guild crest shows silver will greet Belleville visitors to the Guild Restaurant, 245 Front Street, one of the newest dining places in the city when it opens officially tomorrow.

Completely remodelled with its taste that cannot but appeal to the most fastidious connoisseur of surroundings, all this calling for new restaurant represents the last word in modern dining rooms.

Five private dining cubicles done in a soft shade of brown are placed along the sides of the dining room proper, four more occupy the centre of the room. Soft lights from semi-circular shaded globes will glean down on table tops finished in the same shade as the cubicles. Mirrors in a unique shape hang on the wall in each dining place.

At the front of the restaurant is found an up-to-date soda fountain equipped with the most modern devices for the rapid serving of soft drinks, sandwiches and light lunches. Along the counter are a series of seats tastefully upholstered in red.

On the opposite side run a series of showcases which contain a splendid assortment of candies, chocolates, etc. These are manufactured on the property by a candymaker who has an international reputation for the sort of work and who is claimed to be without a peer in the city.

Mr. Peter Lambros, proprietor of the Guild restaurant comes to the city with twenty years of restaurant experience behind him. Operating formerly in Galt and Bowmanville, Mr. Lambros has acquired a wealth of knowledge regarding the preparation of food and of service to the public. The whole is epitomized in the fine new new restaurant which will open officially to the public tomorrow.

A semi-official opening will occur tonight when the Guild doors will be thrown open from seven to ten o'clock to the public who are cordially invited to inspect the new premises.

BARBARA DIMENT CONTEST WINNER

That dancing is the most popular form of entertainment with Belleville audiences was demonstrated last evening when three skilled performers received the votes which gave them the Town Hall Amateur Contest prizes in the program sponsored by the United veterans of the city in the Collegiate Auditorium this week. The winner of the first prize was tiny Barbara Diment, who was presented with twenty-five dollars in cash by Mr. Joe Gamm on behalf of the organization. Little Miss Diment, only five years old, not only has outstanding dancing ability but radiates personality. Her song and dance number last evening was "Two Buckle My Shoe," and as she stepped on the stage charming in a pale blue satin children's Temple costume it was a case of "one, two, there goes my heart" with the audience.

Second in the voting was Miss Eunice Bild, whose exhibition of acrobatic dancing amazed and delighted her audience. Miss Bild accomplished many difficult feats which were generously applauded and the admiration of the audience was reflected in the large number of ballots cast for her, the prize was fifteen dollars in cash.

Miss Rose Forster was third prize winner receiving ten dollars in cash. This versatile dancer did a song and tap number of "From Coast to Coast" and a dummy dance number, that was particularly well done.

Dr. Stobie as Chairman

Dr. G. H. Stobie acted as chairman last evening and master of ceremonies was Jack Marks of Oshawa, son of that popular entertainer of a few decades ago Ernie Marks, whose name is still a household word. Mr. Marks had perfect arrangements for dancing and the show ran smoothly, without a pause. Charles Moreau acted as accompanist for many of the numbers and provided incidental music between acts. Mrs. Leonard and Miss Dorothy Croft also accompanied several of the numbers.

Twenty acts were presented last evening add eight of these were dancing numbers. These were given by Dorothy Croft, step dancer, Madeline Waldron, acrobatic and tap dancer, Barbara Diment tap dance, Iris Forster, tap dance, Ruth Hagedman, acrobatic dancer, Barbara Palmer, tap dancer, Eunice Bild, acrobatic dancer. As a variation from the tap and acrobatic dancing Miss Lorraine Clarke, smart in kilts of the Stuart tartan, gave a splendid demonstration of the Highland Fling and sword dance.

Great Variety Given

A great variety of musical numbers was included in the program. Helen Wark, given by Victor Whitely and Dave Hill who also contributed a piano selection. M. Robinson with a Spanish guitar and song. Alex. Tisdale, Hawaiian guitar and Mr. Harvey, with English concertina and accordion took part in the program. Gertrude Mudd was provided by the Turner family and the Melody Mountaineers, while the most unusual musical offering were the solos on a musical saw by Jim Arkell.

Marshall Spafford gave imitations of a cat and dog fights, while Jim Lazenby presented something a little different, as a female impersonator. Miss Doris Horton gave two readings which were very well received.

By popular request, Mr. and Mrs. J. Samain concluded the program with one of their specialty clog dance numbers, which brought down the house.

ACQUITTED ON CHARGE

London, Ont., Jan. 29.—(CP)— Anthony Sansone, 30, charged with manslaughter, was acquitted by a Supreme Court jury last night after a two-day trial.

It took the jury little more than an hour and a half to arrive at a verdict which cleared Sansone of criminal responsibility in the death on Oct. 25 of William M. Odie, member of a prominent London family. Odie was a passenger in an automobile driven by Sansone which overturned on the Asylum sidewalk.

NEW MEDICINE COMPOUNDED FROM GOOD OLD HERBS, ROOTS AND LEAVES

Syntona Medicine Made from 12 Vegetable Plants Brings Better Activity to Stomach, Liver and Blood and Drives Excess Acids and Impurities From the System

The new "Syntona" medicine that is now being introduced in Belleville by Dolan the Druggist has become a sensation in every section where it is known because of its certain action on the stomach, kidneys, liver and blood, and its effectiveness in driving excess acids and impurities from the system.

What Syntona Is!

Syntona is a liquid medicine made from the pure extracts of 12 of Nature's Finest Medicinal Plants. It contains no minerals, salts or drugs. It is pleasant to take and quick to act. Helps hundreds of get away from the habitual use of harmful drugs and nerve deadening cathartics. It is a perfectly safe medicine and can be taken by the most delicate persons.

What Syntona Does!

Taken before meals, Syntona mixes with the food in one's stomach, giving prompt, full action stomach gas, indigestion, sourness, bloating and heartburn. It contains valuable ingredients that act as a diuretic to the kidneys, laxative and tonic to the blood. Relieves headaches, dizziness, backache and rheumatic pains by promoting natural assimilation of food and elimination of waste matter.

Why should I Take Syntona?

Every sufferer should know that living, as we do, in a country where good food, containing valuable vitamins and minerals, is available to all, much of our health troubles can be traced to faulty assimilation and elimination. The reason that such good results are obtained from a medicine that is compounded to treat the Stomach, Liver, Kidneys and Bowels at the same time is simply this: The organs of digestion and elimination are so closely related in their functions that when one becomes ailing, it often affects one or more of the others, and soon the whole system becomes rundown.

Act Today and Feel Too—

3 DISTURBANCES

Bp.

"I beg your pardon. I mean comedities," said Prisoner A. "We both weekly meetings."

Reporters had been accustomed in previous terms to receiving parcels and buy considered of the food sent them, the prisoner told the inquiry.

Some Gambling Says "A".

"There is no doubt some of the girls were used for gambling material," he said in answer to a question. "Now about you yourself?"

"I have no personal complaints regarding other subjects. It is a sore spot with some of them and the mob-psychology has affected them. But after all we are in jail."

"Very sensible point of view," said Gillanders.

"There have been complaints about food. Some complained about the egg mixture in the morning, (sort of omelette). Others complained about nothing — seeming to expound with a chip on their shoulder."

Egg Mixture

"What was the complaint about the egg mixture?" asked Mr. Justice Madden.

"Not palatable or appetizing. There was a pleasant change this week when we were given bacon and eggs and a pleasant change from the egg mixture."

"Was the boys' complaint of the food valid?" asked Gillanders.

"That is a question for a canvas war. When one gang comes into dinner they may get the lean section of the beef, and the next group may get the fat section. Those getting the fatty meat complain."

'Mystery Pie'

"Then there's a meat pie we get once a week. The boys call it a mystery pie, owing to the lack of meat under pastry. Some of the boys have complained of sausages."

"You work in the abattoir. You know what these sausages are like?"

"What are these sausages like in the world—the finest meat possible is placed in them. They are made freshly can't be beat. When they leave the abattoir they are as good or better than can be bought on the outside."

"Have you ever had complaint of sausages?"

Says Sausage Sour

"I have had to turn them down several times."

"What would cause that?"

"I can't say. Age would make them sour, I think."

"When you leave the abattoir is it always in good condition?"

"In finest possible condition," said the prisoner. "Only the finest and best steers and the best is the finest possible. I have kept a check-up record of when animals slaughtered and meat sent to the kitchen. We send about a week's meat, three days and Friday. Sausages are made for those days. Sausages for delivery Tuesday to the kitchen.

350, Refused Pudding

"The only other time there was a disturbance in the dining room was a year and a half ago when we'd been having bread pudding two or three times a week. We thought the stale bread was that food left on the table after the meal being handed by various men at meals. About 350 men got the bread pudding one day and that was the last time we had it.

"Was anything wrong with the bread pudding?"

"Well, if a food you get very tired of it given it often. It's soggy bread, unpalatable at times. There was nothing fundamentally wrong with it as food," said the prisoner.

Prisoner "A" said he pleaded with seventy-five to eighty men at 2:30 in the afternoon of the disturbance on Jan. 17.

"I said to them, 'fellows, you're causing a lot of rumpus and a lot of damage and you're not going to get anything out of it.'

The Eight-ball.

"There are some fellows in with Dr. Heaslip and they'll get the eight-ball for you.'

"What do you mean by eight-ball?"

"They would get the blame," said "A". The boys seemed to agree and said they'd keep themselves."

Shrimps, sardines, jam, bread and cereals were given as examples of "A's cell block by other prisoners during the day.

"Several brought the food," he said. "It was food we had never seen at our cells. They had got it from the kitchen."

"Have you had in all the grievances you know?" asked Judge Madden.

Reporters Rarely Complain.

"There are a few grievances among fellows coming back for a second or third term and with an inflammable sentence," said prisoner A. "They feel they won't be given parole and it's hard to break through that."

Then there are some repeaters who say they would rather go to Burwash, but don't give a reason. Others complain they would like a balance of work.

"Some prisoners complain the guards are riding them. I have not found personally the guards do not impose on you if you don't go around looking for trouble."

Drinking of Toilet Preparations.

Prisoner A said he was now receiving punishment by being in solitary confinement and having his business in his cell, but did not know the reason.

Prisoners sometimes drank toilet water preparations containing alcohol, Sergeant Andrew Maxwell said.

NOTED WAR WRITER PASSES IN LONDON

Sir Percival Phillips Covered Most of Wars For 35 Years

London, Jan. 29 (AP)—Sir Percival Phillips, noted war correspondent who recently was reported home suffering from an illness contracted in Morocco, died today of acute nephritis. He was 59.

For more than 35 years Sir Percival reported wars, revolutions, disasters and historic events in all parts of the world. In 1919 he accompanied the then Prince of Wales on his Canadian tour and as recently as a few months ago was in the Dominion.

He was born in the United States and, after reporting the Greco-Turkish and Spanish-American wars for American newspapers, joined the staff of the London Daily Express. He covered the Jamaica earthquake of 1907, revolutions in Honduras and Portugal, riots in France, the Italian campaign in Tripoli, the Coronation Durbar in India, and the Balkan War of 1912-13.

In Belgium in 1914

At the outbreak of the Great War he was in Belgium and remained there until the fall of Antwerp late in 1914. Then, with the exception of a brief assignment to the Irish Rebellion in 1916, reported his activities on the western front. He was one of the first five accredited war correspondents with the British forces.

After the war, Sir Percival was in Egypt, Syria, Turkey and Greece, reporting the visits of the Prince of Wales to India and the Far East. About this time he joined the Daily Mail, and his last official conditions in Iraq and wrote articles on Italian Abyssinia.

In 1926 he was a delegate to the Imperial Press Conference at Melbourne, and from there went to China to cover the Communist uprising and the Nationalist revolution. He then went to Java, and from there to Afghanistan. From there he accompanied the King and Queen of Afghanistan on their visit to England.

Investigation of Mafia

His next assignment was to investigate the suppression of the Mafia, the Italian secret society, in Sicily, and then went with the Prince of Wales to East Africa on the memorable trip that resulted in the present Duke of Windsor speeding back to London to the bedside of his father, King George V, who was gravely ill.

He went to the coronation of Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia in 1930, and proceeded to India to attend the inauguration of the new capital—New Delhi—as India he remained 18 months. Then to Iraq, Persia, the Straits Settlements, Siam and the Far East.

Last Work in Morocco

In 1934 he joined the staff of the Daily Telegraph, reporting the Greek uprising of 1935 and the Italian campaign in Abyssinia. Afterwards he went to Spain and then to Canada and the United States. He was taken ill a few weeks ago he was in Morocco in the course of preparing dispatches on the Spanish civil war.

TORONTO INDUSTRIALS

Toronto, Jan. 29 (CP)—While holding steady on the whole, the industrial section traded quietly on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. The steels, oils and liquors changed hands in moderate volume and Abitibi Common was also active in the preferred issue for its older groups.

Gains were posted for Walker's Common and Distillers-Seagrams and Industrial Alcohol was down a point. Golds were firm with news about steady and nickel was lower in the preferred list.

General Steel Wares was up ¾ of a point to 7¾ for the high. Canadian Steel Car added a full point. Canadian Car Pfd. improved slightly.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, Jan. 29 (CP)—Mining shares traded in substantial volume on the Toronto Exchange for a few sizeable declines on the mining section. Trade dwindled somewhat in the afternoon. Scattered gains appeared in the golds. Copper metals group and the oils. Offers stepped in and recovered lost prices were down a few points. Consolidated Smelters, Coast-Kirkland, McIntyre, Dack-Rochester and Pamour.

Features of the trade in the cheaper shares were Bidgood Kirkland, Teck-Hughes, Hollinger, Jaybird and Paulore.

WALL STREET

New York, Jan. 28—(CP)—A shiftless stock market today gave support to speculative but permitted most of the leaders to drift indecisively.

Strikes and flood damage still tended to cool the buying spirits of investors and traders although steel and the trading pace was unusually slow.

Among the Canadian stocks, Dome Mines held a slight gain, while slight offerings appeared in International Nickel, Distillers Corporation-Seagrams and Canadian Pacific. On the curb, Lake Shore pulled even. Canadian Dollars improved a half of a cent to 1-8 basis. Printing moderately upward during the forenoon session, but succeeding were U. S. Steel, Youngstown Sheet and Tube, Miami Copper, International Hydro-Electric, Standard Oil of California, Santa Fe, and Long-Bell Lumber.

In the backward class were Bethlehem, Gulf States Steel, A. M. Dyers and General Motors.

Girl is Wounded But Will Recover

Kirkland Lake, Jan. 29—(CP)—Helen Mary Lee, 20, is in the hospital here with a bullet wound in the abdomen and Abraham K. Harry, Negro, 30, is in jail as the police after a shooting which occurred in the apartment of Thomas Ellis in Kirkland Lake today. No charge has been laid against Assarara.

According to the story told police Miss Mattila visited a dance last night and went later to the Ellis apartment, accompanied by another girl, Violet Gunthla.

Leo Boldue, also at the Ellis Apartment, and Miss Gunthla were sitting in one room and Miss Mattila and Assara were in another room with Ellis when the shooting occurred, police say.

Boldue and Miss Gunthla said a shot was heard and Assara came out of the room, carrying Miss Mattila and took her to a doctor's office. He met a police officer on the way and Assara asked him to take the girl to the hospital.

Police did not reveal how the shooting occurred but said there were powder marks on one of the girl's fingers. Doctors said she would recover.

Pandora Has High Values in Ontario Properties

It is reported unofficially but from a reliable source that high values have been secured in diamond drilling on the Pandora Gold-Silas property in Cadillac, Quebec. Although no detailed information is available at this time it is known that these results were obtained in the West end of the property and follows the cutting of good values in previous drilling on the same section. Much importance is attached to the results obtained in this section of the Pandora property in view of the location many thousands of feet away from the present workings.

Market Comment

The past week has once again reassured their market leadership with the majority in the group touching new high levels. This is undoubtedly due to some real foundation for the current advance in the investment buying, and many stories have been circulated to explain the rise.

One story, and it can be taken for what it is worth, is that a meeting will shortly be held between the American publishers and the Canadian newsprint producers, when the publishers will endeavour to place somewhat along this line. Instead of paying $43.50 per ton for newsprint for 1937, they will agree to raise the price to $45.00 per ton, and the newsprint companies will agree to maintain the $45.00 price for 1938 as well. In other words the publishers, in order to protect themselves, are willing to pay $47.50 for newsprint for 1938.

Market Comment

Canada Foundries & Forgings appears to have turned the corner after six years of poor times. For the year ending December 31st, last, net income was equivalent to $1.03 a share on "A" stock, as compared with 42 cents the previous year and a deficit of $2.50 in the preceding years. Last year's results were the best since 1930 when $1.35 a share was shown. The most heartening factor about the statement is the $1,000,000 increase in working capital. "There is every indication from present business that 1937 will be a good year, and prospective business in the early months is very encouraging. We believe that our volume of business will be greater during 1937 with corresponding profits."

One of the reasons for the sort-ness in Distillers-Seagrams of late is the attributed to the fact that the company owns two plants in Scotland and is very heavily taxed there. One is situated at Lawrence-burg, Indiana, and the other just outside the city of Louisville, Kentucky.

Canada Cement Company

Recent action of the Cement Company in the purchase of shares of a grazing amount of public buying and indicates that the stock apparently should benefit the 1937 earnings trend of corporations in this industry.

The statistical evidence already recorded in Canada Cement is quite conclusively bullish.

Canada Malting shares, as the public is aware, respond readily to any favourable news and as shown in the basic position of the building industry. This company has overcome the effects of the drought on their bond interest payable in Sterling and U.S. funds, by completing a refunding job which carried a clause that interest and principal payments are now to be made in Canadian funds only.

Hollinger Net Profit Down

Gillelle Razon's income is reported to be an important factor in above dividends for '36, being 60 and 75 cents a share, according to private calculations on Wall Street. The Simpson stock has a good-sized following in Montreal. Large scale buying of Consolidated Paper continues. Publishers' Pfd. appears probably hedging their position in this industry. Also a local interest before Howard Smith common will be on a dividend basis somewhat similar to the writer. Well-known Toronto market operator. The inclination of Dominion Bridge common is the best in history and the company's earnings have reached $297. . . Eighty-five per cent. of the output of newsprint paper is produced in Canada. The rest comes from New Caledonia, India and Norway.

Deadline for Auto Licences

80 James Street, Hamilton, Ont., January, 1937.

To the Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer,
Belleville, Ont.

Dear Sir:

For several years, the question of when would be the most suitable time for procuring of auto licences, has been before the public. The first couple of months in the year, is apparently according to the humor of the Hamilton Motor Vehicle.

But the facts are, that from the first of January, 1936, when I assumed the Christmas season of each year, through advertisements and otherwise, the public are made conscious that if they wish to run their cars after January 31st, after the time they are faced with an immediate rush from which, in many instances several hundred dollars according to number and type of license required.

I am informed on very good authority that the total amount collected in Ontario is the handsome sum of $2,979,319 and the Hamilton office alone $525,000 was collected during 1936.

As a merchant, my contention is that the withdrawal of the licence plate system, as at the Christmas and New Year season, when the Motor Vehicle Department is coupled with fuel requirements are at a high peak; is very detrimental to the retail business and embarrassing to the purchasers of our cars.

And not only is the retail trade affected, for if these huge sums of money are withdrawn from the pay of Ontario Government just at that particular time, it would be very hard to believe that at least one half of those amounts would be spent for other commodities and thus clearing the merchants' shelves, result in large orders for the manufacturers and more work for their employees.

In my personal experiment, "Well it has to be collected sometime." Of course to-day, to-morrow and June or July when there is less unemployment, more buying activity and the farmers have money coming in from their early crops and the first question is not of the way I believe even the gasoline companies would be willing to let cars would be withdrawn from use.

In a recent newspaper item Hon. T. B. McQuesten, Minister of Highways, is quoted as saying "that there is not likely to be any change in the date of collecting the automobile licences as the government needs the money." What I am interested in having this date changed were to write their representatives or the Hon. Mr. McQuesten, Minister of Highways emphatically stating their wishes and I am sure that your consideration would be given to a change in the date of collecting.

At least I should like to see the question opened up for discussion by the press of our province.

Yours truly,
J. C. Beer.

LEGISLATURE TO ADJOURN TODAY

Second Bill Passed Which Prevents Collection of Judgments

Toronto, Jan. 29 (CP)—Ontario cabinet will be voted tonight, it is understood, power to extend Crown immunity from legal proceedings over the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission.

The government has obtained from the legislature approval of the principle of two of its measures to give it this power. It has assurance the Opposition will not obstruct the bills further.

Before the legislature adjourns this afternoon until Feb. 16, third readings and Royal assent will have been given to the bills. All are to be effective when proclaimed by the Lieutenant - Governor - in - Council.

Second Reading Passed

Vice - Premier Hyndman Hyndman bills passed second reading Wednesday by 58 to 19 votes. They were opposed by Attorney-General Arthur Roebuck to prevent execution of judgments against Hydro.

The first of the legislature yesterday approved lifting from Hydro the need to post bond for appeals from the provincial and was empowered the cabinet to order refunds of $127,000 posted for an appeal expected to be heard in the latter part of February.

Third Hydro bill, now under debate, would empower Hydro to issue a flat from the Attorney-General to bring action against the Hydro Commission.

Immunity extended to the Corporate Commission will also apply to its members, its agents or its servants while they are acting in that capacity.

FATHER DECLARES 3 DEMANDED SON

States He Was Beaten, But Handed Son To Friend

Toronto, Jan. 29.— (CP)—Jack Gould reported to police early today that three men had used a rope into his apartment in West Toronto and beaten him with it. His friend son, Arthur, he handed over to them.

Gould said he leaped out of bed and took the rope from his cot. Then, he continued, when attacked him, he said, striking him over the head with it and then wrapping it around his face and scalp.

He managed to get out of the building and his attackers followed, jumping into a car and leaving hurriedly. Gould gave the baby to a bystander to hold and went to the hospital for treatment.

Later a car allegedly bearing the same numbers as the automobile concerned was picked up by the police. Three occupants were taken to police station for questioning.

DAILY SHORT STORY

YALLER DOG

By Helen J. Heide

Pete was my dog from the very first. He was a yaller pup when I was down in Eastbourne, Seems he belonged to the right of some after that he never made friends with another soul except me, and once.

The only one that ever picked up Pete at most Kellie Roach. I lived alone way up on Pine mountain. Hunted. Every so often I'd get tired up being alone. Then I'd beat it down to Eastbourne in search of excitement, groceries and likker.

This time I'd had the likker first, which accounted for the mess I got myself into. I'd had just enough to make me irresponsible when I got attached to the stray, Pete, and then mix with Nellie Roach. She was just as much fed up on the town as I was on Pine mountain and she was lonesome, too.

I says to her: "Well, come on, let's celebrate. I got money."

"O.K." says she.

When I got ready to start back she begged me to take her along. Finally I said I would.

I wanted to do the right thing, so I rousted old Pappy who was a relic of the pioneer and he married us. Afterwards we got a load of grub and loaded by the yeller dog, Pete, hoofed it up to my cabin on Pine mountain.

It was used to bein' alone. I had my hunting. Nellie had never been alone in her life. She was afraid of guns and wouldn't have gone hunting on a bet.

When I went hunting, Pete always went along. He got as crazy about hunting as I was. Every time he saw me get out the gun he'd almost throw a fit, he was so excited. Besides, he was afraid of Nellie and was always uneasy when I wasn't around her.

Nellie didn't have a thing to keep her occupied except the little bit of housekeeping there was to do in the one-room shack. She got the jitters from sayin' alone and by the time Pete and I got back she was ready with a piece of her mind. She had very strong opinions about hunters and dogs which she wasn't stingy about givin' out.

I'd never had a sort of hankerin' to go to Africa to hunt lions and once I mentioned it to Nellie. She nearly took my head off.

Two fellers named Sam and Jake used to come up ot hunt with me sometimes. They made all sorts of fun of Pete.

"Pete's good enough for me," I'd always say.

One day Sam and Jake told me about a cougar that had escaped and said some folks thought he might be hidin' somewhere's on Pine mountain. It worried me a little. I took to lookin' for him when I went hunting and I left Pete home to protect Nellie.

But I didn't see hide nor hair of him and pretty soon I had forgot about him, or else I'd asked Nellie if she cared if I took Pete along, an' she said: "No, take the miserable cur. I'm well rid of both of you."

Pete was tickled silly. We'd walk at about a mile or so and had come to a place all covered with thick brush so tall you couldn't see to right nor left, when all at once right in front of us up pops a man.

My hands shook as I cocked my gun, I was so darned surprised. But before I could get it with focus something happened that surprised me still more. Old Pete ran right up to the man with his tail awaggin' fit to kill and jumps all over him like he was his long-lost brother.

The man dropped down into the bushes and disappeared.

I yelled to Pete: "You gosh-dammed fool you! You crazy old cur!"

He crouched down with his tail between his legs as if he had a guilty conscience. By the time I got back to the shack I was clear out of temper. I told Nellie what had happened and insisted we get ready for me with one of her snappy remarks her face got as red as a beet and she turned around and began to stir something on the stove with all her might.

Next day I had to go down to Eastbourne and I asked Nellie to go but she shook her head. I asked the sheriff if he had a picture of that convict. He pulled one out. It was the very feller I had seen and there was a reward offered for him—a thousand dollars.

Next day I hot-footed it up to my shack. Nellie was gone. Her clothes was there, but no one else. Pete was there, too, but he was so excited he couldn't tell me nothin' for the day, but I didn't go far and I didn't take old Pete. Right back of the house was a clump of bushes. I hid there. Pretty soon I saw Nellie come out and hang up a piece of red petticoat on a stick. It was a signal.

Sure enough, after a time here comes this convict bird. Nellie helps him and she begins his jumpin' act. I got out my gun and aimed it right at his back. I could shoot him or I could walk up on him, capture him and claim the reward. Instead, I put the gun down.

"What the heck's the use?" I said to myself. "Maybe both the poor devils'll be happier if I go away and leave 'em."

I shifted my hunting pack on my shoulders, for I was goin' a long ways. I was goin' to Africa to hunt lions and I wasn't takin' no yaller dog.

TARZAN'S QUEST (Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service)

As Jane heard the faint sound of the stalking lion, she glanced quickly aloft. For her, the trap presented an avenue of escape, but ahead she heard the helpless Prince Alexyr on the ground. As leader of the three-wicked party, her first duty was to him.

PENETRO
THE SALVE WITH A SAGE OF OLD FASHIONED MUTTON SUET

The tall graceful form was sharply silhouetted in the glare of the street-light. Blade could see him combing his hair. Could see the lips move as he thanked the driver briefly, without smiling.

It was going to be harder than ever to bridge the gulf, she decided. She wondered, bitterly, why this strange man with his moody, somber ways, his cold immunity to charm she had ample reason to know was effective and . . . misleading, possessed in mind so completely. Incited in her, this queer frantic passion to fight past his wall of cool reserve, and get at this man, the real man, she knew hid behind the mask. The only man she had ever really wanted to know better. The only man she had ever seemed real to her, in a world that was anything but real. A world whose values were all confused and chaotic.

She watched him stride off down the street, and not until he turned the corner, and she had lost the last glimpse of a hard, angry, unrelenting profile, did she turn, and walk slowly, wonderingly into the building, and up to her apartment.

Tod was home, making preparations to go out, and Blade realized with a shock that it was late, and still young. Very young.

"Where is brother?" she asked him casually. Tod grinned. He liked his hard-headed, somewhat ruthless brother-in-law if he did not always understand her moves or motives.

"Club" he answered, "got to play scare to some daffodil Amy Prentice picked out."

"Tod." Blade changed the subject with startling directness." do you know Mrs. Nichols? I mean Suzanne Nichols. Del Langley's newest flame?"

"Why yes." Tod agreed simply, "I know her I like her, Blade. She's a pretty decent sort."

"I think I'll go with you, Tod." Blade decided suddenly, and her brother's face fell.

"You know, Blade," he offered diffidently, "Suzanne is very much in love with her sky-writing husband? You know a crack-up would be bad about curtains to a girl like her?"

"I know! I want to know this paragon wife," Blade bit off viciously. "I'm curious to know how sexy women act when they're not at great deal, and still think she can . . . kick it anyway!"

"You're making a mistake," Tod told her gravely. "Suzanne wouldn't a't here a minute if she knew a girl every fellow dreams of finding some day, Blade. Don't . . . don't go crashing in there, until . . . until you know more about things! After all, Suzanne is . . . is."

"Suzanne," Blade finished the sentence for him coldly, "is running around with Del Langley, Tod! And that's never much anything confusing or uncertain, so far. Don't be puerile, brother! You're too intelligent for the role!"

Tod made a mess of tying his tie, and ripped it savagely off. His face was a study in angry frustration, but none of it came out in words. He knew the futility of arguing with his sister. He also knew Suzanne was somewhere between those two incontrovertible facts, lay trouble. A great deal of it.

"Let's not go there tonight," he suggested and Blade laughed coldly. "Yes, Tod? By what? I'm going! And You can stay home, or go anywhere you choose!"

"Let's go to a nightclub. We'll dig up some friends, and make a night of it," Tod urged.

"Now," Blade informed him coolly, "I wouldn't stay away from the country club tonight, for anything under the sun! Mrs. Nichols is going to be well worth the entertain, I imagine!"

"Call!" Tod told her with brotherly disgust, "Alley cat!"

CHAPTER 25

Suzanne walked along the tiled balcony of the Meadowdale Club and looked down at the dance floor. Below, the dancing throng, the cooling night air on her tired forehead. It was to use. She kept remembering that cool, even, masculine voice saying "Sorry. . . . Pilot Nichols is up on instruction. . . . You can leave your number and I'll call you when it comes in."

"No, thanks." She remembered again the weariness that had hung like a pall over her cold over Blade Langley. Since the night he reach sky by telephone and called, "No, he's fell dead, and he was there when I'll be, no I can't very well leave any number."

And Sky hadn't called. She had waited at the office three-quarters of an hour, and by the time she left she had thought then that he was still up on his instructor perch.

At home, she had waited for the phone to ring, and it hadn't. And last night, Amy had driven around to persuade her to come to the club dinner-dance. It was, Amy pointed out, better than sitting at home, moping over a silent husband who didn't bother to telephone his inability to get home to dinner.

"He's probably so busy he forgot". Suzanne had defended Sky unconsciously, and her troubled heart, remembering his anger, his blazing words, added, "Or knew better than You know he's still angry! You know he won't call, because he's too angry to bother!"

Amy had helped her dress. Had laid out her dress and wrap and slippers, while she bubbled and made up. Had picked a mink. "Don't let the Shoemacher brat get in your hair, Suzanne. She's just an oomphy-baby, and not on a new binge. She always sobers up and trys a new drink . . . a fresh man, between the season is over. If she had anything but physical attraction to offer, you might worry. As it is . . . just call her another headache.

Suzanne, remembering Sky and Blade at the night club, remembering the unpaid bill, the fact that Sky had been unable to go half-way with her on the new things for their home, but had been able to buy five bottles of champagne for the nightclub playmates, tried to believe Amy was right

Del Langley met them at the door of the Meadowdale Inn warm and disgusted.

"It's about time something happened to this wake to bring it alive," he greeted Suzanne, and Amy made a face at him.

"Scram, Del; you can't spoil my evening like this. I want to talk to Suzanne, and you go roll your hoop." Amy advised him flippantly.

"Ha." Del retorted; "In fact, two or three ha's. Try to get rid of me, Amy. You can't interfere in domestic turmoil. I'm sure this is going to be a very revealing!"

Amy sighed in defeat. And after a while she had to be a sport and and be gracious to Del, because he refused to be routed.

He danced with the two girls, claiming Suzanne for two or three, and dutifully including Amy on the second or third. And when Suzanne remained quiet, unresponsive to his gossiping degree, he became overzealous in his attempt to lift her out of her gloom.

"Look, Suzanne," he explained; "I'm on the wagon, for good, understand?" Suzanne smiled briefly at that having heard Del's periodic flights to high and dry territory, until their fancy wore off.

"I'm sorry about what happened that night. . . . that first night you came to the club, and it isn't going to happen again."

He became even more puzzled at her lack of response then unconsciously crystalized around the suspicion he was angry at him for something.

"I'm in my right senses," he continued soberly, "nothing like that could happen, Suzanne. I like you too well," he added. "I'd never forgive myself if I caused you to be hurt by any resentment against me. Your . . . your friendship means too much to me. More than anything else ever has."

"It's all right, Del," Suzanne answered quietly, not hearing more than half what he was saying, her mind was so occupied with her own personal worries. "Don't let it bother you."

"Look Suzanne," he started off on a new tack, "I've a fresh deal, I'll another customer for you. I think that is, I hope . . . you can find something he wants."

Del Langley, Suzanne remembered Ben Larkin's unfair innuendo, and stiffened at this new move of Del's to help her make money. "You know I'm quite capable of scaring up my own customers, Del. And, besides, people might think you were getting those commissions for me!"

"Why, what of it?" He grinned down at her in boyish mischief. "I only wish I could! I'd buy the moon with a new silver ribbon around it! And, speaking of moons, let's go see if there is one, and if it's keeping the code rules properly!"

They strolled along the tiled balcony, and Del's arm adored her unreckonsly, his . . . eyes twined around her arm in a warm, firm grip, and he made no secret of his admiration for her.

"You're so lovely, Suzanne," he said wistfully, and so sad tonight. Is it . . . is there something I could do to make you angry?"

"Please, Del?" Suzanne protested unsally "After all, we're a couple of old married people! I'm a very happy husband, and you're a fond and children!"

"But we like each other, Sue dear." Del argued hotly, "and, after all, a" that mid-Victorian nonsense about one woman, one mind, one being forming the sole diet for a person from the words 'I do' is as much tripe nowadays! We don't consider one food for our digestion, and we need the stimulus of more than one mind too!"

"Can't you tell her with brotherly disgust, "Alley cat!"

"Why, what of it?" He grinned down at her in boyish mischief. "I only wish I could! I'd buy the moon with a new silver ribbon around it! And, speaking of moons, let's go or later. For a minute, we think the end of the world has come. And in a way, it has. The end of a world of childish fancy and pretense. It's a grown-up world, sweet. It can be as good . . . or as unsatisfying as we choose. It is . . . just what we make it.

His arm tightened about her shoulders, his warm fingers touched her chin, caressed it, then, where the tear streaks still lay damp and chill. His face came down closer and he kissed her once, twice before Suzanne wrenched sharply away from him, clung on a strangled broken sob.

"Don't Del!" she cried sharply, on a thin, brittle note of agony, "don't —please!"

He moved his face back until he could see the soft, oval blur of her white face in the shadowy darkness; until her softly scented hair blew gently against his chin 'his nose.

"Why, Suzanne? I like you so much. . . . love you a lot. You're like me a little! Why waste our youth, the happiness we could have just for the taking, for a lot of mid-Victoria ideas? Why not take what happiness we can from life, as the others are doing. Sky and Blade; Marion. . . . they are the rules of this game, so why not play it their way?"

"I . . . can't, Suzanne whispered in a choked, broken little wail, "no matter what he does, no matter what I . rest of the world does, I can't pretend, Del. It would be . . . hypocrisy!"

"It would be only fun." Del argued firmly "and you'd forget some of the hurt this way, Suzanne, darling. Even a little stolen happiness, helps fill a void left by broken vows, broken dreams."

"No," Suzanne pleaded.

He stared at her in puzzled silence a moment. Then seemed to make up his mind. Seemed to decide something that had puzzled him a long time.

His arm tightened about her, her head back, in sudden frantic effort to escape his hold, but he held her closer, laughed briefly, exultantly at her fresh struggle. Then his mouth found her quivering lips, and closed down hard, ruthlessly, in a bruising, breath taking kiss that stilled Suzanne struggles like an icy hand, gripping her throat, shutting off her very breath.

Suzanne was released her. Presently he moved back, slightly from her ,and spoke

"Women," he said easily, "like to be mastered, sometimes."

There was no sound in the car, except the ragged, uneven murmur of Suzanne's despairing weeping.

CHAPTER 26

Sky walked north and east. In the murky darkness, his blond head bared to the light breeze, his shoulders hunched slightly, his hands had stopped, but there were occasional puddles here and there, and he tramped in them, unaware that he splashed through water.

He did not notice the direction he traveled in. He did notice that the city blocks give away to lofty, barren tenements then to shabby houses, and finally, to open, barren sand lots. He was seeing a brilliantly lighted club-house dance-hall, seeing a slim, dark girl in a flaming chiffon evening gown, and a tall attentive escort in correct tux-edo, paying for a dance with him.

He was trying to find, in his groping, painful progress along the thorny way, "why" to answer those things that were riddles, that had puzzled him with a bafflement that fogged even a native curiosity. His feet moved rhythmically, tirelessly the blocks were unrolled.

Eventually he looked up at a familiar territory, and found that the wide iron grill again to the Pourways Airport. He had come there unconsciously. His feet had carried him here. without any conscious plan or violation. He was here, he was here, he felt a vague comfort-in security. Here was home. The only home he knew, now.

He walked through the darkened yard, with unlighted windows of the offices, and stockrooms blank above him. At the far end were lights. The night crew were there. And he would join them.

Not tonight. He wanted to be alone. He wanted time to think. To sort things out. He had come to believe that his marriage had failed. That Suzanne had definitely picked someone to supplant him.

His reason work something else. They had a remedy for the fertile need that had been his determination not to be beaten. Until now Suzanne. Until Suzanne persuaded him that she was the exception to the rule his mind could not accept.

Him with potential force, this seed had lain deep in his subconscious mind, a thing of the subsistence of his wrath, to bring them to fruition.

He did not know, now that they had been there always. He only knew, now, that the seeds were full bloom, and their poisonous fruit crowded everything else from his mind.

It was for this, that he had been afraid of something he had had reasoned—deep in his subconscious mind—because he knew it to be worth the price, or risk.

And for this conclusion he acted so sharply, so concise and certainly now, because they had been there all the time. Ready for the moment that required but the deciding hand of fate to jiggle them neatly into place and form.

He sat in the stiff, hard wooden arm-chair, tilted back against the wall, with only the occasional flare of the beacon light to illumine the dark, somber concentration of his face, dig those deep-cut lines, the tumbled blonde hair in disarray from facing stiff, as his intense thought sought relief in any form of muscular activity.

HITLER ASSAILS TREATY FOR GREAT WAR BEFORE REICHSTAG

'Withdraws' Signature Of Reich from Treaty; Claims Remilitarization Has Injured No Nation

Der Fuehrer Makes Plea Against Communism and Tells of Improved Relations With Many States in Europe

GERMANY WANTS PEACE WITH FRANCE

National Socialist Revolution in Germany Hailed as Greatest of Revolutions—Labor Basis of All Wealth, Hitler Affirms

Berlin, Jan. 30—(AP)—Chancellor Hitler, inaugurating another four years of Nazi rule, today "withdrew" Germany's signature from the Versailles peace treaty in which the Reich was declared "guilty" of launching the Great War.

Asserting Germany's resumption of military sovereignty was a matter affecting only the Reich, the Chancellor told the Reichstag:

"We have taken nothing from any nation—nor have we done any national wrong."

He declared the German government, from now on, would exercise sole sovereignty over the federal railway system and the Reichsbank.

Then he added:

"I hereby declare that through these actions, that part of the Versailles Treaty which deprived our nation of equality and degraded it to a position of an inferior people has found its natural end.

"Albeit against, however, I hereby most solemnly withdraw the German signature from that declaration forced upon a weak government against its better knowledge—the declaration to the effect Germany was guilty of starting the Great War."

Not quite a year ago, the self-same Reichstag which Hitler addressed today remilitarized the Rhineland in violation of the Treaty of Versailles.

Nazis' Perfect Democracy

The Chancellor, declaring the Nazi movement "the most beautiful and most perfect democracy", shouted that, by contrast, 170,000 deaths were the "achievements of the splendid democratic revolutionaries in Spain."

In a setting wildly enthusiastic, the Chancellor hailed the work of his own regime, belittled "democratic world citizens" and cried out that the most "exalted" task of the third Reich was the preservation "of a race based on blood—as God gave it to us."

Wildly cheering, the Reichstag arose in applause at the Chancellor's Versailles statement. His address was halted for several minutes as the members "heiled" and whistled their approval.

When the chamber quieted down, Hitler went on:

"The time of so-called surprises is hereby ended.

Germany With Equal Rights

"As a state with equal rights, Germany, mindful of her European task, will loyally co-operate in solving the problems which stir us and other nations."

Of the colonial question, the Chancellor said:

Germany makes no colonial demands upon countries which took no colonies from her. Germany never demanded colonies for military purposes but exclusively for economic reasons.

"For our closely settled country, our demand for colonies will again and again be voiced as something self-evident."

He then swung into an exposition of German's national position in the European family of nations, declaring:

"It is a mistake to claim Germany has any intention whatsoever to isolate herself, to ignore unfeelingly the happenings in the rest of the world or to leave out of consideration the necessities common to all. We Germans neither wish to be isolated nor feel ourselves isolated.

Improved Relations

"Germany in the past few years has inaugurated or resumed or improved a considerable number of political relations. And—I dare say—we have established close and friendly relations with a number of states. From out point of view our relations with most European states are normal and with a considerable number of states very friendly.

Hitler listed these nations in connection with improved relations: Poland, Austria, Italy, Hungary, Yugoslavia, Bulgaria, Greece, Portugal and Fascist Spain.

The Reich's position was "no less cordial," he asserted, "with a whole series of states outside Europe."

"The agreement Germany reached with Japan for combatting Communism is a living proof of how little Germany dreams of isolating itself and, by the same token, of how little it feels itself to be isolated."

Hitler reiterated his previous declaration that Germany wants peace with France.

Guarantees to Holland and Belgium

"In addition," he continued, "Germany has assured Belgium and Holland that it is prepared at any time to recognize and guarantee these states as incontestibly neutral territories."

Denying Germany favors a policy of economic isolation, Hitler said:

His co-pilot had "shut" the aeroplane while Snead was blindfolded and a hood drawn over the cockpit windows, then turned the ship over to Snead, who had no difficulty in immediately determining his exact location, running in the direction of Newark Airport. The gadget used is a new shielded anti-static loop antenna which took two years to perfect.

HITLER'S POWERS RENEWED TODAY FOR FOUR YEARS

Nazi Revolution Called Revolution of Revolutions And Bloodless

RACIAL PURITY AIM

Working Power Real Basis of Wealth Says Hitler

Berlin, Jan. 30 (CP)—The Reichstag today conferred on the German government plenary powers for four more years. The Nazi assembly, elected March 29 last year, thus renewed Chancellor Hitler's powers which were due to expire a month hence. General Hermann Goering, Hitler's second in command, was elected president of the Reichstag.

Quickly and without debate, the Reichstag assembled, devoted five minutes to election of officers.

Fifteen minutes after the gavel fell, Chancellor Hitler walked to the reading stand, surveyed the packed chamber and launched into his address.

Revolution of Revolution.

"It is impossible within the limits of a speech to describe adequately all that might be put down as remarkable achievements in this most surprising epoch in the life of our people," he began.

"What, indeed, did during the four years have past to produce of the most powerful extent swept over Germany?

"This National Socialist revolution was first and foremost a revolution of revolutions.

"By that I mean that hitherto it was considered a characteristic feature of every revolution that it must consist of bloody annihilation of previous incumbents of power and in connection therewith, destruction of public and private institutions and property."

Father Saves Son From Falling Into Well While Playing

4-Year-Old Lad Held to a Log Until His Cries Brought Help

What might have resulted in a tragedy fatality was happily averted by the loud cries of four-year-old Kenneth Howard of Shannonville, early afternoon, when he clutched desperately at the projecting end of a log as he was about to fall into a well at his home.

Kenneth had been chasing a cat in the field when he stumbled and overbalanced, falling into the ground level opening of the well. Grabbing the log which partly covered it, he held for help. His cries were heard by his father, Percy who rushed to the field and lifted him to safety just as he was about to let go.

Plan to "Go to House Keeping" Within Few Weeks

NO INTERFERENCE

Shoedville, Tenn., Jan. 30 (AP)—Honeymooning in a mountain cabin, nine-year-old Rubie Winstead Johns played happily today with her doll-a gift from her 22-year-old husband, while he laid plans for their new farm home.

Charlie Johns, six-foot, black-haired mountaineer, said they would build a cabin about fifteen miles from his little east Tennessee home and "go to housekeeping" within a few weeks.

The bride told shyly yesterday of her marriage ten days ago to the mountain youth.

"We slipped it over on them," she said, grinning, telling of the ceremony conducted by the Rev. Walter Lenn, elderly minister.

Parents of the couple showed no inclination to interfere with the marriage.

SPARED DEATH AS A TRAITOR

Carl Radek Sentenced to 10 Years, 13 Others Ordered to be Shot

Moscow, Jan. 30 (AP)—Karl Radek was spared from death as a traitor against the Soviet government, authoritative sources declared today, as his testimony might be used at future conspiracy trials.

The fiery Radek, who refused to beg for clemency and leered at the unexpected leniency of his judges, was sentenced to ten years imprisonment and deprived for his political life for five more.

Thirteen fellow-defendants of the seventeen who took part in the trial were sentenced to death before a firing squad, after forlorn pleas for mercy, both individually and as a group.

Announcement that the verdict of the court has been carried out—meaning the thirteen have been shot —was expected tomorrow.

DR. McQUIBBAN DIES SUDDENLY OF HEART ATTACK

Liberal Member For Wellington North and Former Leader of House

ANIMAL FANCIER

Made Last Address in Legislature on Wednesday

Toronto, Jan. 30 (CP)—Dr. Geo. A. McQuibban, member of the Ontario legislature for Wellington North, died of a heart condition here early today in his 61st year. His last speech in the legislature—and political utterance—was in support of his best — was made Wednesday. His following day he was taken ill in the House.

Former Liberal leader in the legislature, Dr. McQuibban was one of the first members of his party to criticize the former Conservative government's power policy. He was elected with a platform pledge to cancel the contracts with Quebec companies for the development in collation of the contracts.

In his first session, Dr. McQuibban favored legislation which would have the effect of making the Hydro Commission immune from judgment.

Dr. McQuibban returned to his hotel Thursday from the legislature where he complained of being ill. On Friday night his condition became critical. Sheriff Charles A. Roberston, M.L.A. for Huron-Bruce, was with Dr. McQuibban at his death. He was attended by Dr. John Olds and Dr. George Young.

As Liberal House leader in the legislature, serving in the Hepburn election to power, Dr. McQuibban introduced the Liberal leader and Mitchell Hepburn, who then did not have a seat in the House, by voting himself a beer and wine measure. Mr. Hepburn had instructed his followers to introduce liberalization legislation.

EARTH TREMORS FELT IN SIDNEY

Several Residents on 6th Con. Tell of Houses Shaking in Early Morning

Mysterious rumblings sounding "like a woodpile falling" accompanied with earth tremors which at times shook houses until dishes and the knives on kitchen tables rattled, gave residents of the sixth concession of Sidney a scare early on Tuesday morning, according to a story told by Mrs. J. A. Lott, a resident of that community, this morning.

"It awakened shortly after one o'clock", said Mrs. Lott "and heard a rumbling like distant thunder, then a crash like that of a woodpile falling. Arising at six o'clock I went to my kitchen and about ten before seven I felt the house distinctly shake. I called my neighbors living to the west of but they had experienced nothing."

"Mrs. J. Campbell, who lives two houses to the east of us, felt the tremor distinctly. A servg girl, she the 'orst shake came. Our house shook a bit at seven o'clock, which actually shook as if a heavy hand had hit in the side. I call Mrs. George Bell, a neighbor who lives three houses to the eastward and she also felt the shock plainly, while the eaves of a dining table in the home of Mr. and Mrs. I. Mumford who lives a mile and a half away, rattled in the dining room."

"We are at a loss to explain the causes and shaking. There was no blasting going on at the time, nor are of the opinion that we felt a minor earthquake."

Sweep of Flood Waters Down Mississippi River Will Test Levee System

Crest of Ohio Flood Expected to Pass Cairo, Ill., Next Wednesday

FIGHT SAVES DIKE

Livestock Removed From Lowlands in Arkansas

(By "A. P.")

A retreat beyond the reach of an insatiable enemy quickened today as the surge of flood water toward the Mississippi River spurred an invading army in its defense of the nation's cotton belt.

A pick and shovel army of 115,000, bolstered by reinforcements, raised breastworks on both sides of the river, and awaited the zero hour—to strike the crest of the flood waters from the Ohio River sweeps past Cairo, Ill., probably next Wednesday, and begins its rush down the Mississippi to the Gulf.

Levees Have Dwindling Aridzes.

Then will come the test of the gigantic, $1,000,000,000 levee system. Anxious thousands in the river lowlands between Cairo and New Orleans prayed their words be saved from the fate of their fellow Americans in the Ohio River valley where more than 1,000,000 were made homeless, temporary at least.

The army of workers waged a strenuous and apparently successful fight to hold the dike across Slough Landing Neck, a few miles above Tylertville, Tenn., and reckoned its efforts to raise a bulkhead as the flood waters inched toward the top of a 60-foot levee at Tylertville.

Preparing for any eventuality, reversal of Treasury and cattle was under way in threatened lowlands along the Mississippi from Hickman to the mouth of the White River in Arkansas, while evacuation of residents whose homes were threatened virtually was completed.

8000 Residents Driven Out.

On the lower Ohio the flood waters forced complete evacuation of 8,000 persons at Shawneetown, Ill., after the state health commissioner and the city war time commander. Military authorities were ordered to use force if necessary to remove the people.

As the water crept higher, 4,000 workers at Cairo could only watch and wait for the crisis.

Relief tasked by hurriedly built bulkheads to 63 feet. United States army engineers predicted the river slopping crest, resting 59.

Formed by the confluence of the Ohio and the Mississippi, it will escape as it has done all the floods since the civil war.

Above Paducah the flood had done its worst, and the fight against disease and the mammoth task of restoration became the concern of many relief agencies.

Admonished by Kentucky's governor to "keep your chins up and the devil will shove the mosquitoes down again," Louisville mapped a program to prevent epidemics as clogging machines began to clear the slime and silt from the city's streets.

Worms Found in Porridge Prisoner Declares at Probe

Meat Served as Rotten Unfit to Eat, It is Also Claimed

WANTED TO SEE NIXON

Guelph, Ont., Jan. 30 (CP)—Evidence of 33 witnesses was before Judge James Madden today as he received information revealed in his probe of the death of 21 men at Ontario Reformatory. When yesterday's sessions were completed the judge adjourned the inquiry until Feb. 1.

Prisoners gave testimony yesterday, the first witness being Secretary to Judge Madden in some instances "three-bitters" were mentioned by the prisoners, it was explained they meant "repeaters" — prisoners doing their second or third terms. When a prisoner got the eight-ball" it meant he shouldered the blame.

A 19-year-old youth, known as prisoner No. 6, told Judge Madden food was the basis of the riots which saw prisoners smashing furniture and windows as they ran amok through the reformatory.

Declared Meat Rotten.

"I found worms in my porridge for three successive mornings in the summer and haven't touched it since," the young prisoner said. "Some times the sausages made over the finest in the world" but when they left the kitchen room he said had been unable to eat them. They had been kept too long, he testified.

The youthful prisoner also criticized the sausages which he said were "rotten." Others told of the nervousness, he declared the first night he was in the reformatory. He said he wanted to see Hon. Harry Nixon, provincial secretary, to complain about the food.

He had been paddled for something he had not done.

"The guard lied about me but his word was taken," he testified. "We are never allowed to bring prisoners at to Superintendent Dr. Reading on the day of the riot, he said he would take the word of one guard against that of fifty prisoners."

Surface Water Drives Pan Fish Into Deeper Water The Past Week

Perch and sunfish usually dependable items on the family menu during the winter, and now reported as scarce as sturgeon by local fishermen have been driven into deeper water by the excess surface drainage of land on the district caused by heavy rains this winter, declared one member of the fishing fraternity today explaining their absence.

"Water flowing off the land to the bay has been carrying with it quantities of silt and mud, roiling the water. The sun fish and perch, generally found in clear water, don't like this condition. They've gone deeper into the lake. Muskrats, on the other hand, are living up to their name; they like this kind of water. Consequently, they're fairly plentiful".

Genealogy of Dafoe Family Is Traced Back for Centuries

Ancestors of Prominent Families Came Out to America in 1658.

MANY BRANCHES

One of the most human documents in Bay of Quinte history is contained in the genealogy of the Dafoe family, of which Dr. Roy Allan Dafoe, of Callander Collegiate fame is a member.

Though closely linked with the early history of Hastings County, branches of the Dafoe family tree, whose trunk arose in this county, extend into many parts of Canada and the United States from whence its founders came in the early days of Ontario history. This human family is definitely greater in its sheer numbers, even though many of its sons and daughters have gained international renown in the varied fields they have chosen as careers. One has but to cite Dr. Allan Dafoe of Callander, and John Wesley Dafoe, editor of the Winnipeg Free Press, and others, as single examples for proof of this assertion.

Two Brothers Originally Here

Originally the Dafoes in Hastings County were two brothers, Abraham and Jacob. Jacob had no children and the available record does not indicate whether he married. Hence the family has sprung from Abraham, who, in 1783, one hundred and fifty-three years ago, came to Canada with his brother after the American Revolution, and settled at Bay Bay, an arm of the Bay of Quinte south of Napanee.

According to a sketch of the family, the name Dafoe is exclusively Canadian. It is a corruption of the name, Devoe, which is not uncommon in New York state. This name was in turn derived from the earlier name of DeVoe. The family in its racial origin is believed to have been Flemish or Dutch, and that name is comparatively common in the Netherlands today.

Arrival From Holland

In the year 1658 a number of farmers of the low country of Holland came to New York, then New Amsterdam, and became tenants of the Van Rensselaer family. Among them were Jacob Devoe and Jacob De Vos, presumably brothers, or father and son. The latter name was undoubtedly the progenitors of the numerous Vosburgh family that settled over the country. Abraham and Jacob have been family names down to the present time, as well as another link with colonial days is the Straka of New York, the name Van Rensselaer still persits, especially in the branch distinguished by John W. Dafoe of Winnipeg, who has a son, a brother and a nephew bearing that honored name, all descendants of the family in America.

Records Lost in Mist of Time

Even 1658 until 1783 the fortunes of the Dafoes were lost in the mists of time. In the revolt of the New England States, the King's Rangers, composed of loyalist troops, took no in the Dutch settlements along the Hudson, produced a considerable number of men bearing that name. After the war they came to Canada with their families and settled in the forests of Ontario.

There is on file in the Crown Lands Department at Toronto the old United Empire Loyalist list recording the names of those who received grants of land. The Order-in-Council, passed in October in 1789. In this list appears the name of Abraham Dafoe, containing the notation:—" Frederickburg—Corporal Kings Rangers. Land Board, Mecklenburg, 1790, 500; Land Board Mecklenburg, 1790, 100, in right of his brother, Jacob, presumably referring to their grants of land.

Came with Loyalists to Canada

The Loyalists when they entered Canada took the shortest route. The Dafoes came to Hay Bay, a reach of the Bay of Quinte, leaving behind them their homes in New York State, severing the material bonds that had been formed during a century and a quarter, to preserve their sturdy affections for the Empire and their allegiance to the British throne.

The Abraham Dafoe of 1783 had six sons, Conrad, Michael, John Daniel, Jacob and Jacob. Conrad settled in Ashleville, married Aneph Empey and died at the age of 100 years and three months. Michael settled in South Fredericksburg and married a Holcombe. He died in 1866 in his 102rd year. The other son also went forth, hewed out homes in the wilderness, married and lived to a ripe old age. Descendants of these families still reside throughout South Hastings. Michael son of Abraham, had eleven children, eight boys and three girls. One of Michael's, also christened Michael, married Sarah Ockerman; they had six children. One of their four sons was named Allan, who married Mary Williams, and their family consisted of five boys and three girls.

In Hastings County

By this time some of the Dafoe had moved into Hastings County and so it came that Allan, son of Michael, was a farmer at Bogart, near Tweed. One of his five sons, William Allan Dafoe, received a University training, took a medical course at the University of Toronto and began practice of his profession at Madoc in the year 1880. He married Rhea VanDusen. They had nine children, seven daughters and two boys. The sons followed in the professional footsteps of their father and are now Roy Allan Dafoe of Callander and Dr. William Allan Van Dusen Dafoe of Toronto. Their father practiced medicine in Madoc until 1926, when he moved to Toronto where he died.

From that brief outline it has been shown that Dr. Roy Allan Dafoe is 2 rooted from Michael, son of Michael and grandson of Abraham. Another of the first Michael's sons was named Chalse. His wife was named Sharpe. They had nine children, all of whom married.

One of Calse's sons was Hiram, whose wife's name was Rose. They had five children, four sons and one daughter, all of whom married. One of Hiram's sons is Frank Dafoe of Madoc, whose wife's name was Hodgson. They had six children; one of them, Rosalld, is now living in Madoc, representing the sixth generation of the family.

Family All Marries

Another of Abraham's sons was John, who settled in what was then known as South Fredericksburg. His wife's name was Schoonann, and they had nine children. One of the five sons was named Abram who was married in 1813 and lived to be seventy years old. His wife's name was Holcombe. They had seven children, four boys and three girls, and to repeat a characteristic fact, all got married. One of the girls was named Lois. She married J. S. Pearce of Norwood, and they had eight children. Two of the sons at present are still living in Norwood, Frederick and Russel Pearce. Another son, Russel, died in France in the Great War as a member of the 155th Battalion. The fifth generation that a daughter, Emma, married a Mr. Hope.

Branches of Family

The branch of the Dafoe family, descending through Abraham, son of Jacob and grandson of the original Abraham, has produced numerous line in itself. The record of Frederick Dafoe is sufficient to indicate how sons and daughters in each generation went away from the old settlements in Hastings County. Some of them are traced to Michigan, Pennsylvania, New York, California, British Columbia, Saskatchewan, Belleville, Napanee, Foxboro, Toronto, Rochdale, Port Hope, Norwood and other communities in the old central area.

The John W. Dafoe, Winnipeg, branch descends from Daniel, son of the original Abraham. Daniel settled at Big Island, Napanee. He had seven children, one daughter and six sons. One of the sons was Samuel, whose wife's name was Wright. They had seven children one of them, Caleb, who married Mary Alcombe. One of these children was John Dafoe of Winnipeg, editor of the Free Press.

BEFORE: A kitchen in Valois, Que., as it appeared last November. There are thousands just like it all over Canada. Clean, but old-fashioned, inefficient and hard to work in.

AFTER: The same kitchen after its owner had it modernized under the Home Improvement Plan. Convenient, labour-saving and a joy to work in. This kitchen has the distinction of being the first in Canada to be completed under the H.I.P.

In many Canadian homes a kitchen is not worthy of the name. In others, the kitchen is one of the most desirable rooms in the home. With bright, shining equipment, attractive decoration, and convenient arrangement.

The Home Improvement Plan, sponsored by the National Employment Commission, has placed within the reach of Canadian women the second kind of kitchen. To illustrate this fact, the two photographs showing the transition of an old kitchen into a modern one, have been produced.

The kitchen in the picture is the first in Canada to be modernized under the Home Improvement Plan. A resident of Valois, Quebec, near Montreal, realized that opportunity was knocking at her door when the Home Improvement Plan, with its generous terms and easy financing, was announced. She needed a new kitchen and decided that she should have it.

Contrast the two kitchens. In the "before" picture, we see a reasonably attractive kitchen, but one which is now far out of date. One observes the oil stove, the thing that looks like a hot water boiler but which is really a rack for utensils; the open sink with the draining board at each side and unsightly pails and pans underneath; the refrigerator with ice compartment; the floor without covering except for linoleum under the sink and refrigerator.

DISCUSSION CLUB OF MADOC MEETS

Don Whytock Presents Address on "Canada And The Empire"

Madoc.—The second meeting of the Discussion Club was held in the Library of the High School with about twenty-five present. The president, Mr. A. C. Anderson, called upon the speaker, Mr. Don Whytock to present the subject "Canada, and the Empire."

Beginning in the early part of the 18th century, the development of Canadian autonomy was traced through its various stages down to the Imperial Conference of 1926 which declared:

"The group of self-governing communities composed of Great Britain and the Dominions are autonomous communities within the British Empire, equal in status, in no way subordinate to another in any aspect of their domestic or external affairs though united by common allegiance to the crown and freely associated as members of the British Commonwealth of Nations. Every self-governing member of the Empire is master of its own destiny.

The influence of MacDonald and Laurier in the development of nationhood was climaxed with the recognition as a signatory power on the Treaty of Versailles and a member of the League of Nations.

At the conclusion of the meeting discussion arose over the position of Canada regarding defence policy and her participation in future wars. The next meeting will be held in Caniff Hall, Monday, February 8th with Mr. W. Mollain as the speaker.

Portrait of Gen. Wolfe's Naval Aide Now Among Canada's Art Treasures

BY PETER O'DAY
(Central Press Canadian Correspondent)

Ottawa, Jan. 30.—A 171-year-old portrait in oil, on a 36 by 34-inch canvas and framed in old gilt, was recently added to the treasured art possessions of the people of Canada. The portrait, now hanging on display in the Public Archives, Ottawa, is of Admiral Sir Charles Saunders, K.B., and was painted by the renowned artist, Richard Brompton, who died in 1783. It was presented to Canada by Percy Maitland Stewart, O.B.E., J.P., of Park Lane, London, England.

Fought With Wolfe

The painting is of exceptional historical value since Sir Charles was commander-in-chief of the naval forces at the capture of Quebec by General Wolfe in 1759. He also was a rear-admiral and 12 years later in 1770 (five years before his death) so admiral. At one time commander-in-chief of the Mediterranean fleet, Sir Charles was buried privately in Westminster Abbey. The original Hoppner portrait done by Brompton Richard, R.A., remains in the family at Ingland from Quebec, it is in excellent condition and shows the subject in full length, dressed in his naval uniform and wearing the Order of the Bath, of which he was made a knight in 1761.

Got Honored Place

Archives' officials have reserved a place of honor for the painting and, since his arrival, scores of people have viewed it. On the left of the picture, as a sketch plan of the siege of Quebec, is reproduced from Knox's Voyages and a volume of "Lives of Admirals" by Charles Ina second-hand Commodore Keppel to Belherbie at the Central Convention on Jan. 29th.

brought the painting with him during a business visit to Quebec and Ottawa. It is in the charge of Hon. Fernand Rinfret, secretary of state, who has been handed it over to the Archives.

A brass tablet has been prepared, indicating who was the donor of the painting, and it will probably be unveiled shortly by Gov.-Gen. Lord Bessborough.

Innocence is one of the most refreshing attributes of youth, pop said. Now suppose you take a mixture of that horse reddish as I took and then we'll discuss what's a mystery, he said, and ma said, Why I never heard of such a thing for land sakes.

And she took the horse reddish jar and smelled it and snorted and quick put the cover back and wouldn't let either of us have any more.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was reading in my Junior Encyclopedia about the Yogi Hindoos that never change their expression no matter what happens to them on account of having so much mind over matter, and kinda for a super hero there was a new jar of horse reddish on the table, and I had a idea I'd see if I could make them Yogi Hindoos of it and still act like a Yogi as if nothing had happened.

And I quick swallowed about a quarter of a spoonful full and it was pritty near the strongest stuff I ever tasted, but I got the hotter I felt inside the cooler I tried to look outside, and pop said gosh that horse reddish must be mild, you just took enough to choke a medium size polifish. At last I can realize one of the minor ambitions of my life, namely to inhale a big gob of horse reddish with perfect composure, and maybe pretty soon and perhaps even savoir fair. So have a look, yee merry villagers, he said.

Meaning me and ma, and we took almost a half a teaspoon full and swallowed it with a careless expression and then started to choke and cuff and reach for everybody's water and most of them not being enough, and then he leaned back in his chair with the matter of fact accent of him with his napkin, ma saying, Well pahaw!ity of course, you art to know better.

There was something not quite ripe in the state of Denmark, pop said, in this state of Denmark, and I said, Sir? What's a matter?

BALMY WEATHER

Weather of an unusual character is sticking to this continent. With the break during the Christmas holidays, there came that rainy spell which ended only with the advent of a few chilly days, one or which approached the zero mark this week. Then two days more or so of firmer weather and then again moderate weather on Friday almost like a springday.

So unusual is it that historians have had to go back fifty-five years to the year 1882 to find a match for it. That year had little cold weather, the winter was unusually mild and there was difficulty in reaping the ice harvest.

Friday's weather, the balmiest day of the winter, a day which was really without any of the drawbacks of spring and which possessed all but a few of the advantages of spring, gives hopes that the weather will be moderate for a good part of the remaining winter though there will be without doubt cold spells. If the year 1882 is any criterion, it will be none too severe.

Not so many years ago there was an unusually mild winter but the weather was not like this. While that winter made a record as the temperature did not drop below zero, it was not to touch it, this winter made sub-zero plunges several times two months ago. That winter of several years ago created endless talk of change of climate, but the conclusion was the cold set on record, one in which the residents did not hesitate to drop as low as thirty-nine below at Belleville and even lower in the district at large.

The present season has been marked by little snow, but considerable rain. What we are having is much like that across the continent, especially that of the wet spell which has provoked the awful floods in the central states of the neighboring Republic.

What of the winter in store? Will it become very severe, so severe as to freeze up and block the river? No one knows, for the older individuals grow the more they realize that two winters are alike. And hence it is unsafe to prophesy.

What is so rare as a day like yesterday? anyone can say. It is doubtful if spring can show a better. There are a few rare days in every year, those balmy days which seem so unlike all other days. Friday was one of that select company.

LATE DR. GEO. H. LOCKE

The late Dr. George H. Locke, who died on Friday in Toronto, was an outstanding Canadian in the educational world. For years he was the latter work as librarian of the City of Toronto. He had held many posts on educational institutions, some of which are in the United States, and others in Canada. Toronto Globe and Mail speaks of his work as chief public librarian. "A vigorous and influential character, the new librarian began at once a period of expansion and advancement. When he assumed office in 1908 the library was located in the old building at Church and Adelaide Streets, with a few small branches and twenty-six attendants. Now he leaves as his monument the splendid central library on College Street, sixteen flourishing up-to-date branches, and a staff of 280 librarians highly trained in all branches of this public service. He was known as one of the world's outstanding librarians, and was honored with the Presidency of the American Library Association in 1926, while in the following year he delivered the opening address at the fiftieth anniversary meeting of the British Library Association in Edinburgh.

"Dr. Locke revolutionized library work in Toronto. He made the public library a vital public business, ever pushing its way toward outlying centres of population."

HARD TO UNDERSTAND

People have been seeking in abnormal psychology a clue to the incredible treason trial in Moscow. But the psychological puzzles are not the only ones. Take, for instance, the colossal ineptitude of Stalin's enemies as killers. In last Summer's trial it appeared that men delegated to shoot Stalin drifted helplessly around Moscow with idle guns in their pockets. They could not get near enough to Stalin in the street. They sat too far from him in the theatre box. At times it would almost seem they could not go out to shoot Stalin because it was raining and they had mislaid their rubbers.

So in yesterday's paper a certain man is said to have been deputed to kill a couple of Stalinite chieftains for whom he worked as chauffeur. On one occasion he was to run into a log in the middle of the road, but swerved at the last moment. Another time there was a lethal combination of ditches, sharp curves and motor trucks, but again he missed. It is like Mark Twain playing quoits on shipboard. He said it is a wonderful feat to lay the ring around the pin every time. But for himself, Mark Twain claimed a still greater miracle. He missed every time.

Yet these wretched bunglers would be the men, or their agents, whose earlier life was spent in secret revolutionary activity. Their later years saw a revolution, a civil war, and a social "experiment" of which the aggregate cost has been twenty million lives. Most of the men shot last Summer, or scheduled to be shot almost any day now, have seen death as it has been given to few men to know it. In the civil war, for instance, many of these men were at the front as commissars or in the actual fighting. But the way they went about trying to kill Stalin and his aides is something more than amateur and lackadaisical. At times they suggest Mr. Gilbert's pirates at Penzance.—New York Times.

GOVERNMENTAL INSTITUTIONS HAVE A HABIT OF MULTIPLYING like Ellis Parker Butler's Guinea Pigs, which kept increasing in the pages of the village railway station master who had a pair of guinea pigs left on his hands, because of the consignee, and wanted to know what to do with them. He received a still further overhead office gave the necessary instructions as to disposal of one pair of guinea pigs. The station master had to reply that there were no longer one pair of guinea pigs but several and head office took its time to direct what was to be done with the enlarged guinea pig family, which then received a still further increase. Increased family which the instructions did not fit at all, and another census had to be taken and another report despatched —and so on, far into the future.

Washington's Democratic government rode into power 4 year ago on a platform which included the plank of drastically curtail government department and offices, but has multiplied publicoffice that Washington is full to the even with government offices occupying new buildings and rented buildings and now it is proposed to skip the surplus over into Baltimore as there is standing room only in Washington for Government employees.

Did you ever stop to think that Canada for a well behaved country of ten million odd inhabitants has a considerable government? It all begins on the back concessions with the township council which feeds the county council—then the town and city councils, and the provincial legislature, all leading up to the federal government at Ottawa.

Did you ever stop to think of the amount of talking involved in transacting public business, passing statutes, by-laws and law—each year an entire new set is constructed, no matter how industrious the lawmakers of the previous year were?

Aside from local government take a peek behind the scenes at Ottawa, where making of Hansard, for instance, which records the speeches and doings of the previous day in Parliament. The pondorous speeches on this, that and the other things, the shorthand reporters spelling each other at frequent intervals to get the verbatim report down, word for word, as delivered, subject to correction in the printers' proof by the speechifier, within certain limits. Putting the speeches into form and on the printed page, with extra copies for the constituents back home, if desired, mailed under a member's 'frank' that is free of postage, free paper, ink, and everything, all free as air, just as weighty, most times.

Then there is the compiling of new laws, a brand new crop every session of new laws and old laws made over—all must go through the governmental machine of first reading, second reading, third reading, and debate after having successfully passed the committee stage ad infinitum, notwithstanding the mountains of new legislation embalmed in ponderous tomes the preceding session.

Ever accompanying the rumble of the printing presses turning out parliamentary literature, which will never reach the 'best seller' class, can be heard far into the night the flow of words in the council chamber drowning the snores of the few members who have to be in their places to ensure a government majority in the events of a snap division.

New laws, old laws renovated, made into books which make mountains of paper ever reaching for the sky, ever seeking to overtake the altitude records of Hansard, the volcanic eruption which keeps flowing, flowing, day and night without interruption.

Such is just a sidelight on government as we have it in Canada for ten million people—enough, some people say, for one hundred million. Private business would never tolerate a system which keeps doubling on itself—keeps growing and growing until it is bigger than the people who created it, bigger than the country, and a business which costs tremendously but produces little of that which preserves life—food and raiment—but puts laws and regulations and speeches and "dick" to keep the government printing office working overtime. What becomes of all the good old laws which were brought forth with such fear trembling and considered as everlasting as an unalterable as the laws of the Medes and Persians?

Parliament Hill Hears

By Wilfrid Eggleston

Samuel Jacobs, Liberal member for Cartier, Montreal, is one of the three Jewish members of the present House and has a rare gift for repartee.

Just before the session his name was mentioned in connection with the Senate vacancy in that district but the appointment actually fell to Hon. Adrian Hugessen-Hughessen, the man who gave Hon. C. H. Cahan a tough battle in the last general election.

Shortly after the present session began, "Tam" Reid, the bagpiping member from New Westminster met Sam.

"I'm sorry," says Tam', "that I'm not able to congratulate you on being the new Senator from Montreal."

"Yes," replied Sam, and then his eyes twinkling, "The government didn't give it few consideration!"

Another of those incognito farce comes to mind, that which Hon. Ernest Lapointe figure being the Governor General of Canada.

On his western trip Lord Tweedsmuir made drives across country from Medicine Hat to a couple of hundred miles or more just to visit an old friend, Alec Fraser, whom he had met 40 years ago. The last time to whom he had conducted a regular correspondence ever since.

The vice-regal party was up in the air, but in the main line, the automobile bearing along on the prairie trails, when it was flagged by a Mounted Police corporal in overalls and a grin.

The Tweedsmuir automobile came to a halt.

"Corporal," said the Governor-General, "I have a message for you from Commissioner Wood."

"Sure, we'll do that," replied the chauffeur. So off went the farmer over the barbed wire fence back to his threshing rig, unconscious whose automobile he had just commanded. The incident pleased the governor several very much.

Did you know—that Hon. J. L. Ilsley, Minister of National Revenue, used to take lectures in law at Dalhousie University, and that he is now counsellor of the department of external affairs—that Hon. Norman Rogers, House leader of the opposition, is a strick Sabbatarian and declines to let his staff work Sundays either—that Leo Ryan used to reverse the usual process of getting out a new calendar at the end of the day and puts in a couple of hours work—that the business day commences—that the private secretary of the Minister of Labour talks modern German quite fluently and can order a meal in a language which the proprietor of some restaurants cannot fail to comprehend —that R. B. Bennett has spent at least $20,000 in scholarships to send the bright students of Calgary since he began the practise many years ago.

The House of Commons is a great place for quotations, especially in the early stages of the session—no exception this year—before the session was two weeks old we had heard from eminent authorities all the way from Shakespeare to Lord Jawson of Penn—Shakespeare and Longfellow, as a matter of fact, got into "orstair" each. Mr. Bennett quoted "Tam" Reid, the bagpiping member from Montreal, Mercier, in connection with the Senate vacancy in that district but the appointment actually fell to Hon. Adrian Hugessen-Hughessen, the man who gave Hon. C. H. Cahan a tough battle in the last general election.

Bright and pithy sayings of the statesmen:

"Inflation is another form of taxation."—J. S. Coldwell, C.C.F., Rosetown—Biggar.

"Hooeini on the stage took rabbits out of hats."—Hon. Ian Mackenzie, not make his living by selling the high Comm. at Desobman, Liberal, Huron North.

"The man who thinks in terms of work ahead; who thinks in terms of what he can do; who spends energy; he who thinks in terms of what he can get; who spends and dotes."—O. J. Veniot, Liberal, Gloucester.

"In the days of inflation a single United States cent was capable of purchasing nearly a pound of flour. At the present pre-war mortgage debt of the British Empire."—Rt. Hon. R.B. Bennett.

"The prime-rather stated it is true—for forecasting election dates is concerned."—Rt. Hon. M. P. for Wetaskiwin in the last House. In his play, 'The Brains We Trust', written in days of long ago, and obviously with the coming general election in mind, he puts into the mouth of one of his characters a decision to hold the federal election in the third week of October. Months afterwards, Mr. Bennett decided the voting day would be the 14th of October. Not bad.

Stray Bits

The wandering individual who calls around to grind your scissors and odd tools has moved with the times. A few years ago he pushed a heavy contraption along the streets to operate the grindstone and other necessities of the craft. He used a treadle to obtain motive power, but the labor to move his machine was heavy. As he walked through the streets keen eyes open for business, a brass bell tinkled merrily from his handle of the little cart. Through the many remote sections he loaded his smaller, portable machine on the back for farm house trade. But today the treadle, the little cart, and even the pickaboo grinding outfit is discarded. The knife sharpener has gone modern. Yesterday he entered Belleville in a sleek sport young man with the beginnings of a first class machine shop tucked in one end of a commodious trailer drawn by a small coupe. He found business good enough in the sharpening of edged tools, but he branched out to vacuum cleaner, sewing machines, washing machines and even radios. Last year he was mounted upon a bicycle from which he also derived the motor power for a large grinding wheel. Out of work, he tried this means of making a living. Another was Mr. Shapiro, formerly of Oshawa can show a substantial bank account and is learning geography first hand from his knowledge of his car and coupe as he tours the country, finding business "good."

Strange though it may be, the most popular geographic name in Canada is "Mud." In the Dominion as a whole, there are literally hundreds of geographical features whose name is Mud, and the people who live nearby and who are interested in the features resist all changes in the name.

In an article in a recent number of The Beaver, Col. E. S. Burns of the Geographic Board of Canada, lists something for reasons for the popularity of some unlikely common names. He says:

"A great many of the small lakes and ponds in the Laurentian plain are shallow and have swampy shores and turgid waters; it is very difficult to find names for these small ponds and the water begins. This characteristic seldom escaped the pioneer explorer, hence the existence of several thousand times. On the other hand, the lakes had not such sedgy shores and a high percentage of deerins in their immediate vicinity. The first grateful pioneer called it "Clear Lake". There must be as many Clear Lakes as Mud Lakes.

"Next in the ranks stand the names which are known as Round and Long; then the zoological names, such as Bear, Deer, Moose, Beaver, Rat, Trout, Salmon, Bass, Pickerel, Duck, Loon, Eagle and Gull."

When the people get accustomed to a name they do not like it change. There was a local instance recently when the Marmora district protested strenuously to have the name of Crow Lake changed to Marmora Lake.

Where horsemen congregate the subject of conversation inevitably turns to the matter of weight pulling. The strength of horses varies, points out a writer in the Pathfinder but from the latest world's record for loads pulled by heavy weight draught horses some idea of what the average horse can do may be obtained. This new world's record was established at the Hillsdale Fair, Michigan when Rock and Dave, from the Stalter Farms, Piqua, Ohio, pulled 2,900 pounds on a dynamometer, the equivalent to hauling 25 1-2 tons of weight for twenty consecutive starts on granite, pavement, or dragging nine plows through corn belt loam, cutting 14-inch furrows six inches deep.

In the house of Commons recently considerable discussion was held by Members over the matter of homework for school children. Examination questions were submitted and quoted; some of them are: If it takes a yard and a bit of carpet to cover a quarter of the floor of a house in Japan, how much carpet will be needed to cover the floor of the Atlantic Ocean?

Two men, separated by 20 miles, walked toward each other at the rate of 10 miles an hour. At the moment of meeting, a fly which alighted on the head of A, and at once flew at 20 miles an hour to the nose of B, and so on from one to the other at a speed of 40 miles an hour until they met. How many mile did it fly?

In the middle of a circular lily-pond a water-lily grew. Every day it doubled in size. In 30 days it had covered the whole of the pond, which day did it cover half the pond?

Four volumes of an encyclopedia are placed by side on a shelf. The pages of the complete set number-ed consecutively. Each volume measured one inch in thickness, and each of the two sides of each cover was 1-4-inch thick. How far did a worm travel that was to eat its way from 1 to Page 400?

If a goose weighs 10 lbs. and half its own weight, how much does it weigh?

A man with a revolver leans out of the window of his compartment, which is the last coach of the train. He sees the engine-driver leaning out of his cabin on the same side of the train, and he fires at him. The train is travelling at a speed of 60 miles an hour. He is in the bullet. Will the engine-driver be hit?

Captain Cook made three great voyages, during one of which he was killed. Which one was it?

A man has not many children's sister. Why is this foolish?

The answer to the last two are written on an ordinary blank. When Captain Cook was killed it had been on his hair trip, and a dead man cannot marry anyone.

For the rest it can safely be affirmed that the queries were such as would puzzle the average adult brain in a snarl and for youngsters of such tender years are positively as otherwise than ridiculous.

Today, however, was supposed to exercise the deduction and other faculties of the youthful mind, but surely it would be just as easy to obtain like results in a much more rational way.

It is a wonder that the old timer was not handed out a blank sheet at a picture and exclaiming, "Sisters and brothers all I know, yet that man's father was my father's son."

This one is always calculated to put even the best regulated family into a state of the acrimonious strife.

Experience shows that those possessed of the patience and the peculiar mentality necessary for the solution of brain twisters do not necessarily shine in other directions.

How the mentality of any child is helped by such conundrums is beyond successful demonstration.

Grand Journalists Of The Have Passed Out of Sight — The Editor of Today Is Chosen Not For Journalistic Prowess But For Ability to Manage a Business — Picturesque Story of Parliament — A Record of Literary Developments

The newspaper is a vital ingredient in the world of Canadian life. Its influence is beyond computation, because it has to do with the thinking of the people. There can be nothing more important than that. I do not subscribe wholly to the postulate that men are what they think; but there is a sense in which that is true. It is at least true that as men think, so men act.

In my preceding reminiscent sketches I have tried very earnestly to identify some of the men and women who had been behind events in Canada during the past half-century; for it is fundamental in my philosophy that men and events bear the relationship of parents to progeny, and that the latter are the result, partly, and left to us the task of developing our heritage. Coincidentally, a somewhat different task has been, though animated by the same spirit, to have built up a great chain of newspapers; and it is about their role in this unfolding drama that I now want to say a few words to my outstanding Canadian journalists.

The Interesting Retrospect

I became a member of the reportorial staff of the London Advertiser Press in 1877, although I was not then eighteen years of age. This brought me into intimate contact with one of our ablest Canadian journalists, David Williams, who was a pioneer in the newspaper field. Somewhere about the halfway point in the nineteenth century he had founded the Free Press. It is suggested of the period that his family occupied the upper floor of the Dundas Street store in which he began to expand, he took in three partners. One of them was William Southam, father of the Southams who now have such large newspaper holdings in London, Hamilton, Ottawa, Winnipeg, Calgary, Edmonton and Vancouver. Mr. Southam was my ideal of a man — courteous, gracious, warm-hearted and considerate.

Josiah Blackburn was the editor, and sixteen years of life made a profound in the history of Canadian journalism. In appearance and methods he was greatly reminded me of Sir John Macdonald. As the guiding genius of the party he had the loyalty and affection of all who served him. His "political principle" was revealed to me on the occasion when I had spoken to him about a certain matter, and he had replied, "a good writer". Just as Sir John Macdonald's genius for men overrubbed his none thoughtfully, and asked me what I meant when I spoke of "good writing". I explained that I had in mind a nice choice of words.

"Yes", said Blackburn, "he uses scriptural English." And the people who read the Free Press from day to day a red cent about the language in our columns. Their interest in them is ideal." He exemplified that principle by all that he was.

Josiah Blackburn had many able contemporaries in journalism, but no others. I knew some of them personally, and came under their fascination. Whether or not they envisaged the newspaper of today it would be hard to say; but certainly played a vital part in that stirring day. They have since then been the measure of evolution, let anyone compare the metropolitan newspaper of today with, say, the London Free Press of fifty years ago. Those of us who were privileged to elect quite strikingly the coincidence of development of art and mechanics. Think of it; there wasn't a Mergenthaler typesetting machine in the Dominion in 1871. Illustrations were few in number, and were chiefly woodcuts. Stereotyping was just beginning.

Yesteryear's Newspaper Makers

I should like, even at the risk of being regarded with presumption, to write about the evolution of the Canadian newspaper; but that is not the purpose of this series of sketches. I started out to write about men in it, and I must stick to my avowal. Obviously, however, I could not write about all of the men journalists who have taken part in this immense development. I do not even know them all. I am compelled to confine myself to a few of the job in hand to be selective and, to make that situation, I have decided to confine my efforts to those journalists whom I came to know during the seven years I was a member of the Parliamentary Press Gallery at Ottawa. That was from 1886 to the end of 1892. Ottawa has always been the Mecca of newspapermen.

Here again I must apply the selective process. While I know with delightful accuracy, the men who at that period came to Ottawa annually to report the proceedings of Parliament, it is impossible in the space at my disposal in this single sketch would not permit me to tell about all of them. I must pick out and deal with the more prominent personalities.

I start with Edmund E. Sheppard. His appearance in the Press Gallery was but intermittent; yet I must essentially him as a really great Canadian journalist. He was for two years on the staff of the London Free Press during my time, and it was then I had a first-hand opportunity to appreciate his fine diction and his sound mental processes. There was originality, character and style in every line he wrote. He cheerfully sacrificed all the conventions to sheer forcefulness. He had been a cowboy in Texas, seeking health in that kind of life, and he affected the cowboy's breezy mentality.

One day I wrote a little story about an old lady who had come to come up to London from St. Thomas to pay her married daughter a surprise visit. Planned for her this was to be the supreme adventure of the simple old life. She got the cabman to drive her near to her daughter's home, and then got out, walked to the door. As she expected, her daughter opened the door and cried: "Oh, mother!" But another was to feed in her arms.

That's about the way I wrote the story, and then turned it over to Edmund Sheppard. When it appeared in the paper I was surprised to find added:

"How beautiful to die of over-joy at eighty-four." That was the human touch, and Sheppard had it in all his work.

E. E. Sheppard founded the Toronto News, and for a time was active in it, and later on Toronto Saturday Night. He was also the founder of "Don" he did very fine work indeed. It is not an exaggeration to say he influenced the whole generation of journalism in the metropolitan city of Toronto. He was a forceful, but manly, the journalism of Canada at large. He lived on his nerves and did not reach old age.

School House to Knighthood

Sir John S. Willison also commenced his journalistic career in London, contributing not on the Free Press. It was in the earlier eighties that he went to Toronto. Huron County, where he had been teacher, schoolmaster and apprentice himself — yes, actually apprenticed to a rural industries — to John Cameron, the Advertiser, and learn the business of being a newspaperman. Willison was a man in earnest. Although we were on the same staff Willison and I soon formed a friendship which endured the test of time. I wholly misunderstood him, nevertheless. He was so raw and inept that I failed to discern in him those qualities which I observed later in the principals of Canadian journalism.

But I was blind to his fundamentals. That is to say, he had brains, energy and ambition. He had the desire to be the best in the competitive world. Thousands of men have brains, energy and the reach editorial chairs nor win any distinction of any kind, because even the brightest intellects lack the soul and developed by hard work. Willison, however, was not only to wrote brilliantly, it was the brilliance of perspiration rather than of inspiration. His "Life of Sir Wilfrid Laurier" and his connection with the London Advertiser were his broad contribution to Canadian journalism. He was knighted. I may be entirely wrong, but I believe that the weight of a little married his ambitions. He had the physical sense, he was wearing out himself. I shall not think that he did his best work while editor of the Toronto Globe.

Toronto Gallery in Senate

The late Hon. John Lewis never reached the Presidency of the Press Gallery, which, however, he adorned for a time. He was a man of the type to that group a logical and highly intellectual mind. He was once made him one of the oldest editorial writers on the Globe has ever had. That of saying a great deal. I knew him well, and loved him. Silent and shy, he was nevertheless as witty a man as I ever knew. His editorial about Sir Sam Hughes' fisticuffs with a rival editor in London was a classic of scholarly humor. To me he once said that the great Edward Blake as "not a human being, but a walking library." He was both. He was clever and apt. Blake's bitter tongue made him unpopular; yet few people ever detected the noble devotion to his scrivilty. He suffered from chronic indigestion.

John Lewis had all the essentials of the great editor-in-chief. He was broadminded and tolerant. He never, as Macaulay did, dipped his pen in gall. He was a man of his time, common sense in men, and that's the best any man can do. His works classical and forceful English. As the Senate he spoke but seldom, and shrank from even that measure of publicity; yet he had something worth while to say when he got on his feet. He left a fragrant memory with all who really knew him.

He Loads the West

Perhaps no Canadian editor ever was quite the unique place in Canadian Journalism that is John W. Dafoe's. Unlike so many others who have come within the scope of this sketch, he still survives, and without any impairment of physical vigor or influence. We entered the Press Gallery about the same time, he as a member of the fine group the Montreal papers always sent to Ottawa in a report of Parliament. With his shock of unruly red hair shining upright, he impressed me as having some knotty problem on his mind. It soon became that whatever that problem might be, Dafoe assuredly soon have it thoroughly thrashed out. He is the type of mind he had — the mind that skimmed the mere surface of things.

Then, after a short interlude at the editorship of the Montreal Journal, he went to Winnipeg, where his life work began as the maker of the Free Press. No other man has ever profoundly influenced Canadian thinking. He has given national fame to the Free Press. Successive governments have failed to appreciate his fine diction and sound mental processes. There was originality, character and style in every line he wrote. HOUSES NAZI IRE

Because he criticized German and Italian participation in the Spanish conflict and called Mussolini "a tool of the Roman church", Gen. Erich von Ludendorff, above, noted great war leader, had one of his newspapers confiscated by the German government. Ludendorff's stand appeared in the paper which was later seized. The war commander on the western front supported Hitler in the March "beer hall putsch", but resigned from the Nazi party in 1923.

Mr. Law doubts the practicability of reviving the wheat pools on a contract basis and made his suggestions to the Turgeon royal grain commission in Winnipeg.

ACCIDENT DEATHS AT ALL-TIME HIGH

38,500 Killed in United States in 1936, Report States

Chicago, Jan. 29 (AP)—Motor vehicles accident deaths in the United States reached an all-time record total 38,500 in 1936, the National Safety Council said today, exceeding the previous mark of 37,000 set in 1935.

Tornadoes, floods, excessive heat increased employment helped push the 1936 total over 1935 figure. deaths from all causes to 111,000, highest since the survey of 101-139.

The council added that accidents permanently disabled about 400,000 persons and temporarily disabled 10,200,000 others.

For the first time in eight years accidents showed an increase, even within bonne—39,000, or an advance of 1,500 from the 1935 figure —exceeded the number of deaths on the highways of the United States.

Neither I nor any other safety worker will attempt to explain away a 1,500 increase in traffic deaths during 1936," said Ned H. Cameron, Managing Director of the Council.

The council's survey indicated that 1,000 of the 1,500 increase in accident deaths as compared with 1935 came in November and December, when heavy rains, snow and fair weather permitted heavy traffic in the month. But the country ended the winter usually cuts the volume of highway travel."

600 AFFECTED BY THE NEW RULING

Commuting Between U. S. And Canada For Work Discontinued

Buffalo, N.Y., Jan. 30—(CP) Legislation prohibiting commuting across United States borders by workers went into effect about persons along the Canadian frontier, federal authorities estimated today. Arthur J. Tittemore, Buffalo district director of immigration and naturalization, said 600 aliens and 138 United States citizens residing in Canada commute daily to work in Buffalo or Niagara Falls. Many of them, he said, have been doing so for years.

The proposed law, approved by the House Immigration Committee in Washington yesterday, would apply to Americans as well as aliens and bars commuters from crossing either the southern or northern boundaries.

The House of Representatives committee said, however, the bill would not apply to American citizens who maintain summer homes in Canada. Many families commute from Buffalo and other border cities during the short, hot summer for vacations along the Canadian shores of Lake Erie and Lake Ontario. Many own their summer residences.

"REGENCY BILL" NOW BEFORE HOUSE

Provides For Continuance of Royal Powers Despite Eventualities

London, Jan. 30—(CP Cable) Provision for continuance of the royal powers despite certain eventualities is contained in the "Regency Bill" introduced in Parliament. It will be called for second reading on Thursday.

Under the bill a regency would be set up in the event of the accession to the throne of a child who is next sovereign to act, through illness.

Under it a council of state may be formed when the sovereign leaves the United Kingdom—as for instance, King George visits India for the Imperial Durbar.

The bill provides that the line of succession—would be the Duke of Gloucester, several of his niece, the Princess Elizabeth, 10-year-old daughter of the King and Queen, Princess Margaret Rose, before she reaches the age of 18. Eligible for the regency would be the King's health fail.

The bill follows the King's own request. In a message to parliament earlier this week the King stated his health, though "good", has been seriously concerned over the possibility that he may not be able continue to exercise his functions as sovereign.

A council of state would be composed of the husband or wife of the sovereign, if any, the heir apparent in line of succession. At present the Duke of York, the Duke of Gloucester and Kent; the Princess Royal, Princess Mary, widow of Prince Arthur of Connaught.

Provision is made for a group of officials, headed by the Lord Chancellor of the House of Commons, who would be charged not to act in the case of a serious illness the sovereign as was temporarily incapacitated with in the meaning of the act.

Presentation To Miss Peacock

On January 25th about seventy-five friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Peacock, fourth line, Hallowell to say farewell to their daughter who is leaving this community for Tweed.

During the evening instrumental solos were given by Mrs. Fred Garrison, Misses Bernice Robinson and Marion Martin and Master Duane Martin which were much enjoyed by all.

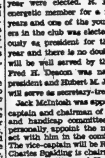
Edith was asked to come to the centre of the room where the following address was read by Miss Bernice Robinson.

Corbyville, Ont., Jan. 25, 1937.
Dear Edith:

We your friends, have gathered here this evening to wish you success in your new venture. You have resided here in your home, district all your life and been taken part in our social and community work.

We could not let you leave our midst without coming here to tell you how we appreciate the help and companionship that you have so willingly given us.

We want you to know that we will miss you sincerely and shall always be glad to have you back in our midst whenever you can come.



Before we part this evening we want to tell you that our wishes for you are centred in the old time toast:

"Here's to our hairdressers Long may they wave."

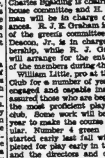
On behalf of our friends and neighbors we ask you to accept these small tokens of our love and appreciation.



Signed on behalf of your friends: Agnes McAvoy, Shirley Peacock, Bernice Robinson, Harold Denike, Clarence Chambers.

Following the address Miss Shirley Phillips presented Edith with a beautiful electric floor lamp and an armchair. Although taken by surprise Edith, in a few well chosen words thanked her friends for their remembrance. Everyone joined in singing "For She's a Jolly Good Fellow." The rest of the evening was spent in social conversation and dainty refreshments were served after which dancing was the order of the night.

ELECT OFFICERS AT COUNTRY CLUB

Trenton Junior Girls Winners in Triple-header of Basketball

The first meeting of the newly-elected directors of the Bay of Quinte Country Club was held last evening in the Belleville Club and from this board the officers for the year were elected. R. H. Martin, energetic member for a number of years and one of the younger players in the club was elected commodore, a position for the ensuing year and there is no doubt the club will be well served by this official. Fred H. Noonan was named vice-president and Robert M. Jones again will serve as secretary-treasurer.

Jack McIntosh was appointed club captain and chairman of the match and handicap committee and will personally appoint the members to act with him in the coming season. The vice-captain will be R. T. Smith. Charles Spalding is chairman of the house committee and H. W. Ackerman will be in charge of the finances. R. J. E. Graham is chairman of the greens committee and Fred Deacon, Jr., is in charge of membership, while R. J. Graham, Jr. will arrange for the entertainment of the members during the season. Election of early Sunday morning, but Sky stood a long time, in dark, moody contemplation of the empty field, the unoccupied building.

He became aware of sharp hunger and crossed the field, to the hangar. Cart, just emerging from a thick mass of strong black coffee swept the fog of weariness from the man and he became aware of his slightly-crumpled shirt, and combed it with the mirrors behind the counter.

He walked briskly across town, and came to Speed's room. The apartment was deserted, and his listless ears caught not to make any noise, changed to blank dismay, as he surveyed the twin beds, unmade, littered, the counterpanes smooth and unruffled. Everything just as it had been before.

There was a strange, hollow nausea as the pit of his stomach, and he had never felt so queer, so desolate and alone before. A fear that ability to define is as fear, numbed his faculties and he fell wooden and icy, as he stood there in the bedroom door staring blankly at the empty room.

He crossed to the dresser and touched the tiny jars and bottles that held Susanne's things. He saw that the brush and comb were missing, and the hidden panic, he rushed to the bath-room door, and flung it open.

They were not there. Susanne had taken them with her! Susanne was gone. Perhaps for good. Perhaps she had left him. The thought was an icy blast, something like heart at the shortness of his breath. He ran shaking, unsteady hands through his hair, and looked out, as if he had inadvertently plunged into a place sacred and holy.

He stood a long time, staring unseemingly around the little apartment. He moved, after a while, and his hands lingered in odd places, as if he saw happy scenes that were to be forever denied him again. The divan, where Susanne had curled up to mend stockings, lingerie his shirts and sox. The comfortable lounge chair; the deep easy chair beside the radio, where he often sat listening to some program with Susanne curled in his arms, her soft face against his chin, her fingers lazed in his tiny kitchenette, where they had washed and dried dishes, cooked dinners, made plans together.

He remembered, finally, that he had to do some stunt and advertising flying in Newark for a man named Hayland Jones, and he went to get a fresh shirt and tie, and a hat.

When he locked the apartment, finally, it was with the quiet despair of a man who turns his back on Paradise, locking himself out forever.

All that day, Sky fulfilled his spare-time contract, he lived in a dream. He was a puppet with no free field as so much a trip; he performed stunts that thrilled the crowd, and he ran through the usual sky-writing. The crowds were tiny ants, miles away, billions of miles away. They were an indistinct blur, and between Sky's eyes, and them, ran a never ceasing succession of pictures and scenes that brought pain, and anguish.

A world in which he had been happy. Happy and secure, and content. He did not hear the steady, monotonous voice of the announcer, charming the air. He kept hearing Susanne's voice cold and furious, and contempt-ous, as she told him that he had failed to keep their pact. Failed because he wanted to lend Bill Perry money, wanted to buy Wade Shoemacher champagne and high-ball cocktails, and did favors, rather than pay his share of expenses.

He was old. So old he was living in a past, dim, and so long ago that it was ridiculous to think he had ever been young enough to be part of it. Susanne had come to an end of the day. Collected his pay, thanked Wiley briefly, agreeing to further spare-time work on order.

It was 7:30 when he finally turned into the hotel lobby, and he went up the hangar phone to try his luck, again, and as long ago that up, with the quiet finality of despair, after waiting five minutes for the operator to call the room. Speed accosted him.

"Well, the nut has a cross-eyed monkey," he told Sky cheerfully. "How come you're not sitting and free at this hour of night, and an old married man."

"I've been working." Sky explained briefly, "and I was trying to get you apartment, but there's nobody home."

"Work! Where? Doing what? I thought the mail run ended at the fair-haired sons around these digings."

Sky explained, briefly, his partition job.

"Let me get this straight," he said slowly, "you took a special flying job, a stunt job without consulting the old man?Knowing about those rules, getting the hot-high hell-all over this place about outside flying middle west activities?"

"Yes," Sky agreed morosely, "no what?"

Speed gulped. He was regarding a Sky Nichols-he had never seen before, and it took him time to get his land bearings.

"Where's Susanne?" he said finally, in confused panic, "rather....let's go catch up with a drink, Dutch. I feel a little dizzy."

"O. K." Sky agreed wearily, "anything you say."

The riddle was still unexplained when they finished killing the third bottle of Scotch, but Speed was still trying to dope it out.

"How you've been the one shining example to this outfit," he grumbled, "sailed the challenging and was Page Madden's own pet, for fear you'd lose that job, and yet you go off like a forced landing and bust all the big rules of the

"WINGS OF LOVE"

(The Love Story of a Sky Pilot and Girl Who Planned on a Fifty-Fifty Financial System that Almost Wrecked Their Happiness)

By Janet Doran

Monday! Without it, no marriage could be a success without it, no man could expect to command respect.

Sky did not see Del Langley as a physical being. His jealousy, rather crystallized around the symbol that Del was. He was money! Unlimited amounts of it. Money to pay for Susanne's lunches and dinners, dances and theatres and flowers. Money to buy gifts with, to pay for gas and other expenses. He was a symbol, a flaming, blazing dollar sign, and Sky hated him with a vertigo that shook him through and through. Damned millionaire, he thought. Filthy plutocrat, dancing Susanne with his lousy money.

He slept, finally, close to dawn, sitting in the hard chair, tilted back against the wall, his head slipped sideways to a cramped position, and his long legs crowded on the table some distance away, the slumber of complete physical and mental exhaustion finally claimed him.

He awoke to a chill, cold Sunday morning, and cautiously moved his stiff and cramped legs, and numb arms, to test the extent of his misery. The field held its usual desolation at early Sunday morning, but Sky stood a long time, in the dark, moody contemplation of the empty field, the unoccupied building.

He became aware of sharp hunger and crossed the field, to the hangar cart, just emerging from a thick mass of strong black coffee swept the fog of weariness from the man and he became aware of his slightly-crumpled shirt, and combed it with the mirrors behind the counter.

RALLY STAGED BY BELLEVILLE TEAM

Madoc Defeated 7-6 in Trent Valley Loop Contest

Madoc, Jan. 30 (Special)—The Madoc intermediate hockey team played straight game when they were defeated by Belleville at the Memorial arena on Friday night by the score of 7-6. Trailing most of the game, Madoc came from behind in the last period to score four goals and overcome a two goal deficit.

The game was fast but play was hampered by the poorest exhibition of refereeing that seen on Madoc ice. Three of Belleville goals were scored on offside plays and Madoc had a legitimate goal disallowed by the referee on the grounds of a player being inside the crease.

The homestanders started the victory rush in the first period outscoring them 3-1. At the end of the second period the score was 4-3 and halfway through the third stood 5-3.

Cam Wallbridge was in the Madoc nets and turned in an exceptional game being called on to replace Pitkin at the last moment and turned in fine games. Howie, Reynolds and Hammett were the pick of the visitors.

REDSHIRTS FROM STIRLING WIN

Score Two Goals in Last 90 Seconds to Defeat Madoc Team

Tweed, January 30.—(Special)—Stirling Redshirts scored a win over Madoc in a Trent Valley League fixture last night, notching two goals in the last ninety seconds for a score of 3-2. Indifferent and listless play by the locals during most of the game was largely responsible for the Stirling nets remaining in the lead.

"Baldy" and "Frenchy" Leal performed the brother act shortly after play began in the counting frame the former netting the puck. Jones drew the only penalty of a listless first period.

Play opened up a bit in the second canto and Box was forced to show his wares, which he did to perfection. The puck forwarded through McGowan and Jones time after time but Box proved a stumbling block. Poor passing around the goal featured the play, and with but one second to the visitor's first goal on a smart solo. Robinson broke away with the puck, Jones speeded up and put the visitors one up. Jones drew a second penalty but Fox kicked and batted the rubber out of the net or flopped on it at the crucial moment.

Penalty Turns Tide

A penalty to Slabury turned the tide of battle and Thompson had a hectic time keep the Stirling goal net. With two minutes to go Maguire and J. Thompson teamed up and the latter rifled just one minute later flashed the red light on a similar set-up, Jones scoring the rubber for both counters.

Play was fast and listed period with the locals' goal threatened but seldom. Fox batted out several hard ones. The visitors appeared to have given up hope of carrying off the game and Tweed seemed to consider the game already in the bag. With one minute and a half to go Robinson was suddenly galvanized into action by the indifferent play of the visitors and tied the score on a pretty shot from close in. Just thirty seconds later Jones duplicated the feat and as Foster Hewitt says "The game is over".

The lineups:

Stirling—Goal, Fox; defence, McSlarrow, Jones; centre, Robinson; wings, Fraser, Rogers; subs—Buller, Reid, Morton, Rainard.

Tweed—Goal, Thompson; defence, Thompson, Arter; centre, W. "Tip" Tummon; wings, Maguire, H. Leal; subs—Courneyea, Elsbury, Long, J. Tummon.

Referee—Jerry Quinn.

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE CAPITOL

"Strangers on a Honeymoon"
"Night Waitress"

Starting with a special Preview Sunday midnite at 12.05 we are presenting two stirring dramas in "Strangers on a Honeymoon" and "Night Waitress". Both are thrillers in the run—in high-down a-highway stream with suspense, action, thrills and laughs in "Strangers on a Honeymoon", starring Constance Cummings and Hugh Sinclair at the Capitol Theatre starting Sunday midnite at 12.05 until Tuesday nite at 11.15 p.m. on this swell double feature program.

Edgar Wallace's novel "The Working Tramp", provides the plot for this romantic melodrama, which introduces Connie as Cotton Jones, an orphan boy, made the starting her 'off to Sam Wasser, son of the town's leading citizen. October says, and you can't blame him a bit! Sam rather likes a tramp than Sam, and that's exactly what she does when Sam and a tramp arrive at the scene of the ceremony in a state of inebriation.

Then Hugh Sinclair and Connie very surprised, when he awakes his stinger the next morning to learn that he owns a bride and she spent most of the night keeping him from being killed by unfriendly hill assassins. What a wedding night, full of everything but romance!

And the next day they're off, borrowing cars — where they find them, dodging police and killers, landing in jail and getting, and tricking their way across the border, then coming smack up against murder!

As they go the bride and groom wisecrack in the smartest modern manner, convulsing you with laughter over the weird pairing when the danger is thickest. October also learns that he may be really Lord Quigley, on his way to Canada to obtain two pieces of paper he needs to make his one piece a whole deed to a valuable property. Where the laughs come in, they are in the pay of one of the holders.

Then Sinclair and Connie are left to leave October and her Lord about to murder on what you feel sure will be the usual honeymoon.

Added Feature

Tingling with the salt spray of the ocean, stirring drama is presented to picture-goers in "Night Waitress", seen as Hit No. 2 starting Sunday midnight.

An unusual type of mystery plot with the background against which a girl's romance is painted, and with Lyle Talbot, Mary Astor, Thurston and Gordon Jones, this offering furnishes plenty of excitement.

Against the glamorous Manhattanscadero, the waterfront section rumbles and roars. Telegraph Hill, forms the colorful setting for most of the scenes across Chinatown, in the ille-role of a waitress in a cafe of the area, finds herself inconcerned by involved in a mystery which befalls both the police and a gang of crooks.

Jones, the former football star who plays his first leading role as the sailor-hero, is also inovoved as the affair, and his efforts to beat the police and the crooks to a secret and at the same time save Miss Graham and is the cause of many suspense-packed situations.

Ends Today

Shown for the last times today and Monday are the 1937 starring Joan Blondell and Dick Powell in the sweltest edition of the great Gold Diggers Series ever shown. Victor Moore as the producer, whom you have to see to believe, adds one foot in the grave, is a scream, as the comedian. This truly is a magnificent picture.

AT THE BELLE

"The Plainsman"

The genius of Cecil B. DeMille is turned to his native America in "The Plainsman", a grand western romantic hit at the Belle today, Monday and Tuesday, matinee daily.

Heretofore concerned mainly with periods in world history which marked the beginnings of tremendous changes through the rise of Christianity, the influence of ancient Rome, the pivotal meeting of the East and Western Europe on Calvary's Hill, Crusades and other forces of equal import in world development, DeMille now turns his unique talents to the important years between the end of the Civil War and Custer's dramatic last stand at Little Big Horn, the decade that marked the beginning of Western expansion. "The Plainsman" is a masterful picture in the men who made this possible.

Famed Characters Recreated

All the colorful characters known and loved by America for the last two generations come to life again in this pageant of empire-building. Wild Bill" Hickok, handsome so ravaged by Gary Cooper; "Calamity Jane," the part played by Jean Arthur; "Buffalo Bill," enacted by James Ellison; General George A. Custer, played by John Miljan, the "Indian Chief," Anthony "Chief Thunderbird" Quinn; "Yellow Hand" and "Pahuska Horse"; President Lincoln and his wartime cabinet, all are included in this film.

There are also hundreds of Cheyenne Indians, borrowed from the Hobbs Indian Reservation, several troops of cavalry, provided by the U. S. Government and the Wells of Wells-Fargo gamblers, frontier characters and settlers, all assembled and masterfully merged into a film which is as big as the mighty background it portrays.

War Stirs Story

The story of "The Plainsman" begins with the end of the Civil War, when Wild Bill Hickok is running among the Indians engineered by arms manufacturers eager to get rid of their surplus stocks. Heading out of evenworth, the "jumping off place" for the West, is Cooper, as the colorful Wild Bill Hickok, and Jean Arthur as Hays city is driven by "Calamity Jane." The two fall in love but Cooper resents the girl's familiarity with other men, and conceals his attentions.

Before they reach Hays City the Indians, led by Manuel Arbequo, Cooper takes a hand at once directing his efforts mainly against John Latimer and Jack McCall, who are selling the guns to the Indians, laying off Hays City. Cooper engages frontier characters are carried by Charles Bickford and Porter Hall.

Custer's Army Falls

After Custer's army is wiped out by the Indians, Cooper goes after Latimer and McCall. They contrive to make him a hunted man but he escapes some of their teamsters. While waiting for the army to arrive, Cooper engages Hickok in a poker game. The climax comes with the arrival of the cavalry and a thrilling dramatic scene between Cooper and Miss Arthur.

The massacre at Beecher's Island and "Little Big Horn," where a whole U.S. cavalry regiment was wiped out, are thrillingly and have been faithfully reproduced providing one of the finest battle scenes ever filmed.

Others in the elaborate cast are Helen Burgess, Harry Worthington, Fuzzy Knight, George Hays and a score of other well known performers.

The Belle latest World News flashes will be exhibited on the same program.

For your full enjoyment of "The Plainsman" it is suggested that you see the picture beginning daily at 2.45, 7.10 and 9.30. Performances start daily at 2.30, 7.00 and 9.10.

Startling Upset Scored as Bob Pastor Gets on Bicycle Staying 10 Rounds with Louis

Judge Unanimous Bomber Victor In a Listless Fight

FOLLOWS ORDERS

Neither Boxer Delivers One Good Blow in Whole Contest

New York, Jan. 30 (AP)—Behind an exhibition of open field running that easily eclipsed his football performances, Bob Pastor today became famous in the fight world as the fifth man, excepting Max Schmeling, to go the limit of a fight with "Killer" Joe Louis.

The old New York University fullback excelled the immortal feats of Red Grange-to gain his distinction, running and skating the distance but losing the decision as most of 18,264 excited spectators roared with delight and not a few boos at the decision.

Pastor, just out of the preliminary ranks and a shoe ender at 10 to 1, was told to "take it on the lam" and he fought before the surprised crowd including Louis' handlers, in the Madison Square Garden. Outweighed 34½ pounds and giving Louis his first big fight against the ring's most notorious bad man, he manoeuvred flawlessly.

Except for an occasional flurry and a few mild jabbing attempts, he circled and back-pedalled the entire ten rounds as Louis, bewildered and as baffled as a bull seeing red, chased and missed him.

Only a few times real punches were landed and Louis said he was able to land only one solidly—a hard left that blasted Pastor's collarbone.

Pastor seemed tougher under a beating as the fight progressed but at no time did he stun Louis. However, he did stiffen each time by jabbing his thumbs into the bomber's eyes and by two nicely timed body rights to the nose.

The fight was almost a carbon copy of the Jack Dempsey-Tommy Gibbons footrace at Shelby, Mont., in the gold rush days of the 1920's.

Pastor Elated.

But Pastor, highly elated as his handlers and friends swarmed about him in the dressing room, had no looks on the decision.

"I'm not kidding but it could have been a draw," he puffed happily. "I'll fight Louis again and I'll do better. All the guys he knocked out came out to meet him. I went in to stay and I did. A couple of times I wanted to drive in and scrap it out but I had my orders and I stuck to use of having a manager if you don't know why."

Pastor's face was free of cuts and scratches.

Everybody in the Louis' dressing room was boiling mad—except Louis, himself. John Roxborough, his co-manager, took over a stool as he came in, muttering angrily:

"Jesse Owens would have had a hard time catching Pastor and that's not a big boy. Think we'll match Owens as a trainer. The only omen who got kicked out there tonight were the referee who peed 15 times to see a fight instead of a track meet."

"Ah didn't get in one good crack except a couple to the referee," muttered Joe. "Ah reads in papers he coming out to belt me. 'Head is sure a tough bumped um with his head and stuck his thumbs in my eyes.' You know it damage he done me."

Perspiring and dog tired, Louis held his head in his hands. Someone asked him if he'd like to fight Pastor again.

Decision Unanimous.

"Tomorrow, if I had the chance," he said. "He gave me good training for what tonight."

The decision of Judges George La Ven and Arthur Lroch and Referee Arthur Donovan was unanimous. The Associated Press score sheet gave five rounds to Louis, four for Pastor, and one even, not so much because Pastor landed that good but because his pedalling tactics threw the number of his unsuccessful deadly pace, caused him to miss and look bad.

Several times, the bomber missed his target badly. Once he missed a ferocious left hook for the whole length of Pastor's circling body.

There wasn't much doubt but what a rematch would be made as matchmaker Jimmy Johnston, of Madison Square Garden, strictly behind the eight ball since Louis hitched his star to promoter Mike Jacobs, was wild with elation over Pastor's showing.

Last night's fight drew a crowd gate of $170,80 and that's not bad even if Louis doesn't care chasing an ex-football player around the canvas before a mob of bowling, amused spectators.

Louis has now fought 29 fights since turning professional on July 4, 1934. Five of his foes lasted the limit and only Schmeling came off with a victory. But Pastor showed the fight crowd something new—how to stay.

SHORE OUT AGAIN

Injured early in the season big Eddie Shore of Boston Bruins has been little hockey action this week and club physicians have again ordered him to the bench for another long rest. They state that action at this time might cause Shore permanent injury.

Aura of Ring Craft Built Around Louis Appears Shattered

(By Sam Robertson)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Jan. 30.—(CP)—The aura of ring greatness built around Joe Louis today appeared shattered beyond repair—and Bob Pastor, a comparatively small man, who is as much a football star as he is a prizefighter, supplied the debunking.

A young New York man called my home tonight and said 'nothing more than a preliminary boy'. Pastor performed the unbelievable feat of staying 10 rounds with Louis' hero last night.

It seemed the only reason the white man did not meet the knockout fate predicted for him at almost every hand was because he had something with which to think. Louis, 23 1-4 pounds the heavier, obviously the stronger and by far the more mechanically perfect, could not so much as decisively outpoint a man who showed little but the ability to run nimbly in reverse, and the good sense to stay out of harm's way.

Pastor Back-Pedalled

With Pastor back-pedalling so fast some fans shouted that the bout was a substitute for Sonja Henie on Ice, and with the latter bewildered by the unexpected, Referee Donovan publicly dubbed him "the dumb Dutchman" for he ignored one of the most obvious and dullest flatfoot spectacles ever served up in any ring.

And, strangely enough, the majority of the 18,500 fans who contributed toward a "gate" of $170,570, seemed to enjoy it. For, most of them went to the show thinking they would see only two or three rounds before the "dark destroyer" blasted the life out of Pastor.

If a fighter in a preliminary bout had backed off with the same degree of bouncing-Bob, the crowd would have blown him out of the ring with their jeers.

But, equally as bewildered as was Louis as the fast Pastor was able to stay ten rounds, the faithful roared immediately when the three judges and the referee unanimously gave the decision. Then they buckled the Madison Square Garden exits with their cheers for the "dumb Dutchman."

Louis Off Guard

The fight added little to the New Yorker's ring stature except, as Louis put it, "he did well even to fool-race with Louis for all those seconds." He showed no defensive skill but more in his feet than in his hands. He showed nothing in the way of an offensive weapon potent enough to go far among the rankers in heavyweight.

However, the dull goings detracted tremendously from the Brooklyn-man's stature. He proved utterly unable to meet the problem of the moment.

The garden air was chilled by the shifty Louis boos. Pastor, the fighting fool, had been painted as the tiger man with the claws, but he didn't show any feline ferocity and the contrast around the ringside was that he could have finished his smalltormenter if he had chosen to tear in with his bigger guns booming.

Louis seemed to supply the answer, when he complained in the dressing room after the fight:

"That Pastor said in the newspapers he'd come 'eatin' in and I was waiting for him."

Joe apparently had planned to meet that sort of attack and when his college-trained opponent switched tactics the former cotton-picker from Alabama couldn't figure it all out.

BOTH GAMES IN HASTINGS LOOP ENDED IN A TIE

Standings of Various Teams Not Changed by The Results

GOOD CONTESTS

West Huntingdon Subs Hold Fort Until Regulars Arrive

Stirling, Jan. 30 (Special)— As a result of the two tie games in the Central Hastings Rural Hockey League twin bill at Stirling on Friday night, all teams retained their former standing with one point added. In the first game Fonboro and West Huntingdon battled for thirty minutes of real fast hockey to end in a goalless tie. Every minute was less brilliant in the first two periods but steamed up in the last "twenty" when the ultimate outcome a tie score of 2-2, so evening the count in a two bill was for one quite fitting.

First Game

When the referee rang the bell to start the first game each team of the West Huntingdon team to the ice with the exception of goalie Hall they were all subs. But the "kids" started at top speed and fought a seventeen minute of hockey without a rest and had an even margin in the play. Then Fonboro got the first counter, when Bray and Thompson went through on a nice passing play and the first's menace. Fonboro then settled down with their players on hand turned on terrific speed and chased West Huntingdon all over the ice, the kids from West Huntingdon tired under the strain and Fonboro had the edge to the score, when there were only three minutes left to play the balance of the Westies team arrived and the kids were given a rest after a great hand as they were relieved.

With the start of the second period the regular players of the "Westies" set a stinging pace and the boys from Fonboro had to play real hockey. The play raced from end to end with the ice like glass with both goalies being tried plentifully and turning in a great performance. Just before the period ended Don Lee the league's leading goal getter added his fourth counter to the list of the year when he took a neat pass from Bert Bedell and Bartes at close range and the period ended 2-1 for Fonboro.

Early in the final period Mott, the centre man for the "Westies" got to go in for repairs and Fonboro put forth an excellent defensive game with the others on holding their lead. When Mott returned to play he was shorn of the lustre of the game remained and West Huntingdon pressed hard, Bedell and Mott finally tied the score and the game which was one of the best seen this season, having only two penalties, ended 2-2.

Second Game

In the second game Glen Ross found it necessary to use their second string goalie Hall, owing to absenties but the kids gave a real account of themselves and were cheered at the top of the league by holding the "Rossmen" to a scoreless two-all tie. The first two periods seemed to lack zip but the third period was a thriller with each team scoring two goals. Bethel opened with a goal and returned the Glen Ross nets and Freddy Dainard added a goal for the first counter beating Dickey from centre ice. Glen Ross failed to play their way again to the Glen Ross zone and this time Roy Brooks broke away with the puck and scored the score two to nothing for the Riverside boys. The Irish came out all forwards for a last desperate effort and for about six minutes the play was all inside Glen Ross blue line but Hall and again they were robbed of goals by the cool work of Hagerman in the Glen Ross nets, who showed in one of his best performances of the year. Faux finally beat him and Bob Bedell supported urged their boys forward with a mighty cheer. With only one minute and thirty seconds to play Lupinacci beat Hall in the prize goal and the game ended with Glen Ross staving off a real threatening rally to be "Irish."

Each playing night the fans get a chance to see each of the four competing teams in action and with the time of the play-offs fast approaching the brand of hockey displayed leaves no doubt as to difficult to predict the teams that will meet in the final round, they have closely matched. All the fans which are increasing in number hope for a certainty that all teams have their eye on the league leading Bedell and are playing to that end. The lineups:

First Game

Fonboro: Goal, Sinfield; defence, Sharp and Bleeckman; centre, Lemmings, Chapelle and Konaky; subs, Sine, Guay, Sunderland, Dunn and Wahl.

West Huntingdon: Goal, Sarles; defence, Stapley and Reid; centre, Mott; wings, Thompson and Cook; subs, Bray and Thompson.

ALBERT COLLEGE DIVIDES POINTS

Senior Capers Defeat Trenton But Juniors Taken For Loss

Albert College divided their scheduled dual bill of basketball in the Bay of Quinte group of O.Q.S.S.A. with their home supporters. Once when the Albert seniors defeated the visiting seniors from the Picton Collegiate Institute by the score of 35 to 16 while the Albert Juniors dropped their second consecutive game of the current season, being defeated by the Picton kids by the tune of 18 to 2.

Playing inspired intersectionals ball, the Gordon-coached Albert seniors led the Picton seniors from the barrier to the whistle showed a marked improvement as the game progressed. The Albert seniors led by the score of 14 to 6 at the half way mark and completely outplayed their Picton rivals in the last frame to win handily 35 to 16. McDonald and Cleaso were the chief Albert men for Albert with Saunders following in order. Webb was one of the best bets brought over from Picton, he getting 11 of Picton's 16 points.

The Picton Collegiate used some of their juniors in the senior game, being somewhat short-handed, but returning to the junior ranks when they looked exceptionally strong, especially on the defensive as the score indicates. The Albert C. I. juniors won over Albert juniors 18 to 2 in a stinking ugly game of basketa. The game was marked by close checking on the part of both teams throughout, but more especially in the first half when the score stood 6 to 2 for Picton. It was not on to outscore the Albert kids 12 to 0 in the second stanza.

Baxter, Martin, Walters and Huff, the latter two playing senior also for Picton, were the scoring aces of the Prince Edward County Collegiate while Fraser, Caldwell and Allan sank baskets for Albert.

Petes Stage Rally in Third To Defeat Redmen 4-2 and Hold Second Place in Loop

Locals Force Play And Hold Lead Till Near End of Game

WEIR SCORES THREE, "Red" Creighton Sustains Badly Cut Ear in Second

Staging a hectic third period rally that netted them three goals, the Peterboro intermediates downed the Belleville Redmen for the second time this week at the Belleville Arena last night by the score of 4 to 2. About 1,000 fans were on hand to witness the struggle and left the local option fairly confident that the final score in no way indicated the play of the evening as the Redmen should have earned a better fate than they were forced to accept. Owing to the rough tactics adopted by the ice was soft and sticky, making good stick handling impossible, the game showed marked improvement as the game progressed. The Belleville seniors led by the score of 14 to 6 at the half way mark and completely outplayed their Picton rivals in the last frame to win handily 35 to 16. ALBERT COLLEGE DIVIDES POINTS

Senior Capers Defeat Trenton But Juniors Taken For Loss

Albert College divided their scheduled dual bill of basketball in the Bay of Quinte group of O.Q.S.S.A. with their home supporters. Once when the Albert seniors defeated the visiting seniors from the Picton Collegiate Institute by the score of 35 to 16 while the Albert Juniors dropped their second consecutive game of the current season, being defeated by the Picton kids by the tune of 18 to 2.

Playing inspired intersectionals ball, the Gordon-coached Albert seniors led the Picton seniors from the barrier to the whistle showed a marked improvement as the game progressed. Belleville intermediate basketball fans won three out of five games from Napanee, Picton and Trenton of the O.Q.S.S.A. yesterday. The Belleville Collegiate boys were unable to cope with the Trenton juniors at Trenton and won 34 to 7. Miss Alberici senior girls' team of B.C.I., however, were forced to stage a last period rally before they could come home victorious over the Trenton senior lassies, but also the Trenton senior girls were much too good for the Belleville junior lassies and walloped them 13 to 2, the nearest thing to a shut-out we ever heard of in local basketball circles. Up at Albert College the Albert seniors played inspired ball to beat their Picton rivals 35 to 16, but the Picton juniors were too much for the Albert juniors and won 18 to 2. Reports on the subject of basketball the big game of the season, when in the intermediate O.Q.A.S.A. is slated to be played at the armouries next Wednesday night, when the local intermediates battle the Kingston "Y". Should Belleville win this game, the local intermediate boosters can topple over backwards with glee against this game, they should go places in the O.A.S.A. provincial finals for 1937. Should the locals lose — we mean just that.

Sport Callings

By Ken Colling

Oh for an artificial ice plant. If the weatherman had not seriously intervened the fans at the arena last night would have witnessed one of the greatest hockey games in recent years. The players were quite willing but the sudden mild spell left the ice heavy and even so that last period was one to still be talked of. Eddie Thomas' charges led from the start and the last stanza was well under way and deserved a much better fate than they were forced to swallow. It is my rule that fans are treated to one of the most thrilling third periods seen around these parts in some moons. The two gauging ally, or power plays, exemplified by the Redmen in those last few minutes of play not only brought the fans to their feet, but left them breathless. Personally we feel, that the proper score should have been Belleville 4 to 3 in favor of the Redmen. Referee Joe Smith disallowed St. Louis' goal which "Squeaky" was taking the net with him, but when "Squeaky" had the privilege of telling the official that little yarn also.

Shades of yester-year. There was a time, and not so long ago at that, when hockey was something new recognized. Many of the old guard will remember the old battering defence of Percy Ingram and "Hard" Murphy, of the Queen's University senior seven, or eight years ago. Well, believe it or not, "Speed" Murphy was on the defence, and playing for the Reds last night, but he's far from the battering ram of years—even when Thomas' Holway, Bill Green and "Soup" Gorer used to overload against him he was the good old days, when hockey was something to talk about in this burg of ours. Murphy was never No. 6 of the Queen's team for nothing and to the veteran fans' eye, he still carried that knack of getting at the puck last night's Belleville reserve put the Redmen in a rather tough spot and never thought to step out and wallop the Trenton squad over the head with a hockey stick as they are wont to be headed for a play-off berth in the intermediate "B" series.

Out at Maple Leaf night, the Belleville Yacht Club "Sailors" staged a real comeback to down the Bombers 5 to 3 in a scheduled Hastings County loop last evening. Belleville's win was due to the fact that they brought with a wide margin their scores to be headed for a play-off berth in the intermediate "B" series.

At present the Peterboro juniors are leading with Belleville second by virtue of their extra victories over the Tweed juniors. With certain extra privileges during the team finishing in first place in the Belleville district league, the final choice of venus for the first and third game of the tri-series will be decided by Tweed's officials how that Belleville and Peterboro' squads are split according to the rules as stated top rung of the league ladder. Belleville juniors made their first appearance of the season in Belleville last night and despite the fact they have yet to win a game in the group, they are playing better every every time. Coach "Eddie Thomas' juniors are faced with the task of winning all of the rest of their games, in fact if they expect to finish first in front of the Petes kids. Junior hockey usually provides the fans of pick-handed thrills and last night was no exception to this well established rule. The lineups included the following:

Goal, Simpson; defence, J. Tunney and Cassidy; centre, Courneyea; wings, Alexander and Wilson; subs, Morgan, Tunney, Bury, Leonard, Long, Sayers.

The Brown Bomber from Detroit slipped! When Joe Louis' left hook to the jaw in the last night in Madison Square Garden the crowd booed and the boys in the ringside press a raw 179-pound ring recruit. Some critics were of the opinion that Louis needed a bicycle to catch Pastor, but if the kid was small enough to step away from that dynamite punch of Louis', credit must be given him for his ring generalship. The Haiti its first major bout of his career. Neither 6 to 2 or 6 to 3 was plain simply slay the route and establish the boy himself what he did quite handily. Whether a return bout would draw fifteen or twenty grand is not merely a moral victory for the youthful Pastor.

TWEED JUNIORS TO VISIT CITY

Junior Redmen Have to Win to Keep Pace With Peterboro

Making their first appearance of the current junior O.H.A. season the Belleville Redmen will be met by the Tweed Pirates at the Belleville Arena on Monday night in a game of paramount importance to the Belleville juniors as they must win this game to keep pace with Peterboro kids.

Should Tweed junior charges have been improving with each time they made public appearance they are only the encouragement of the fans to carry them to greater heights in the Hastings Junior league. Coach Thomas has a tried and proven defence in Captain Bill Bonter and Harry "Hot Dog" McCreary and Gordon Derry, both of whom have permitted few goals per starters. Of course the outstanding player of the juniors is Ward, F. Ward, centre, a former mate of the Jackson brothers of intermediate fame. Ward is teamed with Bill Morgan and Tommy Cole to give the Pirates a scoring front that Robinson, Green, Storms and Jackson make up the Redmen defence. Belleville will be on in no way lessens the scoring punch of the local kids.

Junior hockey invariably sees plenty of penalties handed out, entering into hostilities with wholeheartedness. It can be truly said that Belleville juniors "play to please". Monday night's game between the Belleville and Tweed juniors will be no exception to this well established rule. Coach Thomas will include the following:

Goal, Simpson; defence, J. Tunney and Cassidy; centre, Courneyea; wings, Alexander and Wilson; subs, Morgan, Tunney, Bury, Leonard, Long, Sayers.

SENIOR TEAMS IN SOUTH ONTARIO NOT VERY STRONG

Northern Outfits May Take All The Honors This Season

RACE NEARLY ENDED

Peterboro And R. C. A. F. Stage Merry Race in This District

(By The Canadian Press)
Because the Southern Division of The Ontario Hockey Association has only four senior teams and one of those has proved itself outstanding—Oshawa fans are wondering if the Club to meet the Northern Ontario Hockey Association winners in Allan Cup playdowns will be an intermediate force. Last year the Senior Hamilton Tigers carried the O.H.A.'s banner for two rounds, this defaulted in favor of Sudbury Falcons, N.O.H.A. champions.

The Senior series of the O.H.A.'s Southern Section is merely another designation for the Toronto and York Mercantile League. To date two of the League's teams have been beaten by the Intermediate Port Colborne sailors and one has lost to the most formidable aggregation in the north country, Frood Miners.

It used to be that the Senior Division of the O.H.A. produced four or two teams that outdistanced the others. This year that has changed—no one seems to have corralled a majority of talent. On Monday the Toronto Varsity and Toronto Dominions will battle for first place; at present Goodyears are a point up.

Application Late

Fort Colborne wanted to stay in Senior company this winter but because the Sailors' application was late, the Toronto and York League refused them admittance. So Port Colborne was relegated to Intermediate ranks and was given a bye. The sailors have contented themselves with playing exhibitions in Canada and the United States.

Favorite among Intermediate teams to get a crack at the O.H.A. Senior Champions in the first round of Allan Cup battling, Port Colborne will not be without strong opposition. In the first round of intermediate competition the Sailors will meet Kitchener, Waterloo or Brantford, whose group will start playoffs Monday. Kitchener, Group Leader, tapered off with a 3-3 tie against Waterloo last night. Waterloo and Brantford will start a best-in-three round Monday and the winner will play Kitchener for the right to oppose Port Colborne. Included in the Kitchener lineup is such veterans as Honey and Carlo Kinzie and a number of the kind that first-class youngsters Kitchener has been producing for years.

Air Force Team Strong

In the eastern end of the province the Royal Canadian Air force team of Trenton has been setting up a remarkable record of overwhelming victories. After winning the Kingston City series, the Fliers went into their group to gain further honors. So far they're unbeaten. Struggling to be no worse than runners-up to Belleville next best fight and the Peterboro Air force, Peterborough and Belleville rest last night and the Peters pulled out with a 6-3 win.

Belleville scored a goal in each of the first two periods and the Peters failed to score until nearly 10 minutes of the second had passed. Then, Welty, defence stalwart, scored three straight goals and Gardner saved up the contest with a fourth.

Chatham Maroons became the first team to appear on a map in the intermediate s race when they beat Windsor Bulldogs 6-1 on Chatham ice. The game was a scheduled Michigan-Ontario League affair but Manager Jack Bullough had agreed to allow two of their M.-O. members out as their schedule and Windsor's one-goal lead ended as an entire date was more than overcome by Maroons.

Jack Peifer scored twice for Chatham and Bob Stoddart and Ira Wood once. Herb Jones got Windsor's goal. The result eliminated Windsor from O.H.A. playdowns and give Chatham the right to meet Point Edward in the next stage.

B. C. I. CAGERS WIN 2 AND LOSE WITH TRENTON

R. H. Martin, Chosen as President, When Directors Meet

Trenton, Jan. 30 (Special)—Belleville basketeers were supreme yesterday when they crowded to Trenton and took the local senior girls' team and the junior boys' segregation. Trenton junior girls were victorious in their match and swamped the visitors by the score of 19-8. The senior girls' affair was the tussle of the afternoon. Belleville won 23 to 19. Playing consistently for four periods the Belleville senior girls were down a Trenton defence that had been almost invincible for three sessions and walked off the gym floor with a win. The victory was most unexpected by the local rooters who figured their team had the attention well in hand when they took the field in the final stanza. The lead was cut down in the fourth period when E. Ste. Croix, smart Trenton guard, was banished from the game. The visiting line of D. Aseltine, B. Patterson and J. Porrit not only accounted for their teams points up until that stage but took advantage of Trenton's loss and gathered the nine points that won the contest. E. Davis, M. Beale and E. Gore registered the locals' baskets. Trenton's junior aggies gave the visitors a taste of defeat when they performed superbly to win 25-15. The Cory-Lang-don combination were outstanding on the local team and Trenton's Dorothy Carr looked the best for the losers. The Belleville group being exercised a smooth passing attack throughout the night.

Cooper, Belleville jumping centre, was very effective around the Trenton net and was the highest point getter. Bateman and Clare, each made the best of scoring opportunities and the former gathered two baskets while the latter rifled the sphere through the loop on two occasions and tossed a free shot home on another. Carson, Zufelt, Hincher, Muirhead and Thorne also contributed to the winners' total. Burst and Galbraith were the local marksmen. Final score: Belleville 34, Trenton 6. Teams were:

Junior Girls: Belleville—Forwards, C. MacKinnon, J. Skobie, D. Carr; guards, M. Hutcheon, H. Stout, P. Lewis; alternates, E. Pilzer, C. Tufts, J. Sherry, H. Chambly, I. Corby.

Trenton—Forwards, J. Langdon, R. Cory, P. Burrows; guards, J. Rose, J. Bondesohn, M. Beale; alternates, N. Northworthy.

Senior Girls: Belleville—Forwards R. Patterson, D. Aseltine, J. Porritt; guards, F. Wright, M. Clarke, M. Scott; alternates, H. Smith, B. Shorey, M. Mill.

Trenton—Forwards, K. Davis, M. Beale, E. Gore; guards, E. Ste. Croix, B. Mallory, F. Wallace; alternates, J. Gilleman, R. Bonter.

Referee—Townsend of Belleville and E. Gray, of Trenton.

McGILL'S WIN IS A COSTLY ONE

Red Squad Defeats U. of M. But Lose Starry Wing Man

To stop McGill Redmen in this International Intercollegiate Hockey League campaign, it would appear, the best bet of the opposition would be to stop Paul Pidcock, the wandering winger who is shooting most goals than any other college puckman.

It was mainly through the sharpshooting stick of Pidcock that McGill had undisputed leadership of the league again today. He shot two goals and figured in the tallies needed to down University of Montreal, 5-2, in their second intra-city game last night.

Unbeaten in five starts, McGill held a two-point advantage over University of Toronto who could come back beside the Montrealers with a win today over the fifth-place Yale Bulldogs, starring a two-like and the former gathered two baskets while the latter rifled the sphere through the loop on two occasions and tossed a free shot home on another. Carson, Zufelt, Hincher, Muirhead and Thorne also contributed to the winners' total. Burst and Galbraith were the local marksmen. Final score: Belleville 34, Trenton 6. Teams were:

PRIDE OF NORTH BAY DOES THE HAT TRICK

It seemed that Major Frederick McLaughlin had made a wise move when he traded Bill Kendall for "Pep" Kelly, formerly of Toronto Leafs, but in a recent game the ex-Leaf performed the his trick by scoring three of his team's goals. "Pep" started his hockey career with the North Bay Juniors in 1930. The season of 1931-32 saw him with Oshawa Black Beavers in the O.H.A. Intermediate "B" series. Kelly turned professional when he joined the St. Michael's College team, who also won the Dominion championship in 1933-34. He left Toronto in the fall of 1934. This North Bay youngster is gifted with a world of speed and can last a longer time on the ice than most experienced leaguplayers.

MIKE KARAKAS 'ACCLAIMED BY CRITICS AS LEAGUE'S OUTSTANDING GOALIE

Although Chicago Black Hawks are nicely holding down the cellar position of the American section of the N.H.L., no blame can attach to Goalie Mike Karakas. The sensational netminder has scored five shutouts this season, and is still kicking out the little rubber disc from all angles. Hockey critics, including canny Les Patrick, rate Mike the Hawks ace in his class with the best defenders and netminders in the game. Mike, so a story goes, entered the Black hockey to earn his place among the net-minding greats.

HAROLD COTTON, LORNE CHABOT ABOUT FINISHED

Dutton Leaves Them at Home, Putting Rookies in Their Places

MAROONS PLAY TWICE

Many of The Squads Reduced Due to Injuries And Influenza

(By A. E Fulford)

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Lorne Chabot and Harold Cotton moved along toward the swelling ranks of discarded hockey players today. They are poised just a step from the parade of oldtimers passing from the big league scene through age, injury or decision to retire while they could do it gracefully.

It is not certain Chabot and Cotton are through but Manager Red Dutton of New York Americans is using their uniforms for minor Leagues and their ages and recent performances make it seem improbable they will figure prominently in the National League again.

Pacing a tough two-game series with Montreal Canadiens this week and, Dutton has yanked the lanky Chabot from the American end and substituted Alfie Moore of New Haven Eagles. Cotton, a 34-year-old winger, makes way for Tony Hemmerling, also an Eagle.

Substituted for Roy Worters when that veteran was forced into the hospital, Chabot has disappointed Dutton, desperate as his team remains deeply mired in the Canadian Division cellar. The 36-year-old netman had seen no service when he was called in early in January and recent games have emphasized his lack of condition. Fifteen goals have been scored on him in two games.

Both Chabot and Cotton were left in New York while Americs travelled to Montreal for their game with the section leading Canadiens tonight. They repeat the clash in New York Sunday.

Maroons Play Twice

Montreal Maroons are the only other teams with two games on this week-end. They play Maple Leafs in Toronto tonight and then go on to Chicago for a contest with Hawks Sunday. A Detroit-Bruin clash in Boston Sunday rounds off the week-end card.

Marty Barry, Detroit's ace centre, may not be in the Boston game. He is suffering with influenza. Howie Morenz will, of course, be the other outstanding absentee of the week-end. George Mantha has been named to step into the injured Canadien centre's spot between Aurel Joliat and Johnny Gagnon and Pully Drouin has been recalled by the Habitants from New Haven. Recipient of Chabot and Cotton would bring to 10 the number of star players who either retired this season or entered the borderline ranks of discarded players of coming back are slim.

Frank Clancy and Joe Primeau, Toronto stars, retired voluntarily. George Hainsworth, Leaf netminder, and Sylvio Mantha, Canadien defence veteran, were discarded. These are the only stars of another day, who definitely are out of the game.

But Howie Morenz, Worters, Eddie Shore of Boston and Harry Oliver of Americans find themselves injured and faced with the task of breaking into the game again after layoffs that must necessarily be long.

Worters, Morenz and Oliver are the experienced backs this season. Shore may make it before playoff time but it is doubtful his hip injury will permit him to play in something like their old greatness would be necessary for any of these men, all of them in their thirties.

Meadows and Varoff Will Be 'Natural' Vaulting Duel

New York, Jan. 30—The world's two most prominent pole vaulters of 1936—Earl Meadows of the University of Southern California, Olympic champion, and George Varoff, of the University of Oregon, who organized a world record of 14 feet 6¼ inches—will make their local indoor debut together as chief contenders in the 30th annual Millrose A. A. games in Madison Square Garden on Feb. 6.

The Meadows-Varoff vaulting duel is one of the great "naturals" left over from the 1936 outdoor season, bringing together the man who won the world championship and the man who failed by inches to record. They did not meet in the Olympic games because Varoff, although vaulting 14 feet, finished fourth in the final American tryouts at Randalls Island and failed to make the Olympic team one week after he had soared to a world mark of 14 feet 6¼ inches in winning the National A. A. U. championship at Princeton, where Meadows placed second with a pole leap of 14 feet 3 inches.

Meadows set out to take the Olympic title at 14 feet 3 inches, winning his title under an Olympic record of 14 feet 2¼ inches, winning his title under an Olympic record of 14 feet 2¼ inches, winning his title under an Olympic record of 14 feet 2¼

Monarch Mines Results

While cutting a drift eastward on the northeast crosscut on the 125 ft. level at Monarch Mines, Casgrain township, a quartz occurrence was encountered, 12 to 20 inches was encountered, reports from Rouyn state.

Work east of the porphyry dyke on the 125-foot level has shown satisfactory values, official report which drift advanced to 63 feet. At 48 feet a fair gold was in evidence, and the general trend of assays from chalcopyrite stringers will gain eliminated, show values running from $3.15 to $28.05 over average 3-foot width.

Drilling results will be available shortly from the fan holes being fanned out on the first level and drilling from surface is also planned.

It is reported that Monarch Mines has over $50,000 in its treasury.

Development at Pioneer

The crosscut on the 360ft. or bottom level should encounter the ore zone in about 100 feet west of advance, according to unofficial estimate. This work was first opened up on the 1841. ft. level, and on the shaft sinking than on the 33rd level. It has been only sketchily explored as yet but was notified as strong as ever in the Pioneer vein, although it should be satisfactory grade if commercial ore. (Hall, Holland and Co. Ltd.)

Market Comment

If one examines the action of the market, it may be a sign of technical danger. The tools of the chart readers can be used to uncover faults in the market's structure. A rotating case can be presented in favour of a seasonal corrective movement, state Jones Heward Ltd. in a letter to Mid-Week Review. To the investor who looks behind the veil of figures in price, however, there is always a motivating force which is unlikely to be destroyed by technical readjustment."

Coupled with the natural recuperative powers of world trade the world economy is the tremendous reawakening activity, according to the New York Times, the German Institute for Konjunkturforschung now estimates that government expenditures even last year accounted for 40 per cent of the world's industrial production against 25 per cent before the war. This year there is every indication that the progress for war will be even greater. Barring international explosion, Industrial production should continue its upward surge. The demand for commodities from raw material producing countries is likely to be accelerated. Most reassuring proguarantee of the maintenance of either through borrowing or through more direct inflation of the monetary system. This continued undermining of commodity currencies is likely the more natural rise in prices resulting from the favorable demand-supply factor.

One of America's sounder investment counsellors, Emerson Wirt Axe believes the characteristics of the next phase of the recovery will probably be more rapid, and sharper in business costs. According to Mr. Axe, the experience in nearly all the recoveries since 1854, has been that the volume of business actually "nearly always rose first, and during the first half of the recovery the volume commodity prices usually either declined gradually or were approximately stable. It was only in the later stages of the recovery that a rigid advance in commodity prices occurred."

This is the expectation on which has been based recommendations for common stock purchases. And Jonas Heward and Co. continue to feel that commodity and marginal—usually low quality issues should be given emphasis during buying periods. Intrinsic merit of these issues may appear fantastically valued but the divergence from current trends is distinctly in their favour.

Donnacona Paper's operations are at capacity and, depending upon the price for newsprint, the pulp and paperboard, prospects are that the company should make a good profit on earnings over the next few years. The company's financial position has been strengthened by the recent sale of short term notes, the proceeds from which will be used for further expansion of productive facilities and to increase working capital. It is estimated that as a result of these extensions and anticipated economies in manufacturing, net revenue available for depreciation, depletion and income tax, will amount to a $750,000 for 1937 as against $307,076 in 1935. The report for 1936 is not expected to show much change from that reported the previous year. If the anticipated earnings are realized in 1937, there should be earnings available for the Class "A" stock.

British American Oil

It has been officially stated that a part of the recent earnings of the American subsidiary company will be taken in to the next balance sheet of the British American Oil Company Limited, but how much this will amount to is not known but the ticker distinctly says that it will not include any anything like what the Street expected. Reporters have predicted $2 a share from this source, those who have will be disappointed.

B. A. Oil had a successful year in 1936 as the company has now fully rounded out its balance sheet but certain parts of its operations as well. In the meanwhile the technical position of the shares has improved.

On The Street

The selling of Consolidated Paper Common looked rather good on the floor this week with the buying coming from American sources. Canadian Car and Foundry might find it profitable to have notes for the grocers, should the so-called German stain payments be delayed.—Hoit Rinfret Frs. larred it in demand but no offers to speak of.—Mackinac Preferred "A" is well regarded in conservative quarters.—Bay and Simcoe Streets....Several good-sized footholds were picked up on the re covery in Price Bros. common and preferred....The Massachusetts investors Trust, a leading investment company has increased their holdings of Noranda Mines from 30,000 to 35,000 shares ....They have disposed of the majority of their "gold" shares.—Sherritt-Gordon has ore reserves which show a gross value of around $30,000,000.

'A' Selects Sold at 25 Cents With 'A' Mediums at 22 and 23 Cents

FOWL NUMEROUS

Clear cool weather, a distinct departure from that which has favored the city market vendors and west end shoppers since the holidays, brought out one of the largest representations of buyers and sellers seen in action at the city mart today.

Headed by one of the largest displays of fall and winter apples of the present season, the fruit, vegetable and farm and dairy produce offerings presented a lively good variety for the week end shopper. While the majority of staple commodities remained on a firm price trend, eggs showed a slight decrease from the prices of a week ago.

In the fowls market chickens and fowl were fairly plentiful with the former ranging in price from 17½ cents to 25 cents a pound according to quality and price, Fowl and hens were quoted at from 16c price up and moved fairly briskly at these prices.

Eggs Decline

"A" select eggs showing a slight decline were offered by the greater majority of vendors at 25 cents a dozen with the medium selling at twenty-three and twenty-two cents. The public market was quoted at 30 cents. One vendor asked twenty-eight cents for a dozen fine quality of eggs. Some ungraded lots were offered at 20 cents a dozen. Farmers butter moved at two prices with the vendors being fairly evenly divided. Two pound rolls-for fifty-five and sixty cents respectively. Some were quoted at the regular prices of fifty cents for five pound lots with smaller quantities selling at the same price scale. Solids were in the best lots plentiful with the majority of vendors disposing of their stock at ten cents the pound. Cooking butter was found favor in milady's eye with delicious cakes, rolls and pies moving well.

Apple Prices

Select Northern Spies, McIntosh Reds and Baldwins made up the bulk variety of fall and winter apples. These varieties were priced at $2.00 the bushel hamper. Others offered were Delicious at $1.00; cooking Spies at $1.70; Pippins at $1.60; Snows at 35 cents the peck; Greenings at $1.25 the bag and Snowsukes at $1.25 the hamper lot.

Potatoes maintained the same trend of price level as a week ago with the prophesied rise not materializing here as yet. Ninety pound bags were offered at $1.75 with the seventy-five pound bag lots selling at $1.50. In some instances peck lots were quoted at 35 and 40 cents respectively. Other lots of staple winter vegetables were offered to a slow buying public. Parsnips were priced at 5 cents lb. Turnips at 75 cents; Carrots at the same price and beets at $1.00. Red beets at sixty cents. Winter cabbage prices were high with one vendor offering a good sample at ten cents the head. Other prices were Cole slaw beets corn for the small variety and five cents for a medium quality. Celery heads sold at two bunches for 25 cents.

Fresh and hind quarters of beef and pork were offered by vendors at the former selling at seven and nine, and the latter at ten and fourteen cents the pound.

A good variety of fish was in evidence today with the popular mudcats heading the list at fifteen cents the pound. Whitefish was quoted at fifteen cents; salmon trout at fifteen cents the dozen; suckers at three for 25 cents; flounders at fifteen and fifty salmon steaks at the same prices with winter caught pike at two pounds for 25 cents, rounding out a fine variety of the piny denizens.

DR. McQUIBBAN

When the Ferguson government was formed after the June general election in 1934, Mr. McQuibban was not taken into the cabinet. He further showed his independence by voting against the government's separate school bill, granting separate schools a larger share of the succession taxes, in 1935.

He was first elected to the Ontario legislature in 1926 and was re-elected in 1929 and1934. He was named Liberal whip after the election.

W. E. N. Sinclair as House leader.

Bird Lover

There he was a bird and animal lover. A year ago he rescued Mr. Gately, worn-out race horse, when the old campaigner was destined for the glue factory. Dr. McQuibban said Mr. Gately would be given pasture for the rest of his life. He owned trotting horses: hunters and Columbian dogs and Persian cats in his house and surgery at Alma.

Born in Ingersoll Sept. 4, 1885, Dr. McQuibban attended public and high school at Harriston. He graduated with high honors in medicine from University of Toronto and practised in Harriston for 20 years. Partner in partnership with his brother, Dr. James McQuibban.

Dr. McQuibban's death is the third in the legislature since the 1934 election. Paul Munro, a neighbor representing Wellington South for the Liberals, was killed in a motor accident a few weeks after the election. T. L. Kennedy, Conservative member for Hastings East, died late last year.

General will be held Tuesday from the Presbyterian Church, Alma, to Hamilton where Dr. McQuibban's parents were buried. Rev. Gilbert Little will conduct services.

HITLER'S POWERS

Great crowds of cheering Germans massed outside the Kroll Opera House where the Reichstag assembled. Behind lines of Schutz Staffel bodyguards, Hitler walked slowly into the building.

Without Bloodshed.

Turning to events of the first four year period of his chancellorship, Hitler declared:

"The Nazi revolution occurred practically without bloodshed.

"That does not mean we were not sufficiently ready to use blood. For months I was convinced that I would die in the bloodiest war of all time.

"The revolution took place under no conditions did I ever lose my nerve. That was given to me by Providence.

"I doubt whether there ever has been a revolution of such fundamental significance as the present Nazi revolution, which nevertheless permitted an almost normal transfer of formal political functionaries to go on."—a reference to the Spanish Socialist government —for causing the loss of 170,000 lives, Herr Hitler contrasted this with his own "beautiful" system of government.

He said:

"The Spanish revolution has already chased 15,000 Germans out of that country and done heavy damage to our trade.

"Should this revolutionizing process extend to European States this damage would not be diminished but augmented."

Strengthening Economic Relations

Referring to British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden's request that Germany join other nations in cementing political and economic friendships, the Chancellor said:

"Mister Eden may rest assured we will seize every opportunity to strengthen our economic relations with other peoples, and equally every possibility of improving and deepening the internal economic peace life.

"Mister Eden emphasized that the British government desires under no circumstances to see Europe split into two factions (Fascism and Communism).

"It seems to me that nobody in Europe—at least not formerly—apparently had that desire.

Division of States Accomplished

"Today this desire is only an illusion. For actually, the division into two factions, not only of Europe but of the world, is an accomplished fact."

It is unforunate, Der Fuehrer added, that Britain did not express some years ago its desire to forestall the division of Europe into two camps—"for in that case the Versailles Treaty never would have happened."

He pledged Germany was "ready to do anything possible to achieve understandings in Spain" and promised the Reich would not "in the face of weakness of another people take something from it or extort anything in the future."

Hitler closed the foreign section of his address with a series of "recommendations" directed to Europe:

"1. It is to the interest of all nations that individual states domestically enjoy stable and ordered political and economic conditions. These constitute the most important prerequisites for paving the way to lasting and solid economic and political relations among people.

'Withdraws' Signature

"I do not believe, however, that economic co-operation between peoples can succeed lastingly on any other plane save that of mutual exchange of goods.

"I have, therefore, no doubt, however, that our determination to carry out the four-year plan (of national self-sufficiency) permits of no change.

"The reasons which led to our decision are compelling. They have been able to discover nothing recently that might dissuade us."

Peaceful Labor in Germany

The Chancellor compared "peaceful labor conditions" in Germany with strikes in other nations.

"In Germany, millions of toilers are working according to the highest law — namely the law of common sense," he said.

He emphasized—his hearers thought proudly—that Jews have been entirely removed from Germany's educational system, the press, theatre, motion picture industry and literature.

"Our films are better than ever before: our theatre performances stand on a giddy world pinnacle", Hitler asserted.

'Dictatorship Renewed

Legislation necessary, Der Fuehrer said, because of his fear the "rest of Europe may become more infected with Bolshevism."

Blaming "the splendid democratic revolutionaries in Spain"—a reference to the Spanish Socialist government —for causing the loss of 170,000 lives, Herr Hitler contrasted this with his own "beautiful" system of government.

He said:

"The Spanish revolution has already chased 15,000 Germans out of that country and done heavy damage to our trade.

"Should this revolutionizing process extend to European States this damage would not be diminished but augmented."

DAILY SHORT STORY

Diamonds for Trumps

By Daphne A. McVicker

"Dear me," flattery little Beth mindlessly murmured, all hats on and put me out of the game. But I've forgotten what's trump."

Phyllis looked up, laughter spilling out of her brown eyes. "Hearts," she said. "Although I'd almost forgotten myself."

"And my trump?" Edith remarked tartly. Her long greenish eyes flashed a malignant spark that matched the gold and green lights in the shining stone of Phyllis' left hand. "Phyllis's brand new engagement ring, I suppose you can't think of anything but diamonds. I love Vera Hunt's a handsomer one than he gave Patty. I suppose it is a different one. I wish people wouldn't set about the ethics of that with a second engagement. It doesn't, by any chance, have that loving inscription in it—A to P, with all my heart? It would be so sentimental because the initials are the same."

There was an electric silence. Nobody, she felt, anxious hostess, looked in terror from one girl to the other. Both gave a startled little squeak, something between laughter and an outcry. But Phyllis spoke quite calmly although her lashes closed for a moment over her big brown eyes.

"Is that quite etiquette, Edith?" she asked languidly, bringing up on my boy friend's really errors? Suppose I hadn't known he used to be engaged to Patty, think what bad taste he'd be in. But since I did—no, it isn't the same thing. Not even with a refill."

But there was also in her voice that Beth, her best friend, could sense under the flippant reply. It must have been that Edith's mockery had once laid his all at the brim-mad feet of Patty DeLisa, that they had kicked it contemptuously away when it turned out to be a much smaller and indeed. Even though there was triumph in knowing that Edith's spite was caused by her own unsuccessful effort to win her former friend's fiancé, she felt the rebound.

"Speaking of discards—" Edith went on in her sharpened tones, scooping her cards together.

"But who was?", Phyllis asked clearly. "I'd hate to call Patty that."

Edith flashed angrily. "Well you hardly could, could you?" she snapped and then a hand on Mary Redmond: Isn't this a gorgeous luncheon?"

She slipped the ring off and looked over her hand.

"And imagine you saying that when it says describes me—" she read the inscription softly, "Sterling silver".

"Phil's merry laughter interrupted. "I didn't mind one bit," she said, "I think I have had a little hidden screwed about the Patty episode. Even though Anthony says, truly, I know, that it was a different Anthony entirely who was engaged to her."

She laughed.

"But weren't you a peach? I suppose you gathered the facts. He needs every bit of money to take up those options that are going to make us rich again. Then I'm to have a grand time with Mary Redmond: Isn't this a gorgeous luncheon?"

The color left her cheeks and they seemed suddenly to be hollow and forlorn. Her eyes lifted to Roberta's and Roberta saw in them an anguished call for help.

Just a moment. Then Phyllis smiled again, all her dimples out.

"Gallable curiosity, haven't you, Edith?" she asked. "You really think because Patty DeLisa sent up that I'm wearing Patty's ring. I don't you? Will I'll prove to you that I'm not — but I just happened that I don't want you to see."

"Isn't that a coincidence?" Edith murmured. The attention of the girls at the other tables was centering on this one—there was a thrill of danger that had somehow spread.

Phyllis sat very still, slipping the ring up and down along her slender white finger. Then she turned to Roberta.

"Bobby dear," she said, "as a neutral party, will you look at the inscription in my ring and tell them that it doesn't say A. to P.?"

She handed the ring to her hostess. Roberta's face was an angry scarlet and there were tears in her eyes, but she glanced obediently inside the ring. She started, faintly, and then she spoke deliberately.

"Just two words," she said. "Two words engraved inside the circle."

Everyone took a long breath. Roberta's integrity was indisputable—she could not so much as tell a social white lie to escape an unwelcome engagement. If she said there were two words in Phyllis's ring, then there were two.

Edith shrugged: "Well, I was joking," she said uncertainly. "I'm sure I didn't expect you to be so sensitive, Phyllis. I beg everybody's pardon. And now—what was trumps?"

"Hearts", Robert said, meaningly.

When the others had gone, she went over to Phyllis and put her arms around her. "My dear," she said, "will you ever forgive me for inviting her? I was short one, and I'd forgotten how poisonous she is."

Phyllis's merry laughter interrupted. "I didn't mind one bit," she said, "I think I have had a little hidden screwed about the Patty episode. Even though Anthony says, truly, I know, that it was a different Anthony entirely who was engaged to her."

Forgotten House

By L. A. McVicker.

It should not have been forgotten. It stood there beside its fellow lodges, sturdy with its walls of weather boards, with diamond-paned windows, cosy with its long green roof. A gentle touch of cheeriness it showed even now, as is the way with tailored-in things. But there was no gather-it-together appearance where neglect had made it neglected.

Just forgotten. Judith had found it on the list of prospects in the real estate office where she was employed with a penciled notation: "Owner will not sell."

She had suggested to Larry that they walk out that way and see this house that was so precious to some one, and they had eaten their lunch under the lilac bushes, helping away the remains as neatly as they could and as quickly as a girl can, where her hands are caught and held between every two movements of her mouth, and times begatter the moments.

They had found a key, rusted and old, lying on one of the brick pillars and they had tiptoed into the echoing stillness of the long living room.

"Oh, Larry," Judith had said, "it's such an eager house. It didn't want to be forgotten. I know." I think that it was built by a man who loved a girl very much."

"Like me," Larry said. And there was a long pause while a ruddy head bent over a golden one.

"And then, I think she died."

But Larry was inclined to reject this. "It's a jolly house," he said. "I think she just knew him cross and he was so mad about it he said nobody else should ever live in it."

"Otis don't do that," Judith scoffed.

But they did. Not two months after the bowery picnic at the forgotten house, Judith was sitting alone in the window of her home seeing dry-eyed into the sunset. Otis did do it, even when every bend of their buggy kept time to the singing of manly footsteps down a walk, even when they had to gather and fall and gather again day after lonely day.

It was the old trouble—gambling. Larry's gambling. They said that he had gone into real estate because it was a gamble. They said that he would gamble with his last nickel. When Judith had objected to Gerror in her heart because it had been the ruin of her father he had laughed and promised to give it up.

And when somebody, laughing, had come to the office that Larry had certainly got a run for his money last night they say and and his how' kid were in every gambling place outside the town—he had turned white and still. She wouldn't listen when she tried to explain that his ruddy head had gone up and his brown eyes had dashed coldly. "Perhaps you're right. There can be no other reason. There's no fault" and those beloved footsteps to which her heart kept time had gone out of her life.

A week later, his boss' daughter, a girl that Judith had been grateful to Larry for looking after loyal the office, came singly one day when he's out of college for a few days, Larry being the "litter bit" and she brought the whole story with her. Larry had asked him to keep him out of trouble. Suddenly the darkness lightened with resolution. She wrote a note and tucked it into an envelope with a special delivery stamp.

It was dusk at the Forgotten House. The wind had leaped over the low fence stopped short on the porch, and stood there still listening. Houses—surely houses do not sob—

Then he saw the small figure hidden in the corner of the vine-over and pouch, and the face that went to her.

"I'd forgotten," he said at last, "that this was the address of the Forgotten House. We had a notion that it would be on sale today, but I didn't pay any attention. Then another notice came saying that the price would be cut $600 every two hours, and I couldn't resist coming out."

Color flooded the face lifted to his and suddenly he whistled.

Judith! You scoundrel! I should have known a reputable real estate firm wouldn't game like that! You wrote that notice and depended on my gambling spirit to bring me here at twilight."

Crashing ruefully into oblivion, the house was at peace. When hearts are young houses must expect to be forgotten.

Edmonton, Jan. 30 (CP)—In return Edward Kopp probably will and his system rise. He picked a good-sized pearl in one of a half-dozen clamshells in a creek here yesterday, because it had been cooked, the pearl was valueless.

Winnipeg, Jan. 30 (CP)—Winnipeg doesn't need a pied piper and while its citizens are as eager as they were in 1338 to collect the five-cents bounty on rat tails, they only paid out $443 for 8,863 rats killed during the year.

We did not find any machine within its price range, which, in our opinion could compare with the New Eatonia, in design, appearance or modern design. The mechanism of the Eatonia is of sound construction, simple and practical in design, and should be efficient and economical in operation."

That's the considered opinion of the Research Bureau. You can, logically expect a high degree of satisfactory service from the New 1937 Washer.

BILL INTRODUCED TO RE-CAPITALIZE C.N.R. STRUCTURE

Ottawa, Jan. 30 (CP)—The House of Commons Committee on Railways and Shipping will have before it this session the long-anticipated re-capitalization of the Canadian National Railways. Yesterday Transport Minister Howe, after a brief debate, introduced a bill designed to remove some $1,500,000,000 from the "liabilities" side of the system's balance sheet.

It was provided in the bill, however, that some $63,000,000, representing federal government loans to the railway since the depression, will be placed in an owners' equity trust to protect its prior claim against future profits of the system.

Another government measure was advanced yesterday when Finance Minister Dunning introduced a resolution providing machinery for home rehabilitation loan scheme which was put in operation since last Nov. 1. Under this plan homeowners are enabled to borrow from chartered banks on their own unsecured notes up to $2,000 at a discount rate of 3½ per cent to home repairs and improvements. The government guaranteed 15 per cent of loans up to a total of $50,000,000.

Speech of Hon. Charles Marcil, oldest member in point of service in the Liberal benches of the House of Commons, was announced when the members assembled after the customary recess last night. Finance Minister Dunning, who was leading the government forces, said it was only fitting that the House should manifest a mark of respect to Mr. Marcil, and this was warmly seconded by Opposition Leader Bennett.

Committee Set Up.

The committee on railways, canals and shipping was set up yesterday by Transport Minister Howe. It is understood its chairman will be Sir Eugene Fiset (Lib.-Rimouski), who acted in that capacity last year.

Conservative leader Bennett said he considered the minister's plan "sound but cautious." An important thing was to see that the railways' balance sheet at all times showed to lessen the death toll claimed by the amount of money the taxpayers had invested placed in the equity trust.

No change, Mr. Howe said, would do away with a duplication of $1,500,000,000 between the accounts of the railway and of the government. Continuance of this duplication gave an exaggerated picture of the total debt of Canada, and might prove a handicap to the credit of Canada and of the Canadian National Railways. The total debt of Canada, if computed by adding the debts of the government to the debts of the railway was $5,750,000,000 whereas the real obligations of Canada only amounted to $4,250,000,000.

Revisions Mooted.

The revision of the railway's capital structure involves:

1. Abandonment of government claims for advances to the railway to meet deficits totalling $341,344,346.

2. Abandonment of government claims for interest on advances totalling $60,000,137.

3. Continuance of government claims totalling $363,251,936 on loans for capital purposes as a proprietor's or common stock interest instead of an interest-bearing debt.

4. Surrender by the government to the railway of capital stock of the Canadian National Railway Company having a par value of $100,-434,237 of which only $196,621,728 is carried on the railway balance sheet.

5. Transfer to the railway of capital stock of the Canadian Northern Railway Company having a par value of $82,000,000.

6. Transfer to the railway of capital stock of the Canadian Northern Railway Company having a par value of $18,000,000 to exchange for 1,800,000 par value shares of the Canadian National Railway Company with an initial stated value of $18,000,000.

7. Adjustment of certain accounts relating to the government railways and the Hudson Bay Railway.

MADRID'S "MAGINOT LINE" HOLDS AGAINST REBELS

Fighting the rebels tooth and nail and air raids and bombardments; civilians and soldiers of the loyalist militia kneel side by side behind these hastily constructed barricades to repulse the rebel attacks launched time and again by Gen. Franco's insurgent troops and German and Italian reinforcements. A miscellany of objects, anything that will hold earth, is utilized to form this first line of defence for the Spanish capital.
